Important Notice:

The Kansas City Art Institute (KCAI) course catalog is published online annually and is primarily intended for use by students, faculty and staff. The catalog provides an overview of the college's curriculum and academic programs and certain educational resources. Additional information about academic requirements, administrative departments, course offerings and content, degree requirements, and policies and procedures may be provided in other publications by the Registrar and relevant academic departments and faculty. The information contained in this catalog is subject to change by KCAI at any time, including prior to and during the academic year, without notice to affected persons. The catalog does not create a contract (express or implied) between the student and KCAI or an enforceable promise or representation. Changes authorized by KCAI apply to current and prospective students and to those previously enrolled. It is the responsibility of the individual student to monitor changes and confirm that all appropriate degree requirements are met. Academic advisors are also available to meet with students to assist with degree requirements.

KCAI Force Majeure:

In the event that, as a result of (i) any Act of God, fire, flood, earthquake, tornado, natural disaster, inclement weather, pandemic, epidemic, public health emergency, power outage, government or government agency restriction, order, regulation, law or mandate, war or similar action, act of terrorism, insurrection, riot or civil commotion, labor disturbance or other cause beyond the reasonable control of the College (each, a "force majeure event"), as determined by the College in good faith; or (ii) any good faith determination by the College that the protection of the health and/or safety of students, faculty, administrators and/or other representatives of the College requires, warrants or justifies any one or more of the following actions: (A) any classes (whether held in-person or remotely) are cancelled, shortened, delayed, suspended, relocated or otherwise altered; (B) access to residential housing and/or other College facilities is prohibited, delayed, suspended or otherwise altered; (C) services historically provided by the College are eliminated, delayed, suspended or otherwise altered; and/or (D) any other College operations are cancelled, shortened, delayed, suspended or otherwise altered; the College will not be liable for any such cancellation, shortening, delay, suspension, relocation, alteration, prohibition or elimination and no refunds or credits will be required to be provided by the College as a result of any of the foregoing. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, semester and/or program schedules may be extended by the College in its sole discretion for a period of time approximately equal to the time lost due to any delay so caused and/or classes may be conducted via remote or distanced learning and/or weekend classes may be scheduled, in the College's sole discretion.

The College does not promise or guarantee any particular mode of delivery, curriculum, instructor, or student enrollment level. The College retains the right to change the College's mode of delivery or workforce in its sole discretion. Students' tuition obligations will continue despite, and no refunds or tuition credits will be provided because of, any such changes or force majeure events.

Introduction

Founded in 1885, the Kansas City Art Institute is one of the oldest and most respected colleges of art and design in the United States. Today, KCAI is a premier, private, fully accredited four-year college of art and design, awarding the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree. A comprehensive liberal arts program complements an emphasis in one of the following majors: animation, art history, ceramics, creative writing, filmmaking, fiber, graphic design, illustration, photography, printmaking, product design, and sculpture. The college also offers minors in Asian studies, sound, social practice and entrepreneurial studies in art and design, in collaboration with the Bloch School of Management at the University of Missouri-Kansas City.

KCAI is known for a rigorous, diverse curriculum, an immersive studio experience in high quality academic programs, and excellent faculty mentorship of students. The college's emphasis on personal attention allows students to gain a comprehensive education and to develop an informed, thoughtful perspective.

KCAI's scenic 15-acre campus situates students between the Kemper Museum of Contemporary Art and the Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art, two of the top art museums in the country. The college has two galleries: the H&R Block Artspace, located at 16 E 43rd St, and the KCAI Gallery, located in the Tony Jones Studios for Animation and Illustration.

Mission

To prepare gifted students to transform the world creatively through art and design.

KCAI seeks to accomplish this mission by:

- Providing a rigorous education in art, design and the liberal arts that combines theory and creative application through facilitating aesthetic exploration and critical inquiry and reflection in an historical and contemporary context;
- Nurturing the professional, intellectual and personal growth of our students through access to dedicated preeminent, professionally active faculty;
- Preparing our graduates for thriving multifaceted careers by creating partnerships that serve and involve the public, encourage lifelong learning and promote student engagement with local, national and international communities.

The Kansas City Art Institute's approach to education is designed to produce creative problem-solvers who are agile thinkers able to transform their lives and those of others.

We value intellectual and artistic curiosity together with critical and creative inquiry.

We promote meaningful integration of liberal arts education and professional practice.

We explore diverse conceptions of art and design, materials and ideas, history and perspectives.

We embrace community engagement, cultural diversity, compassion for others and open communication, contributing to social and cultural growth both locally and globally.

Vision

To be an innovative leader in art and design.

Student Support Resources

This list is not all-inclusive. Additional resources can be found in the KCAI Student Handbook.

Student Support

Student Support areas include Academic Advising, Academic Support, and Disability Services. The holistic approach of these three services aims to assist students in planning and achieving personal, educational and professional goals, and meaningfully support each student through their KCAI experience.

Academic Advising

Academic advising provides personalized guidance to help students achieve their academic goals. Students can consult with a student support advisor each semester about progress in their academic degree program and information about policies, services or opportunities. In turn, advisors will provide guidance in choosing classes to fulfill degree requirements, as well as classes and programming that will help move students closer to their individual academic and career goals.

Advisors assist students in planning their academic program. They cannot change established policies of the Kansas City Art Institute. Students are solely responsible for ensuring that their academic program complies with the policies of KCAI.

Services include:

- Academic advising and academic support (one-on-one meetings and group sessions)
- Schedule and degree planning
- Academic related programs and workshops
- Assistance with educational opportunities
- Assistance with transfer credits
- Assistance with policies and procedures regarding academic requirements
- Academic support assistance

Students can schedule academic advising meetings by contacting their major's student support advisor or at academicadvising@kcai.edu. Academic advising information is also posted in MyKCAI, Student Services tab.

Academic Support

Academic support services are available to all students to assist them in developing learning skills and strategies. Students are encouraged to seek out the assistance offered through academic support services by contacting their major's student support advisor or academicadvising@kcai.edu.

The Language & Learning lab, located on the 2nd floor of DeBruce Hall, is staffed by Peer Academic Coaches and Writing tutors.

Services include:

- Writing assistance
- Time-management strategies and stress management
- Set academic goals
- Note-taking tips and organization
- Study strategies and writing approaches

Language & Learning services can also be coordinated online through MyKCAI, Student Services tab.

Disability Services

Disability services provide assistance to students with physical, psychological, ADD/ADHD and learning disabilities who are eligible for reasonable accommodations under the Americans with Disabilities Act and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act. These include: chronic illness/medical conditions, attendance/absence accommodations due to a disability/illness/medical condition, and pregnancy or related conditions.

Services are provided differently in college than in grades K – 12. In that setting, typically accommodations are coordinated through an IEP or 504 plan, coordinated on a cycle by parents/guardians, teachers and other staff. Post-secondary institutions are not required to identify an individual as a student with disabilities. At KCAI, students must request accommodations and provide appropriate documentation to support accommodations. Accommodations are made on a case-by-case basis upon review of documentation and after conversations with the student.

Accommodations may be requested at any time during the semester, but are not retroactive. Students are encouraged to request reasonable accommodations as soon as possible, as certain accommodations require time to arrange. Please see the application to request reasonable accommodations for further instructions. Disability Services is located on the second floor of DeBruce Hall.

Disability Services information can also be found in MyKCAI, Student Resources tab.

Additional information, including guidance from the Office of Civil Rights can be found at <https://www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ocr/index.html>.

Professional Practice Center

The Professional Practice Center (PPC) is here to support you—both as a student and long after you graduate. We provide personalized career guidance to help you explore your options, gain real-world experience, and prepare for life after KCAI. From your first year through your career as a working artist or professional, we're here to help you navigate your path.

What we offer:

- One-on-one career advising to explore career paths and professional goals
- Career workshops and programming tailored to artists and designers
- The PPC Portal—your go-to online job board for off-campus opportunities - internships and jobs
- Resume and cover letter guidance, networking support, and interview prep
- Two Internship & Career Fairs each year to connect with employers and creative professionals
- A Professional Practice Resource Library full of industry insights
- Guidance on graduate school, residencies, internships, assistantships, and fellowships
- Help with artist statements, letters of inquiry, and grant applications

Start connecting with us early—your journey begins in your Foundation year, but our support doesn't end at graduation. As an alum, you'll always have access to our resources, career advising, and job opportunities.

Visit us at Mineral Hall or contact careers@kcai.edu to set up a meeting.

Off-Campus Studies and International Student Services - <http://kcai.edu/academics/offcampus-studies/>

KCAI promotes global citizenship by providing support services to both domestic students interested in studying off-campus as well as international students studying at KCAI. Students can receive guidance in a variety of areas including, but not limited to, off-campus study opportunities, study abroad scholarships, travel information, student visas, international credentials and immigration regulations.

KCAI enthusiastically encourages students to broaden their horizons by taking advantage of off-campus study opportunities, which include:

- AICAD exchange program
- International exchange program
- Faculty-led travel programs – KCAI faculty-led trips combine a unique travel-study experience where students earn 3 - 6 academic credits. Program locations may vary from year to year. Past trips have included Argentina, Hungary, France, Italy, Germany, Mexico, Peru, Vietnam, Cambodia, and Thailand.
- Non-KCAI sponsored study abroad programs
- Fulbright U.S. student program

Students interested in any of these programs should contact the Registrar's office, early in their academic career. Advance planning facilitates a more streamlined off-campus study experience.

The Registrar is the designated SEVIS school official and assists international students (nonimmigrant students) and their dependents, present in the U.S. on a student visa (F-1/F-2) with questions regarding obtaining a Social Security Number or driver's license, lawful employment, maintaining valid student status, DHS/DOS regulations and requirements, and USCIS authorizations, etc.

Library

The Jannes Library and Learning Center, located near the southwest corner of campus at 4538 Warwick Blvd., serves as a dynamic hub where creativity and exploration intersect with inquiry and examination. We use a patron-centered approach to information literacy, providing both individualized and classroom research assistance essential to a 21st-century library.

Our mission is threefold: to serve as a forum for information, ideas, and interaction that enhances classroom discussions and studio practices; to help discover & foster self-directed learning; and to build a supportive framework within our community through accessible library collections, social practices, and services.

Our library collections, including books, periodicals, exhibition catalogs, e-books, artists' books, visual resources, and videos—are specifically curated to support KCAI's curriculum, with many physical materials selected by faculty. Additionally, our campus benefits from membership to the Mobius Consortium, which provides access to the collections of over 60 academic institutions across Missouri and neighboring states.

In collaboration with MOBIUS, Jannes Library has migrated its entire collection to FOLIO, an innovative library information management platform developed by EBSCO Information Services. Designed with modern information trends in mind, this open-source, community-driven platform enhances collaboration while streamlining traditional library operations within our Locate Catalog.

The Open Resource Sharing Coalition (OpenRS) is the heterogeneous resource-sharing system utilized by MOBIUS, allowing patrons to initiate online borrowing requests through the OpenRS Catalog. Requested materials are delivered via courier within three to five business days, with ongoing efforts to expand access.

Jannes Library subscribes to a wide range of online information resources and databases, providing users with 24/7 access both on and off campus via single sign-on authentication (SSO). Our electronic resources include e-books, serials, scholarly and academic full-text journals, videos, and high-quality digital images. Our ever-growing Institutional Image Collection, accessible through JSTOR, includes photos and publications from the KCAI Archive, high-resolution images of our Artist Book Collection, and various departmental collections.

Our Visual & Archival Resources Assistant supports campus and departmental visual literacy needs by managing the college's archives and digital image collections. These collections, hosted on JSTOR Forum, ensure round-the-clock access and seamless integration with JSTOR's extensive two-million-plus image database.

The first floor of Jannes Library offers a comfortable gathering space for casual meetings, group study, and open discussion. Patrons can access a color printer, scanners, eight computer workstations, and wireless network connectivity. The second floor houses a classroom equipped with a large screen and twelve computers for a more private and traditional teaching experience.

As of summer 2024, all KCAI information resources are now conveniently integrated into our NEW Discovery Catalog, offering a comprehensive and fully searchable index of KCAI's current collections and subscriptions. General information about library hours and staff contacts can be found on the KCAI Library site: kcai.edu/library. More specific details, including resource links and services, are available on our "Welcome to Jannes Library" page. Our "Ask a Librarian" chat feature provides immediate assistance or research guidance from actual librarians, available 24/7, including weekends and overnight hours.

Academic Departments

The Kansas City Art Institute is a private college of art and design granting the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree. KCAI offers in-depth study in the following 13 majors: animation, art history, ceramics, creative writing, fiber, filmmaking, graphic design, illustration, painting, photography, printmaking, product design and sculpture. All freshmen complete studio work in the foundation program before entering a major as sophomores. All students take courses in the liberal arts program, which also houses the art history and creative writing majors. Each major or program is led by a faculty chair.

Department of Foundation

Overview

Students entering the Kansas City Art Institute as first year students undertake a full year of Foundation Studies before beginning work in their chosen major(s). The Foundation Year includes 18 credit hours in Foundation Studio, and 12 credit hours in Liberal Arts (Writing Seminar, Art Historical Studies, Critical Studies), for a total of 30 credit hours. Foundation Studio includes a weekly Foundation Seminar that all students attend.

Foundation Studio Structure

In the Fall semester, students are assigned to a Foundation Studio (Foundation Studio I) that is taught primarily by one instructor. The Spring semester (Foundation Studio II) is divided into three 5-week workshop sessions (3 credit hours each) that students choose based on interest and availability and typically work with three different faculty members. In both Fall and Spring, students are enrolled in either an AM (8am-11:50am) or PM (1pm-4:50pm) studio section that meets for four hours, four days a week (M-Th). Foundation Seminar, which all students attend, is scheduled for two hours on Fridays from 10am-11:50am.

The Fall semester begins with a department-wide project and shared learning experience that introduces students to a connected set of ideas and practices as well as different campus resources and Foundation faculty members. After these initial weeks of shared experiences and orientations, each Foundation studio is led by a dedicated faculty mentor for the remainder of the Fall semester. In these studios, faculty mentors are responsible for crafting a narrative arc through a series of interrelated projects that incorporate the three primary areas of inquiry that shape the Fall Foundation Studio: Perception + Observation, Visual Forces, and Form + Space. Students are also oriented to the Central Shop in Fall semester.

The Spring semester is divided into three five-week sessions (3 credit hours each), during which a series of themed workshops are offered. Each of the workshop sessions reinforces one of the programmatic areas of inquiry from the fall semester (Perception + Observation, Visual Forces, and Form + Space) with the introduction of Time, Motion, + Expanded Media as additional curricular opportunity for focused study. Students choose among the workshop topics and are able to shape, with more intent, how they pursue their interests. While workshop themes change from year to year, some of the underlying creative processes often include figurative drawing, portrait painting, stop-motion animation, character design, sculptural installation, filmmaking, ceramic form building, and socially engaged practices to name a just few.

Where many institutions have separate first year classes for drawing, 2D, 3D, 4D, in which the content of each class is kept distinct from the others – KCAI Foundation teaches an interdisciplinary approach from day one. KCAI trains artists and designers from the very beginning to think across ways of working and across disciplines, and to imagine the expansive possibilities of each creative move. The Foundation curriculum is guided by a set of shared learning outcomes and learning objectives that can be explored and met in many ways, through many kinds of efforts, and KCAI's first year students learn to integrate this kind of thinking in their creative practices. Creative questions lead to many potential solutions. The differences in KCAI studio approaches contribute to the expansive tool kit that Foundation students carry forward into their chosen majors.

Foundation Seminar

Foundation Seminar is a component of Foundation Studio that is scheduled weekly for two hours. This Seminar introduces students to KCAI facilities and resources, KCAI alumni, local and regional artists, creative tools, professional practice strategies, and especially to the major, minor and certificate programs available to them at KCAI.

Orientations and Training

There are a number of trainings and orientations that occur during the Foundation year at KCAI. Students are trained in the Central Shop, where they learn basic woodworking tools and safety procedures. After completing this training, they may use the shop to develop their work throughout their education at KCAI. Students are also trained in the Beals Studios for Art and Technology, where they learn about the relationship between analog and digital design and input/output scenarios. After completing this training, they are able to make full use of the laser cutters, 3D printers and CNC routers housed in Beals.

Facilities

KCAI's Foundation department has over 20,000 sf of space in two dedicated Foundation buildings with large studios that accommodate the wildest imaginings of the talented students who are enrolled. KCAI offers each student a personal and independent place to develop their work in their first year.

Curricular Structure (Departments of Foundation and Liberal Arts)

Note:	Students spend 16 hours weekly in the studio Monday-Thursday and an additional two hours on Friday in Foundation Seminar.

FOUN 100

Foundation Studio I

(9 credit hours)

Foundation Studio I begins with a department-wide project and shared learning experience that introduces students to a connected set of ideas and practices as well as different campus resources and Foundation faculty members. After these initial weeks of shared experiences and orientations, each Foundation studio is led by a dedicated faculty mentor for the remainder of the Fall semester. In these studios, faculty mentors are responsible for crafting a narrative arc through a series of interrelated projects that incorporate three primary areas of inquiry that shape the Fall Foundation Studio: Perception + Observation, Visual Forces, and Form + Space. Students are also oriented to the Central Shop in Foundation Studio I.

FOUN 110

Foundation Studio II: Workshop 1

(3 credit hours)

Foundation Studio II: Workshop 2

(3 credit hours)

Foundation Studio II: Workshop 3

(3 credit hours)

The Spring semester is divided into three five-week sessions (3 credit hours each), during which a series of themed workshops are offered. Each of the workshop sessions reinforces one of the programmatic areas of inquiry from the fall semester (Perception + Observation, Visual Forces, and Form + Space) with the introduction of Time, Motion, + Expanded Media as additional curricular opportunity for focused study. Students choose among the workshop topics and are able to shape, with more intent, how they pursue their interests. While workshop themes change from year to year, some of the underlying creative processes often include figurative drawing, portrait painting, stop-motion animation, character design, sculptural installation, filmmaking, ceramic form building, wearable forms, and socially engaged practices to name just a few. Students are also oriented to the Beals Studios for Arts and Technology in Foundation Studio II.

The Liberal Arts Department

Through multiple lenses of history, literature, philosophy, art history, and the sciences, the Liberal Arts Department at the Kansas City Art Institute aims to provide students with the kind of intellectual, civic, and aesthetic grounding that is both meaningful and lasting. “Chance,” said Pasteur, “favors the prepared mind.” In our classrooms, we foster critical and creative conversations in order to develop students-artists’ full potential. We train students to search for transcendent principles (theoria), to formulate, in writing and in speech, fair-minded, intellectually disciplined, evidence-based assertions (poiesis), resulting in action taken (praxis) both in their studios as makers, as well as in life. Liberal arts courses are reading-, writing-, and research-intensive. Our goal is to provide students with an education that has no expiration date. Our curriculum encourages broadly educated student-artists, whose training and practice in both the studio and the liberal arts classroom is mutually supportive.

The Liberal Arts Department provides the general studies courses in the disciplines of art history, history, literature and creative writing, philosophy, and the sciences for all students pursuing the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree. The Department houses two majors (Art History and Creative Writing), and one minor (Asian Studies). Students can choose to major or double major in Art History; students can choose to major or double major in Creative Writing. In addition, students can choose to minor in Asian Studies. We encourage students to earn their liberal arts credits by taking advantage of internship opportunities, enrolling in our Japanese language and culture classes, going on faculty-led study abroad and mobility programs, and by working with our core faculty, one-on-one, in directed individual study. We aim to provide students a rigorous, yet flexible set of choices in meeting their requirements so as to assure every student has a say in their own liberal arts education.

Liberal Arts Student Learning Outcomes:

1. Communication. Demonstrate effective communication skills in written communication, in public speaking, and in active listening.
2. Critical thinking. Demonstrate critical thinking skills, including close reading, logical reasoning, identification of bias. Ability to present multiple points-of-view with fairness and accuracy. Ability to find common ground in opposing perspectives.

3. Inquiry. Develop investigative skills sufficient to perform a creative and exhaustive search. Ability to identify and access all relevant sources.
4. Creative problem-solving. Develop problem-solving skills. Ability to find artistic solutions to intellectual problems and intellectual solutions to artistic problems.
5. Cultural literacy. Develop a level of cultural literacy necessary to be an informed global citizen through engagement with culture, language, traditions outside of home culture and language.
6. Intellectual curiosity. Develop an intellectual curiosity in the pursuit of living an examined life beyond one's lived experience.

Liberal Arts Requirements

LOWER DIVISION CORE COURSES

WRS 1001 Writing Seminar	3 credit hours
AHS 1001 Art Historical Studies I	3 credit hours
AHS 1002 Art Historical Studies II	3 credit hours
CRS 1001 Critical Studies	3 credit hours

These four lower division core courses are prerequisites for upper division Liberal Arts courses.

UPPER DIVISION COURSES

Upper division courses are taken during the sophomore, junior, and senior years. At least one of these courses (3 credit hours) must be a Global/Comparative (non-Eurocentric) Studies course. A minimum of five courses (15 credit hours) must be taken at the 3000- or 4000-level.

Art History	3 credit hours
Art History	3 credit hours
Art History	3 credit hours
History	3 credit hours
Literature	3 credit hours
Philosophy	3 credit hours
The Sciences	3 credit hours

Upper Division Liberal Arts Courses	6 credit hours*
-------------------------------------	------------------------

TOTAL:	39 credit hours

*This requirement can be met by taking six credit hours in any upper division liberal arts class in any discipline—art history, history, literature or creative writing, philosophy, or the sciences. Students can also satisfy this requirement by choosing any of the following opportunities: Japanese language and culture classes, internships (maximum 12 hours), directed individual study (maximum 12 hours), faculty-led study abroad or mobility programs.

Open electives. In addition to these 39 required credit hours, another 6 credit hours of “open electives” are required in order to earn the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree. Students can choose to satisfy this requirement by taking studio or liberal arts classes, or a combination of both. Many students choose to take liberal arts classes; these students graduate with 48 hours of liberal arts experience, six hours beyond the required number of credit hours.

Liberal Arts Courses and Course Descriptions

All Liberal Arts courses are 3 credit hour courses.

Lower Division Required Core Courses:

WRS 1001 – Writing Seminar

Current course options:

Writing Seminar: American Monsters

This theme-based, reading-, writing-, and research-intensive course is designed to sharpen student skills in close reading, college-level writing, research, and critical thinking and reasoning. Students will also hone their research skills, learning to maximize their abilities to access all available information sources, evaluate sources, synthesize information, fairly acknowledge opposing opinions, and cite sources properly, using the Chicago Manual of Style. Requirements include three research-based papers, weekly writing exercises, peer draft evaluations, and one-on-one conferences with their instructor. Global/comparative readings will total 400-500 pages with a minimum of 24 pages (6,000 words) of student writing. This is a required course for all KCAI students. Required text: Kate L. Turabian, A Manual for Writers of Research Papers, Theses, and Dissertations, ninth edition.

This class will take as its topic the collectively held anxieties that have shaped horror stories both real and imagined. Beginning with Cotton Mather and the source transcripts of the Salem witch trials, the course will track regionally-specific (and specifically American) histories with an eye to the fears that shadow them—black bodies; queer bodies; the suburban-domestic expanse; children (both missing and murderous). Texts will include Brian De Palma's Carrie, Cecelia Condit's Possibly in Michigan, and Carmen Maria Machado's Her Body and Other Parties. We will begin and end with the woods—the early American wilderness and the settler's fear of the lurking shapes just past the tree line, and the summer camp screamfests and adolescent hijinks of 1980s B-movie schlock (the same woods?)—while also considering the specifically American and highly raced iconography of urban cityscapes as represented by Candyman's cinematically fictionalized Cabrini-Green and documentary footage of the demolition of Pruitt-Igoe. We will interrogate the “America” in the course's title throughout, focusing on the African-Caribbean, indigenous, and slave and immigrant narratives that complicate easy understandings of what qualifies as “American.” As the study of horror will sometimes involve the study of bodies in pain, please note that some of the images and texts taught in this course may be triggering. Some may find the texts cathartic. Others may not. Students interested in the course but unsure of the material can contact the instructor directly for a more detailed discussion of what to expect.

Writing Seminar: Home and Away

This theme-based, reading-, writing-, and research-intensive course is designed to sharpen student skills in close reading, college-level writing, research, and critical thinking and reasoning. Students will also hone their research skills, learning to maximize their abilities to access all available information sources, evaluate sources, synthesize information, fairly acknowledge opposing opinions, and cite sources properly, using the Chicago Manual of Style. Requirements include three research-based papers, weekly writing exercises, peer draft evaluations, and one-on-one conferences with their instructor. Global/comparative readings will total 400-500 pages with a minimum of 24 pages (6,000 words) of student writing. This is a required course for all KCAI students. Required text: Kate L. Turabian, A Manual for Writers of Research Papers, Theses, and Dissertations, ninth edition.

In our increasingly global society, humans are constantly on the move—the average American will move 11.7 times in their life. In this class, we will explore our own sense of place and how politics, socioeconomics, gender, and colonialism factor into how we define home, with a focus on the place we live now: the American Midwest. We will ask questions like: What makes a place a home? How does place shape our collective and personal identities? Why do we travel, and what are the ethics of tourism? What does it mean to belong? Readings and materials for the class will include (and are not limited to) selected personal essays from Melissa Faliveno's Tomboyland and Billy-Ray Belcourt's A History of My Brief Body, journalism from The New Territory, Esmeralda Santiago's memoir When I Was Puerto Rican, and the film Nomadland.

Writing Seminar: I Read Therefore I Am—Identity Formation and Media

This theme-based, reading-, writing-, and research-intensive course is designed to sharpen student skills in close reading, college-level writing, research, and critical thinking and reasoning. Students will also hone their research skills, learning to maximize their abilities to access all available information sources, evaluate sources, synthesize information, fairly acknowledge opposing opinions, and cite sources properly, using the Chicago Manual of Style. Requirements include three research-based papers, weekly writing exercises, peer draft evaluations, and one-on-one conferences with their instructor. Global/comparative readings will total 400-500 pages with a minimum of 24 pages (6,000 words) of student writing. This is a required course for all KCAI students. Required text: Kate L. Turabian, A Manual for Writers of Research Papers, Theses, and Dissertations, ninth edition.

Pop culture is an infinite dressing room of selves. In this course, we will explore how the way we read can fuel the way we understand ourselves. (We will define “read” expansively to include the way we take in and interpret stories in fiction, nonfiction, film, television, theater, and music.) In The History Boys, Alan Bennett writes, “The best moments in writing are when you come across something—a thought, a feeling, a way of looking at things—which you had thought special and particular to you. Now here it is, set down by someone else, a person you have never met, someone even who is long dead. And it is as if a hand has come out and taken yours.” What drives cosplay? Do video games deserve the blame they get for real-life tragedies? How do you find yourself, outside yourself? And where does the question of representation fit into all this? With book bans and challenges at a record high, in this course we will ask ourselves what reading has the power to do to us, and for us.

Writing Seminar: Literature and the City

This theme-based, reading-, writing-, and research-intensive course is designed to sharpen student skills in close reading, college-level writing, research, and critical thinking and reasoning. Students will also hone their research skills, learning to maximize their abilities to access all available information sources, evaluate sources, synthesize information, fairly acknowledge opposing opinions, and cite sources properly, using the Chicago Manual of Style. Requirements include three research-based papers, weekly writing exercises, peer draft evaluations, and one-on-one conferences with their instructor. Global/comparative readings will total 400-500 pages with a minimum of 24 pages (6,000 words) of student writing. This is a required course for all KCAI students. Required text: Kate L. Turabian, A Manual for Writers of Research Papers, Theses, and Dissertations, ninth edition.

If you're reading this, it's fair to say you probably live in a city. It's likely you were born in a city, too, likely you were raised in one, likely you will spend a great deal of your life in a city. For the majority of the world's population since 2009, this is their story. Cities, in all their glory and strife, provide the context within which the events of our lives take place. These built environments create the opportunities we thrive on, as well as the constraints that hold us back and hold us down. Throughout the semester students will be asked to investigate ideas of The City, what it represents, how it relates to their own lives. Readings will include a variety of literary texts, ranging from international skate videos to fiction and essays, research and academic theory. Think books like Matthew Desmond's "Evicted," or Stuart Dybek's stories about life in Chicago's Polish and Hispanic neighborhoods, Haruki Murakami's narratives set within the Tokyo megacity. These texts will invite students to consider the relationships between The City, fiction and policy, capital and race, their own lived experiences and the means by which we write them.

Writing Seminar: Memory and Time

This theme-based, reading-, writing-, and research-intensive course is designed to sharpen student skills in close reading, college-level writing, research, and critical thinking and reasoning. Students will also hone their research skills, learning to maximize their abilities to access all available information sources, evaluate sources, synthesize information, fairly acknowledge opposing opinions, and cite sources properly, using the Chicago Manual of Style. Requirements include three researched papers, weekly writing exercises, peer draft evaluations, and one-on-one conferences with their instructor. Global/comparative readings will total 400-500 pages with a minimum of 24 pages (6,000 words) of student writing. This is a required course for all KCAI students. Required text: Kate L. Turabian, A Manual for Writers of Research Papers, Theses, and Dissertations, ninth edition.

When we remember specific times in the past, we often conceptualize the act of remembering as if we're, with pick and shovel, digging down and sifting through archaeological layers, uncovering, and brushing off, each moment as if revealing an artifact. Our bodies themselves are physiologically rich sites of memory, with interconnected psychosocial vectors containing personal and cultural history in the form of shards of collective sensation, symbol, imagery, and language. Similarly, memory is archived in art--from written and visual texts to museums, buildings and websites, each of which stores our collective imaginary and symbolic repositories of our species' historical realities. Memory and time also have important ethical, educational, and political dimensions—who from the past do we celebrate or revere in collective memory and why? As Toni Morrison once remarked in an interview, the past "...has been dumbed down or flattened out, or academically nitpicked so you can't get any life out of it, you just get data." In this course, we will begin with personal texts (both written and visual, both fictional and non-fictional) that explore and respond to several of the big questions about memory, time and humanity; and then we will each write several personal narratives that blend remembrance with research and reasoning in the true spirit of creative inquiry.

Writing Seminar: Spelunking the Self (On Humanity)

This theme-based, reading-, writing-, and research-intensive course is designed to sharpen student skills in close reading, college-level writing, research, and critical thinking and reasoning. Students will also hone their research skills, learning to maximize their abilities to access all available information sources, evaluate sources, synthesize information, fairly acknowledge opposing opinions, and cite sources properly, using the Chicago Manual of Style. Requirements include three research-based papers, weekly writing exercises, peer draft evaluations, and one-on-one conferences with their instructor. Global/comparative readings will total 400-500 pages with a minimum of 24 pages (6,000 words) of student writing. This is a required course for all KCAI students. Required text: Kate L. Turabian, A Manual for Writers of Research Papers, Theses, and Dissertations, ninth edition.

In the age of A.I. art, fake news, and the monolith of the screen, it often feels as if humanity—and the human experience—is an aging meme, whose relevance is quickly decaying into static. Everything, it seems, is controlled by The Code—be that algorithms, polls, or other forces that try to abstract us into data points that can be leveraged toward one dark aim or another. The level of noise we experience daily has reached a bombastic cacophony, one that we must often compete with—or grovel to—to find our audiences as artists. But I believe that the thing which can save us from the oblivion of the matrix is the simple thing that is being stripped away: our humanity, and the power of experience. In this course, we will engage with critical and creative work—across many genres and forms, both new and ancient—that explore the self (its construction, its endangerment) all the while exploring and interrogating the experiences, fascinations, and biases that make us each unique. Our writing will center this personal exploration through the creation of research-based essays that combine strong rhetorical and investigative skills with the support of earnest human engagement through storytelling. By the end of this semester, you should expect your writing to better reflect what you think, and who you are—and who knows, you may even be surprised who that turns out to be.

Writing Seminar: Working Stiff—Art, Labor, and the Human Spirit

This theme-based, reading-, writing-, and research-intensive course is designed to sharpen student skills in close reading, college-level writing, research, and critical thinking and reasoning. Students will also hone their research skills, learning to maximize their abilities to access all available information sources, evaluate sources, synthesize information, fairly acknowledge opposing opinions, and cite sources properly using the Chicago Manual of Style. Requirements include three research-based papers, weekly writing exercises, peer draft evaluations, and one-on-one conferences. Global/comparative readings will total 400-500 pages with a minimum of 24 pages (6,000 words) of student writing. This is a required course for all KCAI students. Required text: Kate L. Turabian, A Manual for Writers of Research Papers, Theses, and Dissertations, ninth edition.

Labor has influenced art across continents for thousands of years. Perhaps this theme has lasted because labor is common ground creatives share with the general population—many emerging and established artists must work one or more jobs to support their craft—or perhaps toil is simply ingrained in the human experience. This semester, we will explore the relationship between art, labor, and the human spirit. We'll analyze essays and stories that discuss and feature workers; we'll define what labor means to us individually, collectively, historically. Next, we'll connect our ideas about work to our passion for art. Is the creation of art labor, a transcendence from labor, both, neither? What is the difference between labor for profit and labor of the spirit? How does a spider's weaving of a web compare to a human working a desk job, or writing a research essay, or repairing their own home, or sketching an image of a spider weaving a web?

Writing Seminar: Thingamabobs—Hacking Into the Void, One Essay At a Time

"No ideas but in things."

—William Carlos Williams

This theme-based, reading-, writing-, and research-intensive course is designed to sharpen student skills in close reading, college-level writing, research, and critical thinking and reasoning. Students will also hone their research skills, learning to maximize their abilities to access all available information sources, evaluate sources, synthesize information, fairly acknowledge opposing opinions, and cite sources properly using the Chicago Manual of Style. Requirements include three research-based papers, weekly writing exercises, peer draft evaluations, and one-on-one conferences. Global/comparative readings will total 400-500 pages with a minimum of 24 pages (6,000 words) of student writing. This is a required course for all KCAI students. Required text: Kate L. Turabian, A Manual for Writers of Research Papers, Theses, and Dissertations, ninth edition.

As artists, I believe it's our job to see what's present but still unseen and underexplored in the things around us. Things remind us, if we become hyperaware of them, that is, if we give them enough thought, that our world is full of associations we've yet to notice, describe, or bring into view. And one way to explore this kind of thinking, outside of the creation of art, is through the essay. Whether the thing is a color we've only looked past and tossed aside like a garnish or a single pebble placed in a pocket—a reminder of some particular day—these things model for us what the essay itself does: a means to creep into systems once thought seemingly impenetrable, securely defined, and in isolation.

CRS 1001 – Critical Studies

CRS 1001

Critical Studies: Critics of Religion

Intended to provide artists with a shared intellectual vocabulary, a broadened awareness of global contexts and issues, and a historical perspective for making sense of them, the Critical Studies sequence develops critical thinking, reading, writing, and discussion skills through study of seminal texts from the dawn of civilization up to the present day. Each section features a unique theme and reading list determined by the instructor.

Criticisms of religion have a history as old as the beginning of civilization. Critiques of religion by influential thinkers originated in ancient Europe, Asia, and the Middle East and have continued throughout human history. This course focuses on modern critics of religion; namely, those who have offered up major critiques since the Enlightenment and have been noteworthy for their influence. Among those we will consider are Karl Marx, Nakae Chomin, Sigmund Freud, Mao Zedong, Bertrand Russell, the New Atheists, and others.

Critical Studies: The Human Condition

Intended to provide artists with a shared intellectual vocabulary, a broadened awareness of global contexts and issues, and a historical perspective for making sense of them, the Critical Studies class develops critical thinking, reading, writing, and discussion skills through study of seminal texts from the dawn of civilization up to the present day. Each section features a unique theme and reading list determined by the instructor.

The theme of this section is the human condition. We read 4000 years of writing from around the world, always asking what does it mean to be a person? What do people across time and space have in common? Readings include Gilgamesh, Dante Alighieri (Inferno), George Eliot (Middlemarch), and James Baldwin (Giovanni's Room).

No screens or electronic devices are allowed in this classroom, and hard copies are required for each of the assigned texts. Coursework includes quizzes, midterm exam, and final exam.

CRS 1001

Critical Studies: The Imagination, A Selective History

Intended to provide artists with a shared intellectual vocabulary, a broadened awareness of global contexts and issues, and a historical perspective for making sense of them, the Critical Studies sequence develops critical thinking, reading, writing, and discussion skills through study of seminal texts from the dawn of civilization up to the present day. Each section features a unique theme and reading list determined by the instructor.

Humanity's creation of art long predates written history, but our knowledge of humanity's self-reflective understanding of how and why people make art emerges from written history. Yet contemporary thinkers such as Leslie Marmon Silko and Gloria Anzaldúa theorize about ancient tribal views of art and meaning that precede written records. Ancient thinkers began to recognize the power of stories and images to provide new dimensions of meaning in their lives. In the Mediterranean, Plato and Aristotle theorized about the nature of interpretation, and later Horace would construct his theory about art that delights and instructs. In China, Confucius would give art an important place in his social system. In India, Gautama Buddha would reflect on art's capacity to explore the power of the mind. In the medieval period, Catholic thinker Thomas Aquinas, Jewish thinker Moses Maimonides, and Muslim thinker Averroes would pioneer new ways to understand the role of artistic metaphor in religious scripture. Japanese artist Zeami developed a theoretical system to underly Nō theatre. In the Renaissance, Shakespeare would use the stage to reflect on the nature of art. Descartes would explore the very nature of the human mind itself. Aphra Behn would theorize the central importance of pleasure in art over instruction and finding a place for the woman artist. Thinkers such as Rousseau, Hume, and Kant would struggle with the responsibilities of freedom in thought as well as action.

Critical Studies: On God and Other Bodies

Intended to provide artists with a shared intellectual vocabulary, a broadened awareness of global contexts and issues, and a historical perspective for making sense of them, the Critical Studies sequence develops critical thinking, reading, writing, and discussion skills through study of seminal texts from the dawn of civilization up to the present day. Each section features a unique theme and reading list determined by the instructor.

What does it mean to be embodied? Much of global thought has wrestled with this question. The body as a-thing-that-hurts. The body as a-thing-that-dies. From the embodied god of early Hebraic texts to the obsession of classical Christian thought with the body of its Messiah, we've concerned ourselves with both our own bodies as well as the bodies of our gods. We see this both in the Judeo-Christian tradition as well as classical Hindu and Buddhist thought, and much of our time will be spent juxtaposing earlier writing with more contemporary literary and cinematic texts. Film will play heavily in the way we approach visual representations of the body, and the work of queer, female, and Black artists will be taken as a counterpoint to the Enlightenment's distrust of embodied experience. As the study of embodied experience will sometimes involve the study of bodies in pain, some of the images and texts taught in this course may be difficult to bear. Some may find the texts cathartic. Others may not. Students interested in the course but unsure of the material can contact the instructor for a more detailed discussion of what to expect.

Critical Studies: The Origins of Other

Intended to provide artists with a shared intellectual vocabulary, a broadened awareness of global contexts and issues, and a historical perspective for making sense of them, the Critical Studies sequence develops critical thinking, reading, writing, and discussion skills through study of seminal texts from the dawn of civilization up to the present day. Each section features a unique theme and reading list determined by the instructor.

This course will explore the conflict between self vs. other as it has evolved over time in various contexts. We will examine the dynamic between self and other and how groups are coded as "other" in relation to those who are considered dominant and more powerful. Analyzing the way in which the self vs. other conflict has informed various discourses such as feminism, Orientalism and critical race theory, we will study the diverse ways in which marginalized "others" have offered resistance to and succeeded in interrogating and dismantling oppressive systems.

Critical Studies: So. Epic.

Intended to provide artists with a shared intellectual vocabulary, a broadened awareness of global contexts and issues, and a historical perspective for making sense of them, the Critical Studies sequence develops critical thinking, reading, writing, and discussion skills through study of seminal texts from the dawn of civilization up to the present day. Each section features a unique theme and reading list determined by the instructor.

In this course we will read and contemplate literature and thought around the topic “epic texts.” From pre-history to the not-so-estranged 18th century, we will investigate epic tales of creation, endurance, imagination, imagination, and wisdom, while taking into account subtexts, culture, and spiritual associations. Primary texts include the Epic of Gilgamesh (Mesopotamian – Akkadian), Genesis (Jewish – Hebrew), the Bhagavad-Gita (Indian – Hindu), Julian of Norwich’s Showings (Catholic – Mystic), Frankenstein by Mary Shelley (English), and Sunjata: a West African epic of the Mande peoples (Mali).

Critical Studies: A Brief History of The Good Life

Intended to provide artists with a shared intellectual vocabulary, a broadened awareness of global contexts and issues, and a historical perspective for making sense of them, the Critical Studies sequence develops critical thinking, reading, writing, and discussion skills through study of seminal texts from the dawn of civilization up to the present day. Each section features a unique theme and reading list determined by the instructor.

In this course, we will investigate past worldviews of good and evil; heavens and hells; of virtues and sins; of moderation and excess; of long-forgotten or reconstructed social constructions in Western and Eastern thought and tradition as represented in philosophy, myth, religious art and literature. Carefully tracing the collective interpsychic (or spiritual) and material shifts in morality, ethics and meaning making in religious and secular contexts about what various peoples knew and believed about living a good life, we will position ourselves in such a way that we might better contextualize and think critically about ideal lifestyles in the present day. Through various lenses presented by the texts we read, we will also find ourselves in a position to pose our own questions about present-day considerations, including but not limited to virtue, family, friendship, community, health, prosperity, luck, agency, power, freedom, and authenticity.

AHS 1001 – Art Historical Studies I

Current course options:

Art Historical Studies I: Color and Culture

The Art Historical Studies sequence provides an introductory and thematic study of art from prehistory to the present and recognizes multiple art histories. Emphasis is on critical thinking skills, visual analysis, and a broadened awareness of global cultural and historical contexts. Each section explores a specific theme and selection of works across historical periods and geographic regions determined by the instructor. Art Historical Studies I focuses on art prior to 1600; Art Historical Studies II focuses on art after 1600.

From the first red and black marks made by prehistoric peoples on cave walls to the royal purple robes of Byzantine emperors, the history of color invites us around the globe as we explore the materials, methods, and meanings behind the use of color in art. The eternal allure of gold, the purity of white, the passion for red, the precious ultramarine blue that conferred holiness will be explored, and even the absence of color in works that championed the simplicity of black ink on paper. Color, whether embraced or shunned, has always communicated. Investigations about the cultural importance of colors to indicate status and power, as well as the global trade in unique pigments made from insects, sea creatures, and stones, will all find their place in this broad-ranging exploration.

Art Historical Studies I: Fantastic Beasts--Animals in Global Art

The Art Historical Studies sequence provides an introductory and thematic study of art from prehistory to the present and recognizes multiple art histories. Emphasis is on critical thinking skills, visual analysis, and a broadened awareness of global cultural and historical contexts. Each section explores a specific theme and selection of works across historical periods and geographic regions determined by the instructor. Art Historical Studies I focuses on art prior to 1600; Art Historical Studies II focuses on art after 1600.

From the earliest paleolithic cave paintings to late medieval tapestries, images of animals frequently appear throughout the history of art across regions of the globe. This course will survey the depiction of animals in art before 1600 and investigate objects as diverse as Egyptian sculpture, illuminated bestiaries, and Tang dynasty tomb figures, among many other works. We will explore various stylistic approaches to the representation of animals, their artistic contexts, and how human relationships to the animal world are visually described. Additionally, we will consider animal-derived materials in the production of art and how they are utilized.

Art Historical Studies I: Gardens and Earthly Delights--Botanical Images in Global Art

The Art Historical Studies sequence provides an introductory and thematic study of art from prehistory to the present and recognizes multiple art histories. Emphasis is on critical thinking skills, visual analysis, and a broadened awareness of global cultural and historical contexts. Each section explores a specific theme and selection of works across historical periods and geographic regions determined by the instructor. Art Historical Studies I focuses on art prior to 1600; Art Historical Studies II focuses on art after 1600.

This course will examine images of plants, flowers, and vegetation from around the globe. Plants have been a key feature of human life as both food and a symbolic element in artistic traditions since the prehistoric period. We will survey botanical depictions in global art before 1600, ranging from flora in ancient Near Eastern relief sculpture, to the gleaming gold vegetal mosaics within the Dome of the Rock. The course will explore plants of all kinds—edible, decorative, and even poisonous—to investigate the role of images of plants in shaping visual culture, promoting political agendas, and symbolizing complex cultural ideas.

Art Historical Studies I: Global Art and Spiritual Devotion

The Art Historical Studies sequence provides an introductory and thematic study of art from prehistory to the present and recognizes multiple art histories. Emphasis is on critical thinking skills, visual analysis, and a broadened awareness of global cultural and historical contexts. Each section explores a specific theme and selection of works across historical periods and geographic regions determined by the instructor. Art Historical Studies I focuses on art prior to 1600; Art Historical Studies II focuses on art after 1600.

This course will examine the global theme of spiritual devotion. From the earliest moments of purposeful mark-making, humans have sought to understand their place and purpose in the natural and spiritual world and employed art to express these desires and their importance to their lives and lived experiences. Through this survey of the global art and architecture of devotion, we will explore the forms and functions of art produced for the express purpose of celebration, worship, memorialization, and moral practices. We will discuss art created across a wide geographic expanse including, but not limited to, East Asia, Africa, Western Europe, the Middle East, and Mesoamerica with a heightened focus on the five major global religions: Judaism, Christianity, Buddhism, Islam, and Hinduism.

Art Historical Studies I: Magic, Mystery, and Ritual in Global Art

The Art Historical Studies sequence provides an introductory and thematic study of art from prehistory to the present and recognizes multiple art histories. Emphasis is on critical thinking skills, visual analysis, and a broadened awareness of global cultural and historical contexts. Each section explores a specific theme and selection of works across historical periods and geographic regions determined by the instructor. Art Historical Studies I focuses on art prior to 1600; Art Historical Studies II focuses on art after 1600.

Despite the survival of numerous artifacts from the prehistoric, ancient, medieval, and early modern periods, there is still so much we do not know about the past. This class will embrace the mysterious nature of the past to explore depictions of magic and ritual in art and architecture from prehistory to the Renaissance. We will study objects used in religious rituals, artifacts believed to possess magical or mystical powers, and structures that still perplex scholars in their purpose or construction. These investigations will help us better understand the cultures and artistic traditions of bygone eras, while also interrogating the meaning, nature, and prevalence of magic and ritual in everyday life.

Art Historical Studies I: Set in Stone—Sacred Spaces and Religious Power

The Art Historical Studies sequence provides an introductory and thematic study of art from prehistory to the present and recognizes multiple art histories. Emphasis is on critical thinking skills, visual analysis, and a broadened awareness of global cultural and historical contexts. Each section explores a specific theme and selection of works across historical periods and geographic regions determined by the instructor. Art Historical Studies I focuses on art prior to 1600; Art Historical Studies II focuses on art after 1600.

This course focuses on the history of religious architecture from around the globe. Starting with the mysterious pre-historic French caves at Lascaux and ending with the lavish sixteenth-century Ottoman mosques, this survey examines the construction of holy places at the service of religious and political powers. We will study ancient shrines and sacred cities, cathedrals and monasteries, temples and pilgrimage sites built in different geographies and time periods. What functions did these sites have? How were they decorated? How did people move around them? What remains of these places? This survey will address these and more questions by looking at a wide range of structures created in the Americas, Western Europe, north Africa, the Middle East, India, and China.

Art Historical Studies I: Vanitas and Memento Mori in Global Art

The Art Historical Studies sequence provides an introductory and thematic study of art from prehistory to the present and recognizes multiple art histories. Emphasis is on critical thinking skills, visual analysis, and a broadened awareness of global cultural and historical contexts. Each section explores a specific theme and selection of works across historical periods and geographic regions determined by the instructor. Art Historical Studies I focuses on art prior to 1600; Art Historical Studies II focuses on art after 1600.

In this course, we will examine works that embody the universal themes of vanitas and memento mori. We will examine works of art that acknowledge the transience of life, and the wealth, knowledge and pleasures left behind. Studying these works, we will explore how various cultures and religions—past and present—address these universal concerns.

Art Historical Studies I: You Can Take It With You: Death and the Afterlife in Global Art

The Art Historical Studies sequence provides an introductory and thematic study of art from prehistory to the present and recognizes multiple art histories. Emphasis is on critical thinking skills, visual analysis, and a broadened awareness of global cultural and historical contexts. Each section explores a specific theme and selection of works across historical periods and geographic regions determined by the instructor. Art Historical Studies I focuses on art prior to 1600; Art Historical Studies II focuses on art after 1600.

This course will examine the global theme of death and the afterlife, which will focus on the anxieties of, and the practicalities and preparations for, an individual's, or group's, final journey into the next life. This 'next life' has been imagined and interpreted differently across civilizations and time, thus providing this class with diverse visual cultures to analyze. We will explore depictions of and/or objects and monuments associated with burials, remembrance, renewal, rebirth, and various religious beliefs concerning mortality. We will discuss funerary art and practice from many regions, including, but not limited to, East Asia, Africa, Western Europe, the Middle East, and Mesoamerica.

AHS 1002 – Art Historical Studies II

Current course options:

Art Historical Studies II: Art and Resistance

The Art Historical Studies sequence provides an introductory and thematic study of art from prehistory to the present and recognizes multiple art histories. Emphasis is on critical thinking skills, visual analysis, and a broadened awareness of global cultural and historical contexts. Each section explores a specific theme and selection of works across historical periods and geographic regions determined by the instructor. Art Historical Studies I focuses on art prior to 1600; Art Historical Studies II focuses on art after 1600.

This course focuses on art as a practice of resistance from the 18th century to the present. We will examine a range of strategies that artists have used to challenge aesthetic and cultural hierarchies and to comment on systems and structures of power.

Art Historical Studies II: Costume and Cornices in Global Art

The Art Historical Studies sequence provides an introductory and thematic study of art from prehistory to the present and recognizes multiple art histories. Emphasis is on critical thinking skills, visual analysis, and a broadened awareness of global cultural and historical contexts. Each section explores a specific theme and selection of works across historical periods and geographic regions determined by the instructor. Art Historical Studies I focuses on art prior to 1600; Art Historical Studies II focuses on art after 1600.

This course will examine the history of global art from 1600 to the present with a special emphasis on the decoration of bodies and buildings. Ranging from jewelry and tattoos to columns and domes, we will look closely at architectural and bodily adornment to study how they reflect the artistic expression, history, and ideology of their distinct periods.

Art Historical Studies II: Color and Culture

The Art Historical Studies sequence provides an introductory and thematic study of art from prehistory to the present and recognizes multiple art histories. Emphasis is on critical thinking skills, visual analysis, and a broadened awareness of global cultural and historical contexts. Each section explores a specific theme and selection of works across historical periods and geographic regions determined by the instructor. Art Historical Studies I focuses on art prior to 1600; Art Historical Studies II focuses on art after 1600.

From the advent of oil painting in Northern Europe to today's 256 hues manipulated on a screen in pixels, color in art has changed as new materials, new scientific insights, and new technologies have emerged. The history of color invites us around the globe as we explore materials and methods in a variety of artworks. Color has played many roles in communicating meaning, and continues to fascinate us as a cultural marker and means of personal expression. The psychology of color perception and color theory will also find their places in this broad-ranging exploration.

Art Historical Studies II: Live and Let Die: Grief, War, and Death in Global Art

The Art Historical Studies sequence provides an introductory and thematic study of art from prehistory to the present and recognizes multiple art histories. Emphasis is on critical thinking skills, visual analysis, and a broadened awareness of global cultural and historical contexts. Each section explores a specific theme and selection of works across historical periods and geographic regions determined by the instructor. Art Historical Studies I focuses on art prior to 1600; Art Historical Studies II focuses on art after 1600.

This course will examine the global theme of death, war, and grief and consider how artists, individuals, and societies react to these subjects through visual art. We will focus on world-shaping events to private personal traumas and how each of these, and everything in between, affected the artistic output from 1600 CE until today. We will explore depictions of and/or objects and monuments associated with battles, remembrance, tragedy, suffering, memorial, and struggle. Because these themes are universal to all humankind, this class will analyze diverse visual cultures, including, but not limited to, East Asia, Africa, Western Europe, and North America.

Art Historical Studies II: Vanitas and Memento Mori in Global Art

The Art Historical Studies sequence provides an introductory and thematic study of art from prehistory to the present and recognizes multiple art histories. Emphasis is on critical thinking skills, visual analysis, and a broadened awareness of global cultural and historical contexts. Each section explores a specific theme and selection of works across historical periods and geographic regions determined by the instructor. Art Historical Studies I focuses on art prior to 1600; Art Historical Studies II focuses on art after 1600.

In this course, we will examine works that embody the universal themes of vanitas and memento mori. We will examine works of art that acknowledge the transience of life, and the wealth, knowledge and pleasures left behind. Studying these works, we will explore how various cultures and religions—past and present—address these universal concerns.

Upper Division Liberal Arts Electives

Upper division liberal arts electives include courses from the following areas: art history, history, literature, philosophy, the sciences, and Chinese and Japanese language and culture courses. The designation “G/C” means that a course is a Global/Comparative Studies course.

All Liberal Arts courses are 3 credit lecture courses.

Glory: A Survey of Greek Art

[Ancient/Medieval] Creativity and constant change form the hallmarks of ancient Greek art and architecture. We explore the dynamic development of art and architecture in the Greek world from the 2000 to 1 B.C.—the palace of Minos, the ruins of Santorini, the citadel of Mycenae, the Parthenon of Athens and the Great Altar at Pergamon. Further, we evaluate the impact of gender (Amazons, Medusa, and more), the economy, foreign connections, and warfare on Greek imagery. Visits to the Nelson-Atkins enhance our understanding of the Greek accomplishment.

AHS 2401

Survey of American Art I

This course will explore the history of American art and culture from the colonial period to the close of the 19th century. Lectures will analyze how forms of Native American art and European art affected the development of American architecture, sculpture, painting, printmaking, the decorative arts, photography and the early cinema. Equal consideration will be given to the rise of post- Revolutionary American artists' involvement in established international art movements such as Romanticism, Realism and Impressionism.

Survey of American Art II

[Modern] 1900 to 1945 is one of the most dynamic and fascinating periods in American art. At the dawn of the 20th century, French Impressionism still exerted a powerful influence on American artists, many of whom used this imported style to document the gentility of the Gilded Age. But revolution was in the air. In ever-increasing numbers American artists became involved with issues concerning national identity and modernity. They sought to create a distinctly American form of modern art; one that expressed contemporary American life and values and, perhaps most importantly, one that owed no debt to European art and culture. This course will investigate this momentous shift that occurred in American art as seen in the paintings, sculptures, photographs and architecture of the period.

Survey of African American Art

This course will begin with an exploration of West African cultures and then follow their descendants to the New World. We will examine the aesthetic expressions of African American artists from colonial times to the present while incorporating the social, political and religious influences on their art forms. Our study will include painting, sculpture, photography, and video art. Major figures will include Henry O. Tanner, Jean-Michel Basquiat, Romare Bearden, Spike Lee, and Rashid Johnson.

Survey of Modern and Postmodern Architecture

[Contemporary; Modern] This course will introduce modern and postmodern architecture, examining new technologies in materials and construction, spatial organization, building design, style details and interior programming of 20th- and 21st-century Western architecture. Stylistic movements, intellectual and artistic origins, and major architects will be discussed, including the relation of architecture to art. Regional, national and international trends, and the reshaping of the environment and society by urban planning and landscape architecture, will be explored within the context of a social, political, economic and cultural history. Case studies of local buildings are designed to increase student awareness of local architecture and architectural resources.

Survey of African Art

[G/C] This course serves as a survey of the arts and cultures of Africa. Lecture topics will include the arts of initiation, masquerade, figure sculpture, textiles, ceramics, architecture, royal regalia, female artistic production, African systems of belief, contemporary art in Africa and issues related to the collecting and exhibiting of African art. The organization of the course attempts to aid students in identifying major artistic styles in Africa. Course content will also demonstrate how historical background and belief systems influence and inform artistic production. We will discuss the collecting and display of African art in order to examine issues surrounding Western perceptions of African objects when viewed outside of their intended contexts. The course goal is to teach recognition of objects from Africa and place them in context, resulting in a better understanding of historical and contemporary cultures, promoting greater awareness and sensitivity to issues of diversity, respecting different viewpoints, appreciating new concepts and expanding an understanding of the world and the meaning of art.

Survey of Asian Art

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] In this course we will examine art produced in India, China and Japan from prehistoric to modern times. Painting, prints, ceramics, sculpture and architecture will be examined both chronologically and thematically, noting the spread of various styles throughout India, China, Japan, Korea and Southeast Asia. We will take into consideration the various social, religious and cultural contexts under which the art was produced.

Survey of Chinese Art

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] In this course we will examine the art of China beginning with its emergence in the Neolithic period through modern times. We will discuss the great burial finds of such periods as the Shang, Qin and Han Dynasties, see the development of art related to Buddhism and Daoism (Taoism) and explore the variety of paintings and ceramics produced in the Song Dynasty and the periods that follow. Paintings, sculptures, bronzes, ceramics, jades and lacquer ware will be examined both chronologically and thematically. We will take into consideration the various social, religious and cultural contexts under which the art was produced.

Survey of Islamic Art and Architecture

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] This course will trace the history of Islamic art and architecture beginning with its formation in the 7th century. We will consider a wide variety of media — including textiles, ceramics, manuscripts and metalwork — as we explore this diverse culture. Emphasis will be placed on understanding artworks within their religious, political and cultural contexts.

Survey of Japanese Art

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] In this course we will examine art produced in Japan from prehistoric to modern times. Painting, prints, ceramics, sculpture and architecture will be examined to some extent in a chronological sequence, but often by topics concerned with a dominant theme or type of art. Throughout the course, we will be taking into consideration the various social, religious and cultural contexts in which the art was produced.

Survey of Native Art of the Americas

[G/C] This course explores the arts of the native Americas, including the Olmec, Maya and Aztecs of Mesoamerica, the Nasca, Moche and Inca of South America and North American cultures of the Southwest, Eastern Woodlands, Plains and Northwest Coast regions. Students will have the opportunity to learn about a diverse range of prehistoric to contemporary Native American art forms — monumental earthworks; sculpture and masking; clothing and adornment; basketry and ceramics; drawing and painting; and dance and ritual. We will investigate the role of native arts in traditional social and ritual life and explores such topics as the politics of collection and exhibition and the dynamics of commoditization and tourism. The goal of this course is to teach recognition of objects from the Western Hemisphere and place them in a cultural context, resulting in a better understanding of historical and contemporary cultures, promoting greater awareness and sensitivity to issues of diversity, respecting different viewpoints, appreciating new concepts and expanding on an understanding of the world and the meaning of art.

Survey of Oceanic and Aboriginal Art

[G/C] This course will introduce the arts of Oceania (the Pacific Ocean islands of Polynesia, Micronesia and Melanesia) and traditional arts of Australian aborigines by exploring the visual and performance arts from the earliest archaeological finds to contemporary creations. The organization of the course attempts to aid students in identifying major artistic styles in these regions. The arts of sculpture, masquerade, textiles, pottery, architecture, regalia and body art will be discussed within the historical and cultural context of the creators. The Western view of these cultures and the collecting of Oceanic and Australian art will also be discussed.

Survey of Latin American Art

[G/C] This course is an overview of the arts, architecture, and material culture produced in the area that is now Latin America. Organized chronologically in three periods—pre-Hispanic, colonial, and modern—this survey studies the artistic heritage of the region south of the United States. We start by examining objects made in precious and semi-precious materials, ceramics, textiles, and the architecture of ancient Indigenous cultures. This is followed by the analysis of the painting, sculpture and material culture produced in the Spanish colonial period. Finally, the survey ends with the study of the artworks produced in the region after its independence from colonial powers. This last section emphasizes the global nature of local art movements and the work of various influential artists of the period, especially women.

Survey of Costume History

[Modern; Renaissance/Baroque] This course will survey the history of Western costume and fashion beginning with early clothing from Ancient Middle East to present day United States and Europe. Over the course of the semester, we will explore the development of clothing from function – to protect the body – to an expression of one's social condition, an expression of culture, and the birth of the concept of fashion. By studying costume and how it changes over time we shall examine many interesting perspectives about people, different social classes, and political and social changes. The evolution of clothing will be studied in conjunction with correlated fine arts, literature, decorative arts, sculpture, and architecture. Socio-economic, religious, and political influences on dress and fashion will be discussed. Emphasis is placed on research, critical thinking, and understanding the relevance of the course as it relates to current design.

Topics in Ancient/Medieval Art: Roman Art and Architecture

[Ancient/Medieval] This course will explore the Republic and Empire periods of the ancient Roman culture. In order to understand the meaning and importance of these objects for the Romans, these artworks will be discussed in terms of their cultural and historical contexts, with reference to pertinent political, social, religious, and cultural institutions. Paintings, mosaics, sculptures, monuments, bridges and buildings that span centuries and have endured for millennia express themes of leadership and propaganda, as well as the changing religion from polytheism to Christianity in the Late Empire. Students will read primary resources preserved in Latin, as well as texts of great Roman writers who spoke of these visual arts traditions. The preservation of Greek art forms by the Romans, as well as the inspiration to later cultures will be addressed, and the Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art collection will be incorporated into the course.

Topics in Ancient Art: Pompeii

[Ancient/Medieval] We examine the art and architecture of Pompeii, Herculaneum, and nearby villas. Special attention is paid to the art of the elite: its style and quality and how it reflects political, economic, and cultural forces. We also consider the politics of public art; the power and meaning of myths portrayed in domestic wall painting; and the reinforcement of gender roles through art in both the public and private spheres.

Topics in Ancient/Medieval Art: The Face of Power—Art and Architecture in the Service of Empire

[Ancient/Medieval] We explore how new rulers--both men and women--establish and solidify their authority by the commission of great--and often radical--art and architecture. We also see how later generations look back on these works as models--or defile them. We begin with Queen Hatshepsut's quest for legitimacy and Akhenaten's and Nefertiti's ill-fated and radical rule. After exploring the propaganda of the great age of Athens and the imagery of Alexander the Great, we look to Augustus, the Empress Livia, and Rome's great enemy, Cleopatra.

Topics in Ancient Art: Built for Eternity—From Stonehenge to the Pyramids to the Great Mosques

[G/C; Ancient/Medieval] The startling discovery of Stonehenge's ancestor 7,000 years earlier in distant Turkey sets the stage for a vigorous rethinking of ancient western architecture. Politics come to the fore: Hatshepsut's flair for propaganda at her mortuary temple, Akhenaten's building a new city, and the Roman emperor's construction of the Colosseum. Practical issues abound: Just how good is mudbrick? Roman concrete? How did the Greeks earthquake-proof their temples? How did the Egyptians raise an obelisk? Religious contention is explored: Christians cannibalizing pagan Roman temples; mosques challenging Christian churches. Non-Western comparisons are drawn: from India's Chausath Yogini Temple to Mali's Great Mosque. The impact of everlasting ancient architecture on the modern world is charted from Pei's Pyramide to Holl's addition to the Nelson-Atkins.

Topics in Ancient Art: Art in Context--The Greek Experiment

[Ancient/Medieval] We explore the unprecedented development of Archaic and Classical Greek sculpture and the powerful political, social, and economic forces behind it. Greek perceptions of gender (Amazons, Medusa, and more) and the development of "The Other" (the barbaric enemy) lead to a greater understanding of the powerful imagery of this art.

AHS 3011

Topics in Ancient Art: A Darkness Blacker and Denser Than Any Night—The Art and Archaeology of Pompeii, Herculaneum, and the Bay of Naples

[Ancient/Medieval] The art and history of the ancient cities along the Bay of Naples in south Italy are full of excitement and drama. In this class you will travel back in time to learn about the violent, triumphant, bloody, and sometimes bawdy art and archaeology of these famous cities, from their origins as settlements established by local south Italian groups, to their sudden, violent ends as Roman colonies in 79 CE. We will move through the cities both chronologically and thematically to develop a close familiarity with the art, history, and topography of Pompeii, Herculaneum, and other nearby cities, while also exploring their significance within the wider context of the Roman Empire. In addition to the history, art, and archaeology, we will discuss the excavations of the cities covered by the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius to consider the reception of ancient art in the early modern period.

AHS 3012

Topics in Ancient Art: The Art of Greek and Roman Mythology

[Ancient/Medieval] Stories of Greek and Roman mythology have long captivated the interest of artists and makers. Ranging from early Greek painted pottery, to modern TV series, ancient myth has been a fruitful source of inspiration from antiquity to the present. This class examines artistic representations of classical mythology in a variety of media. Each meeting will focus on either a single story or later receptions of Greek and Roman mythology. After reading one or more versions of the ancient myth, we will examine the ways artists communicated those stories in visual, written, and/or cinematic forms. Students will finish the semester with not only a fuller understanding of the varied stories of classical mythology, but also its enduring impact on visual landscapes throughout history.

AHS 3100

Topics in Medieval Art: Sense and Sensibilia

[Ancient/Medieval] This course will explore how vision, light, touch, pain, sound, smell, and taste were evoked or incorporated in the art and architecture of the Middle Ages. From small, personal objects to large, sacred spaces, from devotional works to scenes of courtly romance, we will examine a variety of art from this thousand-year period of history. This course will further investigate how materials such as wood, ivory, cloth, glass, and parchment informed the sensory reception of art among medieval viewers. Additionally, we will contextualize our exploration within a broader understanding of medieval attitudes toward the senses and their relationship to the spiritual realm and imagination.

AHS 3101

Topics in Medieval Art: Manuscript Illumination Across the Medieval Globe

[Ancient/Medieval] This course will explore the development and use of illuminated manuscripts across the medieval world. Students will study the history of the book from 300 to 1600 concentrating on the varied roles visual imagery plays in textual reception and interpretation and the status and use of illuminated books in medieval and early modern cultures. In addition to discussing the predominant styles of ancient, medieval, and early modern illumination, participants in this course will consider such topics as methods of book production, the development of visual cycles for secular and religious manuscripts, and the relationship between western and non-western manuscript forms.

Topics in Medieval Art: Medieval and Early Modern Material Culture Across the Globe

[Medieval] In this course we will investigate the rich potential of things. Through readings and discussion on medieval and early modern material culture, we will study artifacts that might have been considered "everyday objects" (like ceramics, glass and metal vessels, textiles, jewelry, armor, manuscripts, etc.) and discover the meanings that these cultural products held for their creators as well as their consumers. The first half of the course will focus on the roles of the makers and their materials and techniques of production. Our investigatory lens will then shift to discover more about the circulation, reception, and historic and geographic contexts in which we find these objects—exploring what a study of material culture can reveal about the religious, political, economic, cultural, and intellectual history of the medieval and early-modern world.

Topics in Renaissance Art: Northern Renaissance

[Renaissance/Baroque] This course will examine the arts of Northern Europe from the late 14th through the late 16th century. Emphasis will be placed on German and Netherlandish artistic traditions with additional attention directed toward French and English art. We will study a variety of media including illuminated manuscripts, panel painting, prints and sculpture. Course lectures will also address issues of methodology in the study of Northern Renaissance art, including the debate regarding "hidden symbolism" in works of the period. While many Northern Renaissance works of art are religious in subject matter, consideration will also be made regarding secular traditions such as landscape and portrait painting.

Topics in Renaissance Art: Italian Renaissance Sculpture

[Renaissance/Baroque] This course will examine sculpture produced in Italy between c. 1400 and 1600. Through both primary sources and recent secondary scholarship, we will study the history of Italian Renaissance sculpture through works by artists like Donatello, Ghiberti, Michelangelo and Cellini. We will explore a variety of issues including technique, stylistic change, the artist's workshop and the relationship between patron and artist for both public and private commissions.

Topics in Renaissance Art: The Art of Venice

[Renaissance/Baroque] "La Serenissima," the Most Serene Republic, at the height of its power during the Renaissance: Venice developed its own distinct society, political system, religious traditions and art. For centuries, numerous painters, sculptors and architects contributed to Venice's fame. In this course, we will examine the arts of Venice from about the 14th century through the 18th century. Emphasis will be placed upon great artists like Giovanni Bellini, Giorgione, Titian, Tintoretto and Veronese who developed a rich "colorist" approach to painting that rivaled the painting traditions of Florence. While many Venetian works are religious in subject matter, discussions will also concern mythological and pastoral traditions, portraits, landscapes and, of course, fine examples of sculpture and architecture. The art will be studied within the context of Venice's culture, addressing such topics as the impact of the various "scuole" upon the arts, the "myth of Venice" and the influence of the theater.

Topics in Renaissance Art: Renaissance Florence—Patronage and Politics, 1400-1600

[Renaissance/Baroque] Dirty politics is not a new phenomenon. From 1400 to 1600, revenge, intrigue, and assassination attempts were part of the Florentine political scene as power volleyed between the Albizzi and Medici families, to the religious zealot Savonarola and statesman Piero Soderini, and then back to the Medici popes and dukes. All the while, art served as a signifier of political power for each faction. This course will study the works of art and architecture that were commissioned for display in the city's churches, piazza, and the palazzi during this period, and consider how the urban landscape served as a venue for patrons to promote their own political propaganda.

Topics in Renaissance Art: Bosch and Bruegel—The Ordinary and Extraordinary

[Renaissance/Baroque] This course investigates the unique and sometimes enigmatic art of two Netherlandish painters, Hieronymus Bosch (c. 1450-1516) and Pieter Bruegel the Elder (c. 1525-1569). We will discuss the social, religious, and political aspects of Dutch and Flemish life that provide a context to understand the art. We will encounter works that reflect everyday life and those that visualize a fantastical realm. Issues of interpretation will be explored, especially concerning those related to the comic mode, moralizing messages, and alchemy.

Topics in Baroque Art: Northern Baroque

[Renaissance/Baroque] This course will examine the art produced in northern Europe (England, France and the Netherlands) during the 17th century. Our primary focus will be on some major artists such as Poussin, Rembrandt, Rubens, Van Dyck and Vermeer, but we will also explore important developments in still life painting, landscapes, portraiture and scenes of everyday life. We will consider the historical, cultural, religious and economic factors that influenced the art, as well as discuss how some specific interests in optics and cartography may be manifested in some artists' works.

Topics in Modern Art: Constructivism and the Bauhaus

[Modern] This course will deal with the utopian experiments in art and theory to emerge from the Russian Constructivist movement and the German Bauhaus academy in the years between the two World Wars. In both Constructivism and The Bauhaus, one finds some of the most influential ideas on the integration of art and everyday life in history — affecting our world to this very day — which we will study through the objects and writings created by the artists associated with each. Since the course deals as much with history as with art, we will also be exploring the different historical events, artistic media and philosophical theories that inform the artworks presented in the class.

Topics in Modern Art: Impressionism and Post-Impressionism

[Modern] In this course we will study two major art movements of the late 19th century: Impressionism and Post Impressionism. We will consider artworks within their particular cultural, political and historical context as well as discuss outside influences, (e.g. Japanese Prints), technical achievements and innovative formal elements. Specific issues will be examined such as artist's responses to the new urban environment of Paris, class and gender distinctions, conflicts between aesthetic values and the art market, and myths concerning some well-known artists.

Topics in Modern Art: The History of Modern Design

[Modern] This course examines the development of design from the 19th century to the present, with particular attention focused on its relationship with other major art, architecture, and design movements. These are viewed in the context of political, social, economic, scientific, and cultural developments that occurred throughout history. Architecture, graphic design, industrial design, “decorative arts,” product design, photography, painting, television, film, and new technologies all affect each other in fluid and often unpredictable ways. Since the course deals as much with history as with art, students will also learn and be expected to understand the different historical events, media, and philosophical theories that inform the work presented in the class, as well as relate how these “design” objects are inextricably connected to the “fine arts” of the period from which they come.

Topics in Contemporary Art: The Postmodern Condition

[Contemporary] Postmodernism is less about style and more about strategies of making art. This course will begin by examining significant works of art from the late 1970s and early 1980s that counter aspects of modernism and embrace critiques of originality. Then we will study postmodern and contemporary artists who engage in a range of conceptual strategies that include simulation and appropriation, parody and performativity, the anti-aesthetic and anarchitecture, activism and deconstruction, and doubt and failure. Photography, video, painting, performance, bricolage, sculpture, installation art, and institutional critique will be discussed.

Topics in Contemporary Art: Minimalism and Its Discontents

[Modern or Contemporary] Focusing on art of the 1960s and 1970s, this course is an extensive study of minimalism and the divergent practices of post-minimalism, process art, and conceptual art. Artists to be considered include Frank Stella, Carl Andre, Dan Flavin, Donald Judd, Anne Truitt, John McCracken, Jo Baer, Agnes Martin, Robert Morris, Sol LeWitt, Eva Hesse, Lee Bontecou, Richard Serra, Robert Smithson, Gordon Matta-Clark and others. The readings will include primary source material as well as recent art historical scholarship that uses various methodologies.

Topics in Contemporary Art: Art in the Galleries

[Contemporary] This course investigates contemporary issues in art, including themes of appropriation, multiculturalism, gender identity, globalism, environmental/social/political commentary, and art as activism. We will make use of local, national, and international publications, as well as PBS's Art21 documentaries to explore themes and processes. We will use eyes-on experience of the vast art resources available locally, including museums, galleries, and publications. Designed to experience art in a variety of settings, writing assignments will increase your awareness of local art institutions, refine your visual acuity, enhance your research and descriptive writing skills, and develop a broader view of contemporary artists in Kansas City and beyond.

Topics in Contemporary Art: The Politics of Abstraction

[Contemporary] Countering conventional claims about the purity of abstraction, this course focuses on the political and social potential of abstract art from 1960 to the present. We will examine a range of media to explore how artists convey meaning through the language of abstraction and material choices. The course will include case studies on the following artists: Donald Judd, Frank Stella, Agnes Martin, Byron Kim, Glenn Ligon, David Hammons, Harmony Hammond, Felix Gonzalez-Torres, Maya Lin, Rachel Whiteread, Zarina Hashmi, El Anatsui, Julie Mehretu and Mark Bradford.

AHS 3516

Topics in Contemporary Art: Institutional Critique

[Contemporary; Social Practice minor] This course focuses on the artistic practice of institutional critique. We will study the development of institutional critique from the 1960s to the present. We will examine a range of strategies that artists have used to challenge aesthetic and cultural hierarchies and to comment on systems and structures of power.

AHS 3517

Topics in Contemporary Art: Video Art

[Contemporary; Sound minor] This course focuses on video art. We will study the development of video art from the 1960s to the present. We will examine a diverse range of works, including early experimentations with television monitors and large projections with surrounding sound.

AHS 3600

Topics in Asian Art: Asian Animation

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] In this course we will examine, through viewing and discussing various animations, the development and relative popularity of animation in Asian countries, particularly in China and Japan. We will consider differences in political and social conditions that had an impact upon animation in these countries as well as influences from the West. The nature of animation before and after the Cultural Revolution in China will be addressed, noting the dominance of Japan's animation production in more recent times. We will discuss the place of animation within the culture of post-war Japan and the shifting societal perspectives that affect the content and style of animation. Issues of identity, sexuality and gender within the Japanese anime subculture will also be explored.

AHS 3601

Topics in Asian Art: Asian Ceramics

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] In this course, we will examine the history of ceramics in China, Japan, and Korea. We will study the simple to complex forms of Neolithic pottery produced by the Yangshao and Jōmon cultures to refined examples of celadons from the Chinese Song and Korean Koryo Dynasties. Our concerns will range from an understanding of the elegantly defined Ming Dynasty porcelains and the market for them to notions of wabi-sabi reflected in rustic tea wares of Momoyama Period Japan. We will also consider how contemporary ceramists respond to tradition or experiment with technical innovations and new styles. Discussions will focus on examining historical contexts, materials and techniques, aesthetic concerns, and utilitarian to expressive, spiritual functions.

AHS 3605

Topics in Japanese Art: Art of the Edo Period

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] When Tokugawa Ieyasu assumed the title of shogun and established Edo as his seat of power, a new era of stability emerged. Despite the closure of Japan to foreign contacts early in the seventeenth century, the Edo Period (1603-1868) became an artistically rich and diverse time period. This course explores a range of art from artists who enjoyed the patronage of the aristocracy and shoguns, to the emergence of art that appealed to the burgeoning urban culture of Edo itself. We will study the variety of art produced during the Edo Period including Kanō and Tosa school works, Rinpa, Ukiyo-e (Japanese prints), art related to Zen Buddhism, Nanga (Bunjinga), and Western-influenced art. We will examine paintings, prints, architecture, gardens, ceramics, calligraphy and textiles, taking into consideration the various social, religious, and cultural contexts under which the art was produced.

Topics in Japanese Art: Contemporary Japanese Art

[Contemporary; G/C; Asian Studies minor] This course will examine the art of Japan from primarily the 1960s to today, with some consideration of artistic movements that arose after World War II such as the Gutai Bijutsu Kyokai (Gutai Art Association). We will study various groups and individual artists who respond to natural materials and spiritual sources that have long been a part of the traditional Japanese aesthetic, such as the Mono-ha group, to movements that reflect a dialogue with the global context of avant-garde art. We will explore the unique qualities of many contemporary Japanese artists' works that reference the legacy of Japanese art history while creating a dynamic interplay with such popular cultural phenomena as "manga" and anime. Discussions will focus on issues of nationalism, cultural memory, spatiality, temporality, Western influences, imaging violence and cuteness, gender and popular culture.

Topics in Global/Comparative Studies: Art and Performance of the African Diaspora

[G/C] This course focuses on the art, altars and performance found in the Maroon cultures of Suriname, Candomblé, and Umbanda practitioners in Brazil, Santería in Cuba, Voodoo in Haiti, Rastafarianism in Jamaica, and folk artists of the southern United States, as well as international contemporary artists continuing these traditions and addressing issues like cultural identity in their art.

Topics in Global/Comparative Studies: Pre-Colombian/Meso-American Art

[G/C] This course will explore the rich and varied history of Pre-Colombian and Meso-American art and architecture. The regions covered in this course are the present-day countries of Belize, Guatemala, Honduras and Mexico. The rough time period of this class will be from approximately 1500 BCE (before common era, or BC) through approximately 1500 AD (or CE, common era). The right to go beyond this time frame is reserved to show and expound on important subjects. This course will also cover the major theoretical and ethical issues related to this art, as well as the histories of its discovery.

Topics in Asian Art: Contemporary Chinese Art

[Contemporary; G/C; Asian Studies minor] This course will examine the art of China from the latter part of the 20th century to today. We will study various groups and individual artists who redefined the content and aesthetics of art, diverging from the state sanctioned Social Realist style. We will discuss how complex and changing political, historical, and social contexts in China have influenced art since the end of the Cultural Revolution, with the development of avant-garde movements from The Stars Group and Xiamen Dada to the formulation of Political Pop and Cynical Realism. The works of Ai Weiwei, Cai Guo-Qiang, Xu Bing, Zhou Hongbin, Qiu Zhijie, Cao Fei, Zhang Huan, and many others will be discussed, illuminating the range of influences, approaches, and concerns to be found in contemporary Chinese art. We will examine a wide range of media and discover artists who confront the inheritance of the past as well as those who engage in a continuing dialogue with it.

Topics in Japanese Art: Japanese Prints

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] In this course we will examine Japanese woodblock prints from their inception during the 17th century to the 20th century. Particular emphasis, however, will be placed upon the study of ukiyo-e (“Pictures of the Floating World”) produced during the Edo period (1615-1868). We will examine the history of prints, their subject matter, major artists, printmaking techniques and issues of print connoisseurship and collecting, as well as the connection of prints to kabuki and other cultural and political influences. Additionally, we will study the influence of woodblock prints on Western art during the end of the 19th century and discuss how modern Japanese prints reflect the growing internationalization of the 20th century art world.

Topics in Asian Art: Artistic Objects Made in Imperial China

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] This course examines artistic objects made from different materials in Chinese imperial period, particularly during the Ming and Qing times. Focusing on things made with bronze, jade, lacquer, wood, bamboo, and silk, we will look into the subjects, material, technique, functions, symbolism, as well as aesthetics and taste to achieve an understanding of a broader visual and material culture of the time. Through the examination of these objects, we will look at how Chinese people lived in everyday life: what did they use and wear? How did they present gifts? What did they do in leisure time? How did the use of these objects mark social boundaries? We will interpret these objects within historical, cultural and religious contexts and consider cultural exchanges between regions and between regions and the imperial court. The topics will be examined both chronologically and thematically.

Topics in Global/Comparative Studies: Textiles of the World

[G/C] From commissioned luxury items to homemade objects of utility, textiles are pervasive across human cultures, time periods, and social stations. This course will cover a selection of textile traditions from regions around the globe, including Europe, West Africa, East Asia, and the Americas. We will discuss how artists have deployed techniques such as weaving, embroidery, and block printing in the creation and decoration of textiles and how these processes inform function as well as visual and textural qualities. Our exploration will interrogate the lack of textiles in the traditional art historical canon and consider methods for interpreting these objects in their cultural and historical contexts. Given the timely exhibition, Weaving Splendor: Treasures of Asian Textiles, at the Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art, the class will also investigate how global trade and the availability of materials have influenced developments in production and artistic exchange over time.

Topics in Global/Comparative Studies: Art of the Maya

[Ancient/Medieval; G/C] This course focuses on the art and architecture of the Maya. The Maya thrived in Mesoamerica (Mexico, Guatemala, Honduras, and Belize) as powerful city-states ruled by kings for 1300 years. The visual world of the Maya includes ruins of vast cities with temple-pyramids, large monuments and exquisite figurines, wall paintings, painted pottery, and even rare late manuscripts. The deciphered glyph system of writing used by the Maya reveals many insights into this ancient culture. We will explore many of the latest discoveries of Maya sites that continue to be made using advanced technologies, including LiDAR (light detection and ranging) and satellite images.

Topics in Asian Art: Buddhist Art in East Asia

[Medieval; G/C; Asian Studies minor] This course will examine Buddhism through the visual arts of China, Japan, and Korea. We will explore temples, cave sites, painted scrolls, spiritual sculptures, and other artistic media traditions from these regions and consider these works using visual, historical, political, and social perspectives. Through museum visits and in-class discussions, students will analyze artworks by means of regional and historical contexts, but also consider how Buddhist-related material functions within museums and local collections today.

Topics in Global/Comparative Studies: Art of the Iberian World

[G/C; Renaissance/Baroque] This course examines the artistic production of the Iberian world, globally understood (Spain, Portugal, and the Americas) between 1492-1800. It addresses topics such as imperialism, colonialism, and Christian evangelization. Moreover, it discusses the artistic and commercial intersections between Europe, the Americas, and Asia. Besides studying the work of renowned masters of the Spanish Golden Age—such as Velázquez, Zurbarán, Ribera, and Murillo—, this course focuses on the artistic production of marginalized groups, including those with Indigenous and African ancestry, as well as women.

Topics in Art & Religion: Spiritual Landscapes

Secular landscape painting emerged as a genre of painting during the Renaissance and Baroque, yet often could be interpreted on a spiritual level. Even earlier, Chinese and Japanese artists used brush and ink to express intangible relationships between man and nature. In this course, we will discuss spiritual associations within these early landscapes (Western and Asian), as well as explore the broad range of spiritualized landscape conceptions, from the 18th and 19th century images invested with notions of the sublime to the 20th century expanses of Newman and Rothko. Discussions will focus on issues of construction, artificial and natural boundaries, nature as moral exemplar, individual journeys and cultural memory.

Topics in Art & Society: Renaissance Rivals

[Renaissance/Baroque] This course will examine late Italian Renaissance art framed by the rivalry between Leonardo, Michelangelo, Raphael and Titian. Through both primary sources and recent secondary scholarship, we will study how their competitive natures and egos led them to be the most successful artists of their time. We will explore a variety of issues including technique, stylistic change and patronage, as we learn about these artists and this intense period of artistic change in Italy.

Topics in Art & Society: Representations of Foreign Peoples in Early Modern Northern Europe

[Ancient/Medieval or Renaissance/Baroque] Throughout history, different cultures and groups have sought to better understand themselves by defining what they are not. In the European Middle Ages, this impulse birthed a variety of representations and literary accounts of monsters inhabiting the edges of the world, barbaric and cannibalistic non-believers, and distant peoples or opposing factions that were defined strictly by their strangeness. Through a mixture of fantasy and fear, these Othered figures reinforced the medieval Christian worldview, serving as manifestations of what happens when Western expectations of religion and civility go astray. As the world became increasingly mobile in the premodern era, however, these seemingly firm classifications of difference began to break down. When faced with an expanding globe and the emergence of trade routes and political alliances that brought previously near-mythical populations into direct contact with Europeans, the similarities between Us and Them became likewise unavoidable. This class will explore the process of Othering and how it manifests visually within medieval and Early modern Europe (ca. 1100-1650). The course will center on the study of manuscripts and prints and examine how sameness and difference were depicted and how they functioned at various times and for different audiences. We will likewise interrogate how these categories were negotiated by artists and thinkers alike moving into the Renaissance. Throughout we will also interrogate a variety of complex racial, ethnic, and religious issues that continue to plague us well into our modern era.

Topics in Art & Society: Papal Patronage and Power

As the head of the Catholic Church, the pope wields immense power and influence that reaches worldwide. This course will examine the history of papal commissions and collections from the medieval period to the present. Topics will include large-scale commissions such as Michelangelo's Sistine Chapel ceiling painted under Pope Julius II as well as the much more recent papal collection of modern and contemporary religious art. We will explore a wide variety of works as we consider how popes throughout history have used visual imagery to convey both religious and political agendas.

Topics in Art & Society: Art History on Film

[Modern] You see them everywhere — films about art history. They appear on PBS, the History Channel, the Discovery Channel and, particularly recently, in our local movie theater. In the 1950s and 60s movies such as “The Agony and the Ecstasy,” “Moulin Rouge” and “Lust for Life” depicted that era's version of the lives of famous artists Michelangelo, Toulouse Lautrec and Vincent Van Gogh. More recently, “The Da Vinci Code,” “Angels and Demons,” “The Rape of Europa” and “The Cave of Forgotten Dreams” have been released. Because these films have become so common, it is important for us to be good consumers of this entertainment and infotainment. In this class we will view many of the films from the television channels most commonly showing “historical documentaries” as well as some of the theater releases and then explore the accuracies and inaccuracies contained in them, as well as the kinds of half-truths which sell tickets and raise ratings. Beyond viewing films and discussion, there will be readings, a few short papers and one longer paper based on a film of your own choosing.

Topics in Art & Society: Trends vs. Tradition in German Painting & Sculpture (1430-1930)

[Modern] Because of its central location on the European continent, Germany has served as an important juncture for artistic developments and related ideologies that circulated between northern and southern Europe from the early modern to early contemporary periods. Through an in-depth analysis of the lives and works of artists such as Tilman Riemenschneider, Albrecht Dürer, Martin Schongauer, Hans Holbein the Younger, Matthias Grünewald, Caspar David Friedrich, Käthe Kollwitz, Ernst Ludwig Kirchner, Franz Marc, Otto Dix, Max Beckman, among others, this course will trace how German artists remained true to their region's established artistic traditions, while adopting foreign stylistic trends, through periods ranging from the Renaissance and Reformation to German Expressionism and Neue Sachlichkeit (New Objectivity).

Topics in Art & Society: Female Patronage

[Modern] Female patronage, perhaps more appropriately called ‘matronage’, has not received as much attention as that of its patriarchal counterpart. This course will explore the subject of secular women patrons of art and architecture with examples from the Late Medieval, Renaissance, and Baroque periods, the 1893 World’s Columbian Exhibition in Chicago, and to the present day. Readings will focus on women patrons throughout the ages who commissioned works that enriched the visual culture of their individual eras. The Spring 2021 class will include an in-depth analysis of a local female patron, Virginia Greenlease, whose generosity resulted in the creation of the Van Ackeren Collection of Religious Art. Students will actively study some of the sculptures and paintings from this collection that are now on display at the Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art.

Topics in Art & Society: Art and Ecocriticism—Medieval to Modern

[Social Practice minor] As issues of sustainability and environmental impact have become increasingly pressing concerns, scholars and artists alike have sought to interrogate humanity’s complex relationship with nature. Ecocriticism emerged in response to this drive, exploring how different peoples throughout time have understood the role of nature and the value it held within their culture. This course will examine art and architecture from diverse cultures spanning from the Middle Ages to our modern era. The class will investigate the central role that nature has played in spiritual, political, and social concerns throughout history, as well as how artists today use ecocriticism to comment upon environmental problems and humanitarian issues across the globe. We will discuss works from a multitude of locations, including but not limited to, the Middle East, Western Europe, Africa, the Americas, and the Pacific Islands.

Topics in Art & Society: Women, Art, and Society

This course examines the various roles women have played in the history of art – as artists, patrons, teachers, subjects and activists. Students in this course will investigate (chronologically and thematically) prominent women in history who have had significant impact on the arts from the Middle Ages to the present. In addition to women as active participants in the art world, we will also study the ways in which women have been depicted in art (religious, mythological, and secular images of women) – beginning with the prehistoric and Egyptian periods and continuing to the present day. Lastly, we will investigate activism of contemporary women artists working today. Artists will be studied in slide and video format in class, through the reading of primary sources, and in site visit opportunities to local museums.

Topics in Theory & Criticism: Contemporary Art and Theory

[Contemporary] This course is a study of significant philosophical and critical theories that influence aesthetic debates in visual art and culture from 1960 to the present. Knowledge and understanding of the various methodologies used to create and interpret works of art is emphasized, with special attention given to the emergence of New Art History. Students will gain the skills and knowledge necessary to apply these methodologies to their studio practice through course content, readings, writing assignments and discussions in class.

Art History Seminar: Painting and Polychromy in the Ancient Mediterranean

[Seminar; Ancient/Medieval] The ancient world was full of color. Contrary to modern imaginations, which place white marble sculptures within monumental monochromatic structures, few surfaces in ancient Greece, Rome, Etruria, or Egypt went left untouched by color. This course examines paintings and surfaces decorated in multiple vivid hues (polychromy) from the ancient Mediterranean to highlight the now-lost importance and prominence of color in these societies. We will discuss the technical, historical, and art historical elements of painting in antiquity to address the pigments utilized, painting techniques developed, and the socio-political histories of color (or the lack thereof) in art. Not only will we work to reconstruct the polychromy of ancient life, but we will also critically evaluate the profound impact color has had on post-antique receptions of Mediterranean art.

Art History Seminar: The Art and History of Archaeological Drawings and Sketchbooks

[Seminar; Ancient/Medieval] Illustrations have been a critical part of the science and practice of archaeology since the inception of the field in the 18th century. Not only do they document essential information about archaeological sites and artifacts, but they also reflect the ideas, styles, and values of the periods in which they were created. In this course we will explore the history of archaeological drawings and artists' sketchbooks of archaeological sites in the ancient Mediterranean to study the history and development of technical illustrations. We will examine the art and history of a wide variety of archaeological sites, as well as the artists who visited those sites in the early modern period. This will allow us to take an in-depth look at the drawings these artists produced and consider the important role of illustrations in the practice of archaeology and dissemination of knowledge. Since this is an art history seminar, class discussions are emphasized and written work, including a research paper, will be required.

Art History Seminar: Infames—The Art and Archeology of Non-Elite Romans

[Seminar; Ancient/Medieval] From the Colosseum to the grand imperial palaces in Rome, nearly all of the best-known ancient Roman monuments were created for elite members of Roman society. However, the vast majority of people living within the Roman Empire were neither wealthy nor of high social status. This seminar will examine the art and archaeology of non-elite Romans, some of whom were considered infames, or those without legal status. In studying infames (including gladiators and actors) alongside other types of non-elite Romans (freed[wo]men and the enslaved), we will work to better understand the multiplicity of identities and experiences that existed throughout the Empire. Although the existing material record of non-elite Romans is far less robust than that of elite Romans, we will examine art historical and archaeological evidence to underscore the important contributions of non-elite individuals, debate the visibility of non-elite individuals in art, and explore the question of what it meant to be Roman. Since this is an art history seminar, class discussions are emphasized and written work, including a research paper, will be required.

Art History Seminar: Domestic Life and Gender Identity in the Italian Renaissance

[Seminar] For fifteenth- and sixteenth-century Italians, status and appearance meant everything. Thus, they filled their homes (inside and out) with lavish objects that celebrated events from betrothals and weddings to childbirth. This course will explore domestic art in Renaissance Italy as we consider what these objects said about both the specific owners and society at large with a particular emphasis on gender identity. How did people view love and marriage in the Renaissance? What were the roles and expectation of women in the home versus the public realm? Of men? Of children? These questions, and many more, will be examined through the lens of surviving primary source documents such as wills, inventories, letters, and diaries as well as visual culture (prints, paintings, decorative arts, sculptures, textiles, etc.). We will also frame our discussions utilizing the latest publications on gender in the Renaissance as well as recent museum exhibitions on the topic organized by the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Victoria and Albert Museum.

Art History Seminar: Art of the Sixties

[Seminar; Contemporary or Modern] This seminar on the 1960s, a celebrated and controversial decade, will focus on the following art movements: Nouveau Réalisme, Happenings, Pop, Minimalism, Post-Minimalism, Arte Povera, and Conceptual art. Topics addressed in the readings, class discussions and writing assignments will include: art, irony, and spectacle; consumerism and mass culture; politics and the war in Vietnam; labor and industry; time and technology; and anti-form and the dematerialization of the art object. We will examine a broad range of artists working in Europe and America, and the readings will include primary source material as well as recent scholarship. Since this is an art history seminar, class discussions are emphasized and written work, including a research paper, will be required.

Art History Seminar: Abstract Expressionism

[Seminar; Modern] This seminar on Abstract Expressionism, one of the major American art movements of the twentieth century, will be organized around methodological questions and critical debates. The readings, class discussions and writing assignments will address the following topics: Clement Greenberg's legacy and its critiques; Cold War politics; postwar artistic subjectivity; structuralism, semiotics and abstraction; post-structuralism and abstraction; and identity and abstraction. Artists to be considered include Jackson Pollock, Lee Krasner, Willem de Kooning, Barnett Newman, Mark Rothko, Helen Frankenthaler, Morris Louis and others. Since this is an art history seminar, class discussions are emphasized and written work, including a research paper, will be required.

Art History Seminar: Life Beyond — Ghosts, Demons & Death

[Seminar; G/C; Asian Studies minor] In this course we will examine Asian and Western art that concerns the end of life and the afterlife — or some alternative demonic realm. We will see art depicting witches who summon demonic forms, elaborate sarcophagi that honor the dead yet speak to the living, depictions of ghosts whom the living failed to appease and images of wronged spirits seeking retribution. We will discuss religious ideas, such as those found in Buddhism and Christianity, that often foster such representations, in addition to folk tales and legends that have contributed to the iconography. Since this is an art history seminar, class discussions are emphasized and written work, including a research paper, will be required.

Art History Seminar: East Meets West

[Seminar; G/C; Asian Studies minor] This course will examine the intersections between European-American and East Asian art. Focusing our study between 1500 and the present day, we will explore how the cultures stimulated each other, and how artists responded to perceived conflicts and cultural differences. Some questions we will address include: How do we define imitation or inspiration in the historic context? How do tradition and modernity interact in a global world? Does artistic imitation lead to cultural understanding or stereotyping? Since this is an art history seminar, class discussions are emphasized and written work, including a research paper, will be required.

Art History Seminar: Art of Zen

[Seminar; G/C; Asian Studies minor] This seminar course will examine the arts inspired by Zen Buddhism. We will begin with a study of Zen ideas and doctrines and then pursue an in-depth discussion of how art functions as a meditative and didactic tool for the Zen master. Although our primary focus will be on ink painting from the 12th century to the present, we will also explore the arts associated with the tea ceremony, Zen gardens and architecture. Since this is an art history seminar, class discussions are emphasized and written work, including a research paper, will be required.

Art History Seminar: Global Contemporary Art

[Seminar; Contemporary; G/C] This seminar focuses on art from the mid-1990s to the present. We will examine a wide range of practices and media (video, performance, photography, painting, sculpture, printmaking, and installation art) by prominent artists from diverse ethnic, cultural, and geographical backgrounds. Emphasis will be on artists from Latin America, Asia, Africa, and the Middle East. In addition to aesthetic issues, we will explore themes of war, displacement, and exile; trauma, memory, and loss; colonialism and identity politics; the lure of spectacle; and the politics of journalism and narration. Since this is an art history seminar, class discussions are emphasized and written work, including a research paper, will be required.

Topics in Art as History: Film & the Holocaust

More than any other medium, film has undoubtedly become the enduring image of the Holocaust as we struggle in our attempt to remember, understand, and come to terms with its lessons in the 21st century. Yet, if we cannot imagine the unimaginable, how can the cinematic image render justice to this definitive event? Holocaust survivor Elie Wiesel asks, “Does there exist another way, another language, to say what is unsayable?” Perhaps the medium of film becomes that alternative language that carries the power to depict the horrors and unthinkable tragedy of the Holocaust. The author of over two dozen award-winning books on the Holocaust, Wiesel candidly claims that the alternative language of film proves the camera may “succeed where the pen falters.” As we view and analyze the works of some of the most accomplished directors from Europe and the United States, we will critically examine the three-fold purpose of Holocaust films: The ability to educate, create memory, and act as an influential tool to send a moral message to future generations. We will examine how artists have employed their creative talents to inform, educate, and sensitize millions of people all over the world to the socio-political implications of the Holocaust and the ethical questions it raises on what it means to be a human being.

Topics in Art as History: Screening Cold War America: 1945-1965

The class examines American culture from the mid-1940s through the early 1960s, through the medium of film and television. American culture in this era was defined by the Cold War, a period of intense military, political, and ideological struggle between the United States and the Soviet Union and their allies. But we also think of this era as one of conformity, cultural uniformity, and the dominance of “normalcy” with nuclear families, solidified gender roles, stifled sexuality, and suburban crabgrass frontiers. So how did these international and domestic aspects of “Cold War America” interact to shape American culture from 1945 to 1965? This class will look at how underneath the surface of this “normalcy” lurked a culture of insecurity, anxiety, paranoia, and even panic. And movies and television of the era reflected and commented on these tensions. Visions of secretive spies, sleeper agents, alien invasions, and nuclear war, alongside stories of repressed suburbanites, hidden sexual desires, voyeuristic longings, and psychological horrors will help us critically engage with the culture of Cold War America. Films and TV shows screened include: The Third Man, The Manchurian Candidate, Seven Days in May, Dr. Strangelove, Invasion of the Body Snatchers, The Twilight Zone, Kiss Me Deadly, All That Heaven Allows, Rear Window, All About Eve, On the Waterfront, and more.

Topics in Art as History: A Cinematic History of America in the ‘60s

This course will enable students to understand and make sense of the watershed decade of the 1960s and to both analyze and appreciate its enduring legacy for America today. The 1960s was an age of revolutionary change in American society and nothing reflected that change more than American films. From established directors to recent film school graduates, creative radicals challenged conventional political stereotypes and social mores and helped to bring about a revolutionary change in American consciousness. Topics to be explored in these films include the Cold War, the anti-Vietnam war movement, race relations, the counterculture, and the sexual revolution. Several novels will be required, as well as a packet of selected readings.

HST 3006 (cross-listed with LIT 3404 and SOC 3104)

Topics in Art as History: The African American Experience

This is a reading-intensive course of African American literature from the 18th century to the present. We will read a wide selection of fiction, essays, folklore and poetry to aid in our understanding of how the creation of such a purely original literature, born out of a vernacular tradition, helped to combat racial bigotry and inequality in this country. Beginning with slavery and moving through the periods of Reconstruction, the Harlem Renaissance, Modernism, the Black Arts Movement, and postmodernism, students will fully realize the close ties between history and literature that marks the African American experience.

Topics in Art as History: Kansas City Jazz

[Social Practice minor; Sound minor] This course explores the cultural, social and political environment in Kansas City that fostered the development of a unique style of jazz from the 1920s through the 1940s. The development of Kansas City jazz is cast against historical events such as Prohibition, the Great Depression and World War II. The growth of Kansas City jazz style from ragtime to bebop is traced using sound recordings and videos.

HST 3011 (cross-listed with SOC 3011)

Topics in Art as History: The Long 1930s

[Sound minor] This course will examine the history of the United States from the late 1920s through the early 1940s (the “long 1930s”) using the medium of film. The Great Depression and its effects on the lives of Americans is the central historical backdrop of this era, but we will also discuss issues such as prohibition and organized crime, African-American culture, changing conceptions of women and gender roles, the effects of industrial capitalism on individuals, the New Deal and the arts, and the early years of WWII. This course will also examine Hollywood history during the 1930s, including the transition from silent films to talkies, the studio system, and classic Hollywood film genres (westerns, musicals, screwball comedies, gangster films, etc.). Finally, this course will pose questions about historical memory and how the past is represented in film. This includes how prior historical events (such as the Civil War and Westward expansion) were represented in Hollywood films of the 1930s as well as how Hollywood has represented the Great Depression era in more recent films.

Topics in Art as History: Screening History

How does film shape the way we understand the past? How do stories from the past and set in the past help us make sense of history today? If history is made up of multiple and competing narratives, what kinds of storytelling does historical film engage in? This course explores these questions through the genre of the historical film, broadly conceived. We will explore both 1) films made during a previous time-period, and 2) films that offer an interpretation of a historical time-period. First, can films made in a specific time-period be read as pieces of historical evidence shedding light on that era? How can we critically read films as historical “time-capsules”, offering us glimpses of the hopes, dreams, fears, anxieties, social issues, cultural debates, political contestations, etc. of those times? Second, what can films consciously set in the past (the more traditional “historical film”) tell us about history? How do we judge the “authenticity” of these films - or do issues of historical accuracy even matter? Why do historical films interpret a past era, event, or person in a certain way? And what do these cinematic representations of the past tell us about the contemporary moment in which they were made? We will explore these questions and more through films such as: Intolerance (1916), Gone with the Wind (1939), Spartacus (1960), *M*A*S*H* (1970), Daughters of the Dust (1991), and 12 Years a Slave (2013).

Topics in American Studies: Vietnam as Myth & Metaphor

Focusing on Vietnam as myth and metaphor, this course will explore popular American films as important cultural documents by which the student can achieve some understanding of the meaning of America in Vietnam and its profound effects upon American society. Among the artistic and cultural themes to be discussed in the course are: Vietnam as symbolic landscape; the influence of popular culture in shaping attitudes, creating expectations, and determining events; the corruption of innocence; sexual, racial, and class identities and conflicts; patriotism and dissent; the nature of war; the American national character and the reform heritage of the 1960s; and the meaning of history.

Topics in American Studies: America in Crisis—1929 to 1945

This course explores the social and cultural history of the United States from the onset of the Great Depression through the end of World War II. From the stock market crash of 1929 until the end of hostilities of the Second World War in 1945, American society experienced a number of dramatic events and changes. How did these crises affect and alter American society and American culture? And how did American culture reflect, comment on, and respond to events such as the Great Depression and World War II? These questions, and more, will be examined through specific topics, including: cultural conceptions of wealth and poverty, screwball comedies, art and the New Deal, representations of labor and unions, social understandings of “big government,” the WWII homefront, gender and the military, the development of an organized racial equality movement, internment of Japanese-Americans, and the reactions to the dropping of the first atomic bombs.

Throughout the class, we will address how these developments in American cultural and social history continue to affect us today.

Topics in American Studies: Entrance and Exclusion—American Migration History

[Social Practice minor] This course will examine the history of immigration to the United States from the 17th century to the present. We will study the diverse experiences of immigrants to the U.S. from Africa, Asia, Central and Latin America, Europe and the Middle East. The conflict of whether to include or exclude various groups of people who wish to become part of American society is a drama that has been played out through the course of American history. With the objective of seeking to provide historical context to current debates on immigration reform, integration and citizenship, this course will address themes such as assimilation, gender differences, generational conflict, transnationalism, nativism and xenophobia, racialization and racism. This course will adopt a multi-disciplinary approach towards the history of U.S. immigration which will include the study of immigration law and legal cases, oral history, fiction and film, and both primary and secondary historical sources. Topics in American Studies: The Moving Image and American Culture, 1900-1930

[Sound minor] This course explores American cultural history in the early 20th century through the history of the moving image. We will trace the development of moving image technologies, the changing content and form of motion pictures, and the far-reaching socio-cultural effects of movie-going in America from 1900-1930. From precursors to film in the 1800s (such as the camera obscura and magic lantern), through the heyday of the silent film era to the transition to sound with “talking pictures” in the late 1920s, this course will examine American culture of this era through the interrelationship between film technologies, movie content, and cinema audience reception. How did a variety of storytelling forms in the silent era give way to the standard classic Hollywood style? What was the experience of audiences viewing these moving images, from cheap nickelodeons to lavish movie palaces? And how did these spaces of cinema spectatorship help to both unite and divide Americans, along lines of class, gender, race, and geography? What can the content of films from this period tell us about the American experience in the early 20th century, including progressive reform movements, industrialization, immigration, urbanization, wealth and poverty, WWI, prohibition, and changing gender roles? And how did the rise of Hollywood and celebrity culture in the silent era help influence and change American society? We’ll explore all these historical issues and more through the lens of the moving image.

Topics in Global/Comparative Studies: Modern Chinese History

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] This course is a study of Chinese history from the fall of the Ming dynasty in 1644 to the present day. Although we will focus specifically on events in the history of what we recognize today as the People’s Republic of China, attention will also be given to both Taiwan and Hong Kong. We will look closely at the dynamic between the often seemingly incongruous domestic and foreign policies of the PRC Communist regime. The class will attempt to discern common social and political patterns in Chinese history by examining various facets of Chinese society including philosophy, literature, science, and art. Our class will focus on the growing role of the PRC as a world power and will also give special consideration to the question of whether or not China’s continued economic development and prosperity is indicative of a move towards more democratic freedoms for the Chinese people.

Topics in Art as History: The Asian American Experience

[G/C; Asian Studies minor; Social Practice minor] This course is an interdisciplinary, cross-cultural study of the various dimensions of Asian American experiences, including history, social organization, literature, arts, and politics. This course will focus on the diverse experiences of Chinese, Japanese, Filipino, Korean, South Asian and Southeast Asian ethnic groups in the United States. We will focus on significant issues such as immigration, racial prejudice, stereotypes, gender, labor, and identity. The class will use varied sources to explore “Asian American” experiences throughout American history. We will read seminal Asian American literary works such as Maxine Hong Kingston’s Woman Warrior and John Okada’s No Boy and watch films such as Ang Lee’s The Wedding Banquet. The class will also examine political topics such as affirmative action, the “model minority” stereotype, and racial tensions in the history of Asians in America as well as explore pop culture phenomenon such as Amy Chua’s The Battle Hymn of the Tiger Mother.

Topics in Global/Comparative Studies: The Asian American as Other in Film and Media

[G/C; Asian Studies minor; Social Practice minor] This class will examine images of Asia and Asian Americans in American and transnational film and media, and how these reflect the national anxieties and fantasies precipitated by Asian immigration, labor policies, and US imperialist interests in Asia. We will address the shifting perceptions of Asian Americans as Other in film and media, with particular attention to the presence of Orientalist discourse in representations of Asian Americans as “the yellow peril” or “the model minority” and other stereotypes. The course will also explore the intersectionality of race, national identity, gender, sexuality, and socio-economic class in the depictions of Asian Americans in film and media.

Topics in Gender Studies: Gendering the Holocaust

This course will study the Holocaust through the lens of gender, both the historical event and subsequent cultural representations of it. The course will explore gender’s role in shaping the individual’s experience in the Holocaust- how women and men faced different dangers and employed different strategies for survival, and how Nazis’ perpetration was influenced by traditional gender expectations. Moving beyond the historical event, this course will study film, memoir, and theatrical representations to challenge the “universal” narrative of the Holocaust. Major topics include: Memory, identity, gender theory, photographic analysis, agency, and violence.

Topics in Gender Studies: Queer American History

[Social Practice minor] This course focuses on the history of same-sex sexuality, and to a lesser extent, gender identity, in the United States from the 19th century to the present day. We consider the changing meanings of same-sex desires, acts, identities, and relationships; the social definitions and regulations of same-sex love and sexuality; the emergence of sexual and gender subcultures and identities; and the growth of advocacy movements around gay and lesbian civil rights. While examining the overall American experience, we also utilize materials that reveal parallel activities in the Kansas City area. Though not as recognized as the gay communities in larger cities like San Francisco or New York, Kansas City has been home to some of the most active and pioneering gay and lesbian organizations, establishments, and individuals in the country, dating as far back as the 1930s. The archival sources for these local stories are drawn from the Gay and Lesbian Archive of Mid-America (GLAMA), a collecting initiative of LaBudde Special Collections at Miller Nichols Library on the campus of UMKC. As a collection of oral histories, physical artifacts, and manuscript papers, GLAMA affords a remarkable glimpse into the LGBTQ history of the American Midwest.

HST 3707 (cross-listed with SOC 3707)

Topics in Gender Studies: Women, Race and Class

Angela Davis's 1981 book, Women, Race and Class inspires this course. Along with Davis, we will read women of color historical analyses which trouble the identity category of women by detailing the ways in which race and class have influenced perceptions and expectations of so-called womanhood. The class will mostly look at Black and Latina women's histories within the United States in order to understand how historical narratives of slavery, immigration, sexuality, religion, domestic labor, sex work, and family structures have shaped conceptions of racialized femininity. Outside of the readings, we will also explore how popular culture has influenced and propagated women of color stereotypes throughout United States history. This section will be reading-intensive with once-a-week seminars that will be discussion-based and student-led.

Literature Electives

"CRW" designates a Creative Writing Workshop. "LIT" designates a literature course.

Students can take either a "CRW" or an "LIT" course to satisfy the liberal arts requirement for at least one course (3 credit hours) in literature.

CRW 2500

Narrative Technique

In this reading- and writing-intensive course, we will read and write fiction, exploring various elements of narrative technique, including plot, setting, character, conflict, symbol, style, tone, image, and point of view. We will closely read a number of short stories, study fiction's role in cultural memory and observe and respond to its ability to form fantastic worlds of uncharted realities. Students will participate in intensive writing experiments, revision of material, and peer critique, to develop a substantial body of original work.

CRW 2501

Poetic Technique

In this introductory course, we will read and write poetry, exploring various aspects of poetic technique, including imagery, metaphor, line, stanza, music, rhythm, diction, and tone. We will examine a number of poetic traditions, study poetry's place in culture and society, and through journaling, intensive writing experiments, revision work, and peer critique, develop a substantial body of original work.

CRW 3504

Experimental Writing Workshop: Hyper Texts, Hybrid Forms

In this workshop you will create and investigate work that occurs at the meeting places of literature, visual art, and electronic media. Expect to experiment with a variety of innovative forms including video poetry, neo-benshi performance, hyper-text fiction, conceptual writing, and more. We will explore the history of hybrid and innovative forms from the rise of modernism to the ultra- contemporary, and the way these forms fit into the changing literary landscape. Through in-class experiments, intensive journal keeping, and daily writing, you will develop and discuss a substantial original body of work.

Minute Fiction

In 1976, Tri-Quarterly issued a volume called Minute Stories, each story no more than two pages long. Now, a half-century later, the form has developed into what is variously referred to as “the short-short,” “flash fiction,” “sudden fiction,” “kitchen fiction,” or, in the case of Kawabata, “palm-of-the-hand stories.” McSweeney’s Quarterly Concern, Quarterly West, American Short Fiction, PANK Magazine and a profusion of other literary magazines—print, as well as online—now devote entire issues to the form, and there are anthologies galore. In this reading- and writing-intensive course, we will consider the form (does it have one?) and its history (ditto). Required texts: Jerome Stern, ed., Micro Fiction: An Anthology of Really Short Stories; Italo Calvino, Invisible Cities; and Julio Cortázar, Cronopios and Famas. In addition, we will read excerpts from Eduardo Galeano’s The Book of Embraces and The Pillow Book of Sei Shōnagon, as well as work by writers—classic to contemporary—from Barthelme, Borges, Kafka, Walser and Woolf to Lydia Davis, Jamaica Kincaid, Becky Robison, Sejal Shah, and KCAI’s own Casey Hannan. Students write micro essays on the readings, submit original minute fiction for critique, and write response letters to peers.

Writerly Nonfiction Workshop: The Memoir

In this workshop we will explore memoir from its early forms in Western culture (Augustine, Rousseau) to its ultra-contemporary, global iterations. We will do our own memoir writing, exploring traditional narrative styles and innovative forms, and engage in a careful critique of the original work we develop in this course.

Pastiche

Neither wholly original, nor wholly copy, the pastiche allows for the student of creative writing to “truly assimilate to the greatness of a writer, to penetrate his (her) soul and genius, be it as an homage or because he (she) wants to write in the master’s genre.” (Marmontel). Through reading, recalling, and discussing texts, students will become better storytellers and better storywriters. Students will also be asked to develop and refine a body of work that creatively interprets the elements that define and characterize a piece of “great” writing. At semester’s end, students will turn in a minimum of 25 pages of typed story starts, revisions, and a final reworking/reinterpretation of one story from our reader.

The Literary Magazine

We will explore the history of small press publishing and the role of literary magazines, past and present. We will work to design, solicit submissions for, edit, and promote Sprung Formal, KCAI’s award-winning literary arts journal. At the same time, we will explore the history of small press publishing and the role of literary magazines, past and present, the rise of the small magazine, the mimeo revolution, and the zine movement, as well as alternative methods of literary publication including new media, installation, performance, and sound. This course may be repeated one time for credit.

Writerly Nonfiction Workshop: The Art of the Book Review

How do writers launch their professional careers, win readers for their work, and win critical recognition for their work? For the last hundred years or more, book reviews have been a key means to this end. Not only do positive reviews enhance (though not ensure) a book’s success, but many writers have first broken into publication by writing reviews. Many great writers, including Virginia Woolf, Joyce Carol Oates, et al., have elevated the book review from its origins in journalism to an artistic form of its own. Professional book reviewing today is changing to respond to new challenges of the digital age. This course will survey the recent history of book reviewing and read some of its masters, examine its similarities and differences to other forms of reviewing, its turbulent relationship to academic literary criticism, its continuing conflicted relationship to journalism, and its creative possibilities for writers early in their careers. Students will become familiar with the major professional book-review venues and some emerging markets that are more open to new writers, learn how books are selected for review, and how they can seek to place their own reviews for publication. In a workshop setting, students will hone their aesthetic, ethical, and technical standards for evaluating books and reviews. Students will write and revise three book reviews, write a paper analyzing one book-review publication, complete weekly assignments and quizzes, and actively participate in workshop critiques. Texts: Faint Praise: The Plight of Book Reviewing in America by Gail Pool, active reading in New York Times Book Review and other review venues.

Minute Fiction and the Prose Poem

Team taught by a specialist from each genre, this creative writing workshop explores the elusive and permeable boundary between the minute fiction--a short story only one or two pages long--and the prose poem, a poem, typically of similar brevity, written in sentences rather than verses. As the class works toward mastery of both genres, it will open up broader and deeper questions about what poetry and fiction are, and how--or if--they differ. Final project is a 20pp portfolio. Readings include:

Ashbery, Three Poems

Borges, Collected Fictions (excerpts)

Calvino, Invisible Cities

Cortázar, Cronopios and Famas

Lerner, Angle of Yaw

Nelson, Bluets

Rankine, Don't Let Me Be Lonely

Stein, Tender Buttons

Stern, MicroFiction

CRW 3514

Writerly Nonfiction Workshop: Writing About Art

Writing About Art focuses on writing on and as contemporary artistic practice. We will investigate the forms of writing vital to studio and post-studio practice, including artist essays, critical writing, and writing for new media. We will also address publication strategies for artists and artist-critics. Our readings will include contemporary and classic art writing, and by course's end, each student will have created a substantive body of original work.

Style and the Sentence

In this reading-intensive writing course we focus on the basic unit of prose composition: the sentence. In addition to crafting a portfolio of original prose (fiction and/or nonfiction), students will learn grammar essentials such as how to identify parts of speech and how to diagram sentences. Reading as creative writers, students will also experience a selection of world-class novels, novellas, essays, and reference texts united by their preoccupation with beautiful sentences. This classroom is analog-only--no screens, no digital media.

Writing for Sequential Art

In this workshop, we will explore narrative storytelling through sequential art—primarily graphic novels and comics, but also, through select zines and other examples of visual narratives that fall within the boundaries of the genre. Students will read, discuss, and practice foundational components of narrative technique such as setting, character, plot, motivation, and style, and further their understanding of these techniques through a focus upon the relationship between written narratives and visual storytelling. This course prioritizes the individual writer and, necessarily, the individual artist; as we engage with a wide array of graphic novels and unique approaches to pacing, panels, flow, frame, and storytelling, students will consider the interplay between the stories they want to tell and their personal artistic inclinations. Through in-class writing assignments and exercises, readings, peer critique, and revisions, students will conclude this course with a substantial body of original work.

Poetry Studio

This reading-intensive writing course functions as a work group for reading, writing, researching, discussing, and critiquing poetry. Readings include both student and published work. Coursework includes presentations, peer reviews, and final portfolio of original writing. This course can be repeated one time for credit.

Fiction Studio

This reading-intensive writing course functions as a work group for reading, writing, researching, discussing, and critiquing fiction. Readings include both student and published work. Coursework includes presentations, peer reviews, and final portfolio of original writing. This course can be repeated one time for credit.

Nonfiction Studio

This reading-intensive writing course functions as a work group for reading, writing, researching, discussing, and critiquing writerly nonfiction--forms such as nonfiction narrative, memoir, literary essay, and travel writing. Readings include both student and published work. Coursework includes presentations, peer reviews, and final portfolio of original writing.

Poetry Translation Studio

This reading-intensive creative writing course does not require knowledge of a second language. It's a great way to start learning one, though! Using an array of resources ranging from the old (dictionaries, books, and language acquisition) to the new (translation software, artificial intelligence, Google), students will explore the huge and fascinating problem of the translation of poetry. Working at your own pace over the course of the semester, you will research, select, and translate into English a portfolio of poems from the language of your choice. Class sessions revolve around sharing, discussing, troubleshooting and critiquing this work. These weekly meetings will also serve as an introduction to key ideas in the theory of translation, including readings such as:

- Jorge Luis Borges, This Craft of Verse
- Walter Benjamin, "The Task of the Translator"
- Anne Carson, NOX
- Lydia Davis, Essays Two: On Proust, Translation, Foreign Languages, and the City of Arles
- William Gass, Reading Rilke
- George Steiner, After Babel

Coursework includes portfolio and presentations.

Topics in Aesthetics: The Problem of Beauty

What is beauty? Is beauty the aim of art? Is beauty always good? Is beauty fair? What is the relationship of contemporary experience to beauty? Is beauty ever political? Our class will read, discuss, and write about aesthetic theory from the classical to the contemporary in an attempt to find answers for these questions.

LIT 3100

Topics in Prose: Moby-Dick

A reading-intensive course focused on Melville's novel. We will also read outstanding works of criticism on Moby Dick by Charles Olson and C.L.R. James, among others, and study Melville's influence on music and visual art through Schultz's Unpainted to the Last: Moby-Dick and Twentieth-Century American Art, tattoo artist George Klauba's Avian-Moby-Dick paintings, and Mastodon's groundbreaking 2004 stoner-metal release Leviathan. Required Materials: Melville, Herman. Moby-Dick. Library of America 1983; James, C.L.R., Mariners, Renegades and Castaways. New York: C.L.R. James 1952; Olson, Charles. Call Me Ishmael. Johns Hopkins 1997; Schultz, Elizabeth. Unpainted to the Last: Moby-Dick and Twentieth-Century American Art. University of Kansas 1995; Mastodon. Leviathan. Relapse 2004.

LIT 3102

Topics in Prose: Three Victorian Novels

This reading-intensive course makes a deep dive into some of the greatest English novels of the Victorian Era: Emily Brontë's Wuthering Heights (1847), Charles Dickens' Little Dorrit (1856), and George Eliot's Middlemarch (1871). These profound and unforgettable stories serve as critical investigations into systems of gender, social class, imprisonment, and justice. Coursework is restricted to weekly quizzes, midterm, and final exam.

Topics in Prose: Don Quixote

We will read an English translation of the 17th century Spanish novel, The Ingenious Gentleman Don Quixote of La Mancha, as well as study Don Quixote-inspired and Don Quixote-adjacent work in literature, art, criticism and film. We will examine the historical context around Don Quixote and how it shifts through the centuries, as well as apply this text to our own era and experiences. This is a reading intensive course with an emphasis on discussion and creative synthesis through interpretive projects and journal-keeping.

LIT 3104

Topics in Prose: The Daemon and the Craftsperson

Exacting and precise craft is regarded as a great virtue of literature, culminating in tight, structured prose, with emphasis on form and technique. But what of the Dionysian opposite of this Apollonian ideal? What of Federico García Lorca's duende? What of the wild and impassioned writing of frenzy and ecstasy? This reading-intensive course will look at masterpieces that straddle this border between wildness and craft by such authors as Michael Ondaatje, Anne Carson, Justin Torres, Marguerite Duras, and others. Through discussion we will explore this interplay of frenzy and order and examine what makes pieces of literature urgently and perilously come alive.

Topics in Poetry: Whitman and Dickinson

In this course, we will study the poetry of innovative poets Emily Dickinson and Walt Whitman in the context of the tumultuous social, political and intellectual landscape of 19th-century America. In addition to careful readings of their poetry, we will also look at Dickinson's letters, Whitman's prose, and historic and contemporary responses to their work.

Topics in Poetry: The Long Poem

The poet Dean Young is fond of saying that the wonderful thing about a poem is that, however arduous and intimidating it may appear, one can often see its end. This is a fantastic selling point, and one that should not only be applied to lyric poetry but to Brussels sprouts as well. Yet in an age when immediacy reigns, the long poem remains as one of the strongest indications there are still tribal aspirations to engage with history as both a private and public act. In its resistance to consumption, the long poem resembles an intensely limitless activity, much like a lifetime, much like a living organism in the slow search of its limits. In this reading-intensive course, students will analyze, synthesize, and interpret some of the most important long poems of the 19th, 20th and 21st centuries, while also writing their own longer poetic works.

LIT 3202 (cross-listed with PHL 3904)

Topics in Poetry: The Ancient Quarrel: Poets and Philosophy

In this class, we will study what has been called the "ancient quarrel" between poetry and philosophy. We will read what philosophers have to say about poetry and the figure of the poet, and will explore how poetry challenges and transforms philosophy. Our readings will be both historical and contemporary, and will include Plato, Kierkegaard, Anne Carson, Audre Lorde, Lisa Robertson, and others.

Topics in Drama: Contemporary Drama

Through the reading and analysis of serious and evocative drama and the viewing of plays adapted to film, we will attempt to unravel the intricate mosaic that constitutes contemporary American society. Issues of race, class, gender, peace and justice, the American Dream, alienation, and the yearning for spiritual fulfillment will be discussed in reference to historical conflicts and continuities in contemporary American society. Students will be required to attend at least one live performance and submit a critique of the play.

Topics in Drama: Ten Plays That Shook the World

Dramatic tragedy and comedy have from Classical Greece to the present engaged virtually all the art forms, from poetry to painting to puppetry. The plays students will read in this course bring to life such intellectual currents as classicism, neoclassicism, realism, Modernism, psychological approaches to art, feminism, Marxism, racism and anti-Semitism. More importantly, they typify how great drama blends delight and entertainment with serious art and even ritual. Readings include Lysistrata by Aristophanes; The Love Suicides at Sonezaki by Chikamatsu Monzaemon; Shakespeare's The Merchant of Venice; Aphra Behn's The Rover; Stephen Sondheim's Sunday in the Park with George; Anton Chekhov's The Cherry Orchard; Henrik Ibsen's Hedda Gabler; Lorraine Hansberry's A Raisin in the Sun; George Bernard Shaw's Mrs. Warren's Profession; and, Hoppla Wir Leben! by Ernst Toller. Two papers, a midterm, a final, as well as class presentations.

Topics in Drama: Shakespeare in Translation

This course concentrates on a close reading of selected Shakespeare plays. We will explore each play's historicity, its place in the history of theater, its social and political concerns, and, above all, Shakespeare's use of language. We will then study various "translations" of the plays—in art, music, and film. Students will write weekly "translations" of particular portions of each play. A 15-page research paper comparing two distinct versions of a single scene is required.

Topics in Drama: Shakespeare

Team-taught by Phyllis Moore and Cyrus Console, this class provides an intensive and rigorous study of the most influential writer in English. Coursework includes performances, quizzes, exams, essays, and research paper. No screens or electronic devices are allowed in this classroom, and hard copies are required for each of the assigned texts.

LIT 3400

Topics in Narrative: The Short Story

This course is a study of the history of narrative technique from Chekhov and Henry James to Flannery O'Connor and Miranda July. Students will read a wide range of authors, both classic and contemporary. Students will learn to identify and critically assess, both in discussion and in writing, elements of the narrative, including plot, characterization, theme, point of view, voice, and style. We will, as Lawrence Weschler said, "Write as if reading mattered, and read as if writing mattered."

Topics in Narrative: The Novella

This reading intensive-course defines the novella as a prose fiction between 20,000 and 50,000 words. Coursework includes midterm exam, final exam, and presentation. Required readings: Herman Melville, Leo Tolstoy, Edith Wharton, Willa Cather, Clarice Lispector, Penelope Fitzgerald, Mariama Ba, Octavia Butler, Helen Garner, Javier Marías, César Aira, Roberto Bolaño, Gerald Murnane.

Topics in Narrative: Folk Literature

Folklore: sex, violence, death, love, longing, heroism, tragedy—the imagination as passed down through generations—to become witness, to explain our fantastic human condition. This course in folklore will trace the passage of folktales from their earliest oral traditions to our postmodern age. Students will discover how elements of folk literature are still used today to explore the archetypes of our minds and the dailiness of our days. Readings: Gilgamesh; trans. David Ferry, Maria Tatar, Tracy Arah Dockray, Wilhelm Grimm; Snow White; Donald Barthelme, various handouts.

Topics in Narrative: Western Attitudes Towards Death and Dying

[Social Practice minor] As artists, the subject of death will be found in our work at some point, whether it be in the form of an elegiac response, metaphysical inquiry, political outrage toward mass killing in warfare or meditation on our collective predicament. In this reading-intensive course, students will explore and discuss numerous critical and creative writings on death. Assigned readings will include, but are not limited to, Philippe Ariès' "Western Attitudes Towards Death from the Middle Ages to the Present", Leo Tolstoy's "The Death of Ivan Ilyich", Don DeLillo's White Noise, and various poems and short stories that have death as their subject. Students will write two close reading response essays, and produce a final creative project accompanied by a detailed artist statement.

LIT 3404 (cross-listed with HST 3006 and SOC 3104)

Topics in Narrative: The African American Experience

This is a reading-intensive course of African American literature from the 18th century to the present. We will read a wide selection of fiction, essays, folklore and poetry to aid in our understanding of how the creation of such a purely original literature, born out of a vernacular tradition, helped to combat racial bigotry and inequality in this country. Beginning with slavery and moving through the periods of Reconstruction, the Harlem Renaissance, Modernism, the Black Arts Movement, and postmodernism, students will fully realize the close ties between history and literature that marks the African American experience.

Topics in Narrative: The Literature of Distress

How does one process the effects of war, addiction, or the psychic corrosion that results from oppression or discrimination? Just as Virginia Woolf recognized, "you cannot find peace by avoiding life," this reading-intensive course will examine how writers artistically respond to personal experiences of trauma and distress. Together we will close read Kurt Vonnegut's Slaughterhouse-Five, Toni Morrison's The Bluest Eye, Denis Johnson's Jesus' Son, and KCAI alum Casey Hannan's Mother Ghost to deepen our understanding of the process of external and internal confrontation and the path towards healing and catharsis. It will be our job throughout our weeks together to grasp how these writers are able to revisit certain atrocities that others may simply choose to ignore or forget.

Topics in Narrative: Literature of the Absurd

In this course we will study the literature of the absurd from 1850 to the present. Through careful reading, writing, and discussion, we will work together to formulate essential questions about the relationship of the absurd to contemporary life. Our readings will include works by Herman Melville, Franz Kafka, Robert Walser, and Albert Camus, as well as work addressing similar themes.

Topics in Narrative: Literature and Art of the Holocaust

In a terrible but understandable way, the Holocaust marks out our time, so much as to radically alter our conception of the human. For, as Elie Wiesel has convincingly stated, "at Auschwitz not only man died but also the idea of man." Holocaust literature is our record of what one critic called the double dying, and an affirmation of a spirit that could not be vanquished. Just as Holocaust literature occupies a multiplicity of languages, so too has it found its way into all the generic forms of language. Thus in this course we will be reading a select group of novels and short stories, poems and plays, memoirs, diaries and journals in an attempt to adequately measure a chronicling of radical evil and the range of human responses to it. Themes that we will be discussing include the displacement of the consciousness of life by the imminence and pervasive-ness of death, the violation of the coherence and joy of childhood, the assault on physical reality, the disintegration of the rational intelligence, and the disruption of chronological time.

Topics in Narrative: From the Beast to the Blonde

This reading-intensive course is devoted to the study of the historicity, the psychology, and the narratology of the fairy tale. We will study the differences between the oral tradition (transcribed by linguists, Jacob and Wilhelm Grimm) and the literary tradition (produced by Perrault). We will examine cultural differences in these ancient stories. And, we will consider contemporary treatments of the tales in fiction, poetry, film, music and art. Required text: Lawrence Weschler, Mr. Wilson's Cabinet of Wonder: Pronged Ants, Horned Humans, Mice on Toast, and Other Marvels of Jurassic Technology, ISBN-10: 0679764892, Vintage. Recommended text: Marina Warner, From the Beast to the Blonde: On Fairy Tales and their Tellers, ISBN-10: 0374524876, Farrar, Straus and Giroux.

Topics in Narrative: Literature of Addiction

This reading-intensive course explores literary works on the theme of substance abuse and investigates current thinking about addiction as scientific fact and cultural phenomenon. Required texts:

Michael Clune, White Out

Thomas De Quincey, Confessions of an English Opium-Eater

Philip K. Dick, A Scanner Darkly

Carrie Fisher, Postcards from the Edge

Avital Ronell, Crack Wars

Alexander Trocchi, Cain's Book

Amos Tutuola, The Palm-Wine Drinkard

Maia Szalavitz, Unbroken Brain

Topics in Narrative: Modernist Literature—Excess, Wreckage, and the Multitudinous Mind

As the poet and essayist Anders Monson cleverly notes, “The history of literature is the history of experimental literature.” Nowhere is this observation more accurate than when applied to the modernist literature produced between 1910 and 1950. These were writers in the midst of a radical new world, responding to the tremors and speed caused by industrialism and the shock of World War I in radical and liberating ways. In this reading-intensive course, students will explore and discuss a diversity of modernist novels and writings. Assigned novels include Virginia Woolf’s Mrs. Dalloway, William Faulkner’s As I Lay Dying, Zora Neale Hurston’s Their Eyes Were Watching God, and Samuel Beckett’s Murphy, as well as shorter works and excerpts by T.S. Eliot, Wallace Stevens, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Djuna Barnes, Gertrude Stein, Katherine Mansfield, W.B. Yeats, Ernest Hemingway, and Jean Rhys.

Topics in Narrative: Asian American Literature

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] This course will trace the development of Asian American Literature by exploring literary texts written from the beginning of the 20th century to the present. Readings for this class will include novels, short stories, essays and poetry written by Asian American writers from diverse backgrounds. The class will examine how different literary forms of representation inform the construction of Asian American identities. We will look closely at the historical, political and social contexts that have shaped the diverse Asian American literary tradition. Through the various literary works of Asian American authors, the class will explore issues such as immigration, racial intolerance, assimilation, the Asian diaspora, and the intersection of gender inequality and cultural hegemony.

Topics in Narrative: Science Fiction

Climate emergency. Deep fakes. Mass extinction. Continuous surveillance. Machine learning. Nuclear catastrophe. It's a great day to read some masterworks of science fiction. This course explores the books from a literary perspective, and the world from a scientific one. Authors include Octavia Butler, Ted Chiang, William Gibson, Ursula Le Guin, China Mieville, and Mary Shelley.

Topics in Narrative: Funny, How? Humor Studies in Literature and Film

"Life is a tragedy when seen in close-up, but a comedy in long-shot." – Charlie Chaplin

Plato saw humor as a lowbrow form of cruelty, an expression of superiority, a kind of pleasure mixed with malice. Contemporary comics and humorists like John Oliver, Wanda Sykes, Matt Stone, George Saunders or Patricia Lockwood might say humor is the very angle into dismantling hypocrisy and cultural forms of oppression, and one of the most effective modes of removing moral blind spots and promoting democratic debate. Tig Notaro, Patton Oswalt, and Mel Brooks might argue that humor helps us to endure rather than to suffer, to laugh at death, tragedy, and senseless brutality instead of becoming overwhelmed with dread and victimhood. And Hannah Gadsby or Lynda Barry might say that humor is the very gateway into confronting avoidance; a kick in the pants to come clean with who we are and who we want to become. In this reading-intensive course, we will study traditional and nontraditional theories of humor. We will also read comedic novels, plays, poetry and memoir, and watch, analyze, and discuss comedic films and live stand-up performances.

Topics in Narrative: Contemporary Native/Indigenous Experience

[G/C] Recent decades have brought an efflorescence of creativity among poets, prose writers, and dramatists of Native American/Indigenous heritage. That body of work transcends stereotyped images of reservation squalor or sentimental images of vanishing cultures. Native/Indigenous writers wrestle with postcolonial concerns of tribal sovereignty, cultural appropriation and commodification, identity/blood quantum, and language preservation; the reality that the majority of Natives who do not live on reservations and often confront urban and intertribal concerns; the epidemic of murdered and missing Native women; veterans' concerns; and Native experience in a global context that includes environmental threats, especially from the extraction economy. Authors considered include Sherman Alexie, Kimberly Blaaser, Trevino Brings Plenty, Natalie Diaz, Diane Glancy, Joy Harjo, Allison Hedge Coke, Geary Hobson, Linda Hogan, LeAnne Howe, Bojan Louis, Mary Catherine Nagle, Linda Rodriguez, Kim Shuck, Gerald Vizenor, et al.

LIT 3417

Topics in Narrative: The Ecstasy of Influence

In this course, we will study the issues regarding adaptation and appropriation in literature, art, film and music. We will examine multiple treatments of the same subject by different writers, artists, filmmakers and musicians: D.H. Lawrence/Raymond Carver; Jane Austen's Emma/Amy Heckerling's Clueless; DaVinci and Dali's The Last Supper; DaVinci Mona Lisa/Duchamp's "L.H.O.O.Q."; Caravaggio and Cindy Sherman, Shakespeare's Macbeth/Billy Morrisette's Scotland, P.A.; Disney's Fantasia /Bill Morrison's Decasia, Marilyn Monroe and T-Bone Burnett; Sinatra/Sid Vicious, Sonny and Cher/The Raconteurs—the list is endless. We will examine how and why people adapt, appropriate, and outright steal consciously or subconsciously (cryptomnesia). We will try and figure out what can and what cannot be considered original—if being original is even possible, even desirable. Our conversation begins with Jonathan Lethem's "The Ecstasy of Influence," for which this course is named.

Topics in Narrative: The Fabulators

Fabulism, that ever elusive label with its roots in fairytales and similarities with the surreal, the magical, and the absurd, is a mode singularly well equipped to respond to and process life's inherent strangeness. This course will explore stories that play within a long tradition of using the fantastic to illuminate the difficult and prickly terrain of human nature. In this reading-intensive class we will study selections from the 1,001 Nights, Grimms' tales and Calvino's collected folklore, and such authors as Nikolai Gogol, Franz Kafka, Kenji Miyazawa, Jorge Luis Borges, Hassan Blasim, Aimee Bender, Rajesh Parameswaran, Ayse Papatya Bucak, and Laura Van Den Berg. We will examine fabulist modes of narrative and through discussions interrogate the motivations behind the fabulous and capabilities such stories afford.

Topics in Global/Comparative Studies: World Poetry

[G/C] "The lyric is the genre in which the poet, like the ironic writer, turns his back on his audience." – Northrop Frye

This course studies lyric poetry from the ancient to the ultra-contemporary. We will explore the nature, history, and function of the lyric, as well as learn various methods of reading and understanding poetry, including formal analysis and cultural/historical critique. Course material will include poems from Western, Eastern, and indigenous cultures, essays pertaining to lyric, and other readings applicable to this course. There will be some attention to longer poems but mostly we will be reading (and hearing) short works.

Topics in Global/Comparative Studies: The Asian American Experience

[G/C; Asian Studies minor; Social Practice minor] This course is an interdisciplinary, cross-cultural study of the various dimensions of Asian American experiences, including history, social organization, literature, arts, and politics. This course will focus on the diverse experiences of Chinese, Japanese, Filipino, Korean, South Asian and Southeast Asian ethnic groups in the United States. We will focus on significant issues such as immigration, racial prejudice, stereotypes, gender, labor, and identity. The class will use varied sources to explore "Asian American" experiences throughout American history. We will read seminal Asian American literary works such as Maxine Hong Kingston's Woman Warrior and John Okada's No Boy and watch films such as Lee Ang's The Wedding Banquet. The class will also examine political topics such as affirmative action, the "model minority" stereotype, and racial tensions in the history of Asians in America as well as explore pop culture phenomenon such as Amy Chua's The Battle Hymn of the Tiger Mother.

Topics in Gender Studies: Constructing the Woman Warrior

[G/C; Social Practice minor] This course is a multidisciplinary study of the scholarship on women, with an introduction to feminist theory and methodology. As Maxine Hong Kingston explains, a woman warrior must “make (her) mind large, as the universe is large, so that there is room for paradoxes.” This course will explore the various paradoxes involved in constructing the concept of the woman warrior by looking at historical and contemporary experiences of women at the micro level (personal and individual), the meso level (community, neighborhood, etc.), the macro level (national), and the global level. We will examine representations of female identity in literary works such as Charlotte Perkins Gilman’s “The Yellow Wallpaper” and Hong Kingston’s The Woman Warrior. In addition, we will look at imposed standards of beauty (i.e., foot-binding) and social codes of conduct that contribute to the formulation of the ideal female image. Specific attention will also be given to how the construction of the concept of the woman warrior intersects with nationality, race, class and sexuality.

Topics in Gender Studies: The Witch in Literature and Society

Through a careful study of literature, history, and ethnography, we will explore the role that the witch plays in society and why so many people have been so afraid of her. We will begin with the European witch-hunts of the fifteenth to eighteenth centuries, then investigate the cross cultural occurrence of the figure of the witch, including her appearance in literature and film and her continuing presence in contemporary life.

Topics in Gender Studies: Major American Women Writers

In this course we will survey literary works by major American women authors from the late 19th century up to the present. The focus will be on both novels and short stories. We will discuss what impact each author and her work has had on the development of feminism and the role of women in modern American culture and society. We will also consider the female voices that may have been excluded from popular feminist discourses and the possible reasons for such exclusion. One chief objective of the course will be to define the parameters of the American Female Literary Tradition. In our attempt to do so, we will also consider if there is a “female voice” separate and distinguishable from that of dominant male discourse. Authors include: Willa Cather, Kate Chopin, Sandra Cisneros, Gish Jen, Zora Neal Hurston, Maxine Hong Kingston, Jhumpa Lahiri, Toni Morrison, Flannery O’Connor, Joyce Carol Oates, Cynthia Ozick, Leslie Marmon Silko, Alice Walker, and Eudora Welty.

Topics in Gender Studies: In Search of Our Mothers’ Gardens

This course will focus on the study of literary works by Zora Neale Hurston, Alice Walker, and Toni Morrison and examine their unique contributions to the American literary tradition. Readings will include poetry, essays, short stories, and novels by these three Womanist/Feminist authors. As Alice Walker writes, “In search of my mother’s garden, I found my own.” We will look closely at how the various roles of black women throughout the turbulent history of slavery, the post-slavery reconstruction era, and the civil rights movement in America have informed the literature of Hurston, Walker and Morrison. The class will explore the formation of female identities through the textual representations of gender, class, race and cultural differences in the works studied. Class discussions will focus on themes such as the legacy of slavery, the development of black feminism, orality and textuality, sexuality, and the importance of (female) community in the literature of these three authors.

Topics in Gender Studies: Through the Lens—Gender and Nation in Contemporary Chinese Cinema

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] This class will examine how film reflects traditional, socially-constructed gender roles, and conventional ideas on sexuality. Emphasis will be placed on how issues of national identity and historical context are conveyed through the lens of gender. Students will acquire knowledge of Chinese cinematic history and the movements that it encompasses, as well as an understanding of cinematic techniques and modern Chinese history, politics and culture. Films include Raise the Red Lantern, The Story of Qiu Jiu, and Farewell My Concubine.

Topics in Translation Studies: Constance Garnett and the Russian Golden Age

In this reading-intensive course, we study a few of the more than 70 books produced by revered and controversial translator Constance Garnett. Detested by writers such as Vladimir Nabokov and Joseph Brodsky, Garnett was championed by others such as Joseph Conrad and D.H. Lawrence. She single-handedly brought much of the Russian literature of the 19th century within reach of English-speaking writers of the 20th, whom it influenced deeply. The course will function as a survey of 19th C. Russian “masterworks,” but it will also raise important questions about translation, authorship, and literary “greatness.” What is a “masterpiece” and how do we distinguish it from “ordinary” works of literature? What parts of it are translatable, and what are the translator’s responsibilities to the work? How do we know when we are reading Turgenev, and when we are reading Garnett? What can we learn from literatures whose language we do not speak, and what risks do we run by exploring them in translation? Coursework includes quizzes, midterm and final exam. Readings: Leo Tolstoy. War and Peace (1869; tr. Garnett 1904) and Fyodor Dostoevsky. The Karamazov Brothers (1880; tr. Garnett 1912).

Topics in Translation: Modern Chinese Narrative

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] This class will present a survey of the major authors and trends in Chinese narrative from the late 1910’s to the present. Students will read and study examples of Chinese narrative from various genres including short stories, novels, and reportage literature. The class will discuss how the fictional works reflect and offer critical commentary on social, political, and economic events and trends in contemporary Chinese history. In addition, we will look closely at how individual Chinese writers endeavor to develop their own artistic voice amidst the country’s struggle to establish and develop its national identity. Also, we will examine the impact that political ideologies and Chinese government policies such as political censorship have had on the development of Modern Chinese narrative. Viewing of Chinese films and readings of current literary criticism will also support study of the works. No prior knowledge of Chinese language or history is required.

Topics in Translation: Traditional Chinese Literature

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] This class will present a survey of traditional Chinese literature from early times (c. 1027 B.C.E.) through the beginning of the Qing Dynasty (c. 1644). The course will introduce students to three of the major genres in traditional Chinese literature: poetry, fiction and drama with an emphasis on vernacular fiction and examine the intertextuality between these genres. We will read translations of a number of “masterworks” of traditional Chinese literature including The Story of the Stone (also known as The Dream of the Red Chamber), Journey to the West, and Outlaws of the Marsh. Through our readings we will explore important features of traditional Chinese society: religious and philosophical beliefs, gender relations and sexuality, family and class structure, and attitudes towards the imperial system and dynastic change. In addition, we will trace the development of major literary practices, conventions and themes through our readings. All works are in translation, and no knowledge of Chinese language, history or culture is necessary.

Topics in Translation: Modern Japanese Narrative

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] In this course, students will read and study major authors and literary trends in Japanese literature, including short stories, novels, and essays. Each text will be discussed in the context of historical and political events, social developments, and cultural movements. The class will examine themes related to the tensions between tradition and modernity, the impact of Westernization on concepts of the self, gender, and class, the effects of World War II and its aftermath, as well as postmodern sensibilities and aesthetics.

Topics in Interdisciplinary Studies: Metaphors Be With You

This course is an introduction to conceptual metaphor theory, which treats metaphor not as mere literary device, but as a fundamental aspect of human thought. Contemporary metaphor theory is driven by a community of writers and researchers working in and across disciplines including philosophy, neuroscience, psychology, linguistics, and literature. Our goal in this course will be to establish a firm theoretical grasp of conceptual metaphor—basically, the process of understanding one concept in terms of another—and then to apply it to research or creative projects of our own design. Coursework includes in-class presentations, quizzes, midterm exam, and final project. Required texts: Kovecses, Zoltan. Metaphor: A Practical Introduction. Topics in Interdisciplinary Studies: The Problem with Freedom

Mid-twentieth-century French existentialists responded to the rise of fascism, the reality of genocide, the moral bankruptcy of colonialism, and unprecedented challenges to the Enlightenment’s ideal of freedom. The existentialist movement fused philosophical inquiry with artistic creation in efforts to come to terms with the radical absurdity of the human condition in the aftermath of World War II, the Holocaust, and the first nuclear war. Simone de Beauvoir, Jean-Paul Sartre, Eugène Ionesco, Albert Camus, Samuel Beckett, Marguerite Duras, and other philosophers, writers, dramatists, and filmmakers recognized that each individual must claim their own freedom by embracing the personal search for life’s meaning. Existentialism’s roots go back to Kant, Kierkegaard, and Nietzsche. Today, a new, global generation of post-existential/postcolonial thinkers and writers continue to struggle with the meaning of freedom in the face of such threats as racism, nationalism, and xenophobia.

Topics in Philosophy & Literature: Human and Post-Human

Our collective understanding of what it means to be human is changing—and that is changing the world. Whereas Aristotle once defined the human as “a rational animal,” or Protagoras made humankind “the measure of all things,” or Descartes started within himself when he said “I think, therefore I am,” contemporary scholars are asking whether it might be time to entirely relinquish the notion of the human. We are, some would say, post-human now. Post-humanism unsettles the longstanding view, implied by Descartes, that a human is a mysterious composite of a body and a soul. Some posthumanists insist we are only body’s structure or function, while others insist that our humanity lies in an informational pattern that is unique to each one of us. How we define human has a profound influence on a range of ethical questions related to development, ability, gender, race, and technology. In this seminar we will read both literary works and philosophical theories to understand what it has meant to be human. We will also consider some of the new alternatives that have been proposed. Finally, we will question the implications of changing our understanding of being human, first and foremost for our fellow humans, but also for animals and our environment as well.

Topics in Philosophy & Literature: Philosophy of Technology

Although its roots, techne (“craft”) and logos (“words about,” “logic of”) can be traced to ancient Greece, the word technology wasn’t used to describe the mechanic arts until the early twentieth century. Leo Marx has argued that when we attribute social change to technology—“Technology is changing how we work and learn”—the term is unclear and that makes it difficult for us to reason ethically about how to structure our country, our culture, and our lives. In this course we’ll seek clarity on a number of questions: What do we mean when we say “technology”? How much agency does technology have in shaping our world and history? How can we wield and develop technologies ethically, and how is our sense of ethics affected by our development and use of new technologies?

Topics in Philosophy & Literature: The Galaxy of Human Thought

In the history of human thought, we can detect four major themes that have conflicted at times, merged at times. These are four clusters of sentiments, ideas, and concepts, rooted in the everyday activities and institutions of humanity. They can be viewed as constellations in a galaxy, grounded in the practical activities of life—the struggle for survival, sensual pleasure, spiritual awe, and rational curiosity. We can label them Contest, Passion, Faith, and Reason. In this course we review representatives and representations of these constellations, including such people as Plato, Sapho, Sun Tzu, Machiavelli, Shakespeare, Nietzsche, Mao Zedong, and others.

Topics in Philosophy & Ethics: Thinking About Animals

The earliest representation of an animal by a human artist, found in a cave in Sulawesi, Indonesia, is over 35,000 years old. Since then, animality has been bound up in human making processes, including the Greeks' war machine at Troy, the heraldry system of feudal Europe, the animal automata of the Renaissance, and, most recently, biorobotic devices that look and move like nonhuman species. How humans think about animals matters; and in this course we will cover the history of thinking about animals from Descartes to the present, in an effort to think about whether and how animals should be incorporated in making. As such, this is partly a history of philosophy course, and partly an ethics course.

Topics in Philosophy & Ethics: Thinking About Nature

[Social Practice minor] As the globe warms, cities sprawl, traffic crawls (or flies through the telecom infrastructure), and humankind hangs satellites in near space, we find we've come to a crisis as we think about the impact of our outlook on, attitudes toward, and beliefs about the environment. Just how durable is our world? What assumptions have we made about its capacity to return to equilibrium? What actions do we take or what habits have we made that we've never even considered risky? In this course, we will read writing on the environment from the past century and rethink our own thinking about the environment in order to understand its problems more clearly and find what solutions we can while there's still time.

Topics in Philosophy & Ethics: Descartes and Modern Bioethics

The thinking of René Descartes has profoundly influenced Western culture. In this course we will explore two of his most influential ideas—his dualistic view of the self as a mind and a body working in tandem, and his notion that animals are merely complex automata—and the ways they have shaped modern culture in the past 150 years. How does the notion that humans have a soul shape bioethical questions like whether we should permit genetic editing, clone members of our species, or work to embody humans in computers and other machines? And how has the idea that animals are merely complex machines shaped the ways we use animal bodies to advance science and medicine, the ways we design machines, and the ethics of both?

Topics in Global/Comparative Studies: Global Aesthetics

[G/C] While Anglo-American aesthetics has long focused on detached questions about the nature of art, aesthetic traditions in other parts of the world understand art as being inextricably intertwined with political questions and ideologies. Designed to explore the latter view, this course will begin by providing a solid foundation of neo-Marxist aesthetics that demonstrates the many ways in which our understanding of art both reflects and shapes the political and social context in which it is created. We will use this critical theoretical foundation as a lens through which to examine work created by artists in late- and post-socialist regimes in the second half of the 20th century. The work in question will primarily comprise visual art, but we will also touch on music, theatre, architecture, and film. By the end of the course, students will have a sophisticated understanding of multiple ways in which art has been used to comment on and bring about political and social change in Central and Eastern Europe, as well as in Cuba and China. Readings will include: Friedrich Schiller, On the Aesthetic Education of Man, in a Series of Letters; Jacques Ranciere, The Politics of Aesthetics; Boris Groys, Art Power.

Topics in Philosophy & Literature: Human and Post-Human

Our collective understanding of what it means to be human is changing—and that is changing the world. Whereas Aristotle once defined the human as “a rational animal,” or Protagoras made humankind “the measure of all things,” or Descartes started within himself when he said “I think, therefore I am,” contemporary scholars are asking whether it might be time to entirely relinquish the notion of the human. We are, some would say, post-human now. Post-humanism unsettles the longstanding view, implied by Descartes, that a human is a mysterious composite of a body and a soul. Some posthumanists insist we are only body’s structure or function, while others insist that our humanity lies in an informational pattern that is unique to each one of us. How we define human has a profound influence on a range of ethical questions related to development, ability, gender, race, and technology. In this seminar we will read both literary works and philosophical theories to understand what it has meant to be human. We will also consider some of the new alternatives that have been proposed. Finally, we will question the implications of changing our understanding of being human, first and foremost for our fellow humans, but also for animals and our environment as well.

Topics in Philosophy & Literature: Philosophy of Technology

Although its roots, techne (“craft”) and logos (“words about,” “logic of”) can be traced to ancient Greece, the word technology wasn’t used to describe the mechanic arts until the early twentieth century. Leo Marx has argued that when we attribute social change to technology—“Technology is changing how we work and learn”—the term is unclear and that makes it difficult for us to reason ethically about how to structure our country, our culture, and our lives. In this course we’ll seek clarity on a number of questions: What do we mean when we say “technology”? How much agency does technology have in shaping our world and history? How can we wield and develop technologies ethically, and how is our sense of ethics affected by our development and use of new technologies?

Topics in Philosophy & Literature: The Galaxy of Human Thought

In the history of human thought, we can detect four major themes that have conflicted at times, merged at times. These are four clusters of sentiments, ideas, and concepts, rooted in the everyday activities and institutions of humanity. They can be viewed as constellations in a galaxy, grounded in the practical activities of life—the struggle for survival, sensual pleasure, spiritual awe, and rational curiosity. We can label them Contest, Passion, Faith, and Reason. In this course we review representatives and representations of these constellations, including such people as Plato, Sapho, Sun Tzu, Machiavelli, Shakespeare, Nietzsche, Mao Zedong, and others.

Topics in Ecology: From Hubris to Humility—Humanity Through an Ecocentric Lens

[Social Practice minor] This course will guide students to evaluate their role as citizens of the world through an ecocentric lens in an era where species across the world struggle with climate change and the Sixth Mass Extinction. After laying a foundation of ecology and species concepts, the course will build through exploring the human-caused ecological crises, both ancient and modern, the environmental movement of the 1960s, where we are heading with the modern sustainability and Rights of Nature movements, and exciting recent discoveries that make us question what we thought we knew about our fellow species and our own. Along the way, we will be introduced to naturalist writers and environmental philosophers, old and new, and examine artistic portrayals of the human-nature dynamic.

Topics in Life Science: Unraveling Inheritance--Searching for Meaning in Our Genes

If you could read the three billion pairs of letters in your DNA, what story would they tell? Are you a descendant of royal bloodlines, or did you inherit faulty genes that predispose you to cancer? In the reproductive chromosome shuffle, will your kids inherit defective genes, or will they win the genetic lottery? And can we find secret clues to our ancient human ancestors hidden in our genome? In this course, students will learn how and what DNA can tell us about our traits, our ancestry, and our distant past. We will focus on the language of DNA and how it is inherited, read, interpreted, and sometimes misinterpreted or distorted. Topics include heredity, eugenics, ancestry DNA testing, ancient DNA and mutations. We will also peer into our immediate future and the brave and promising new world that cutting-edge DNA technologies are ushering in. Can our DNA destiny be changed by diet, exercise, and a healthy environment, or are we doomed to a life of errors in our code? With cheap DNA sequencing and powerful CRISPR gene editing, where is humankind headed and how are we changing life on our planet? Topics covered include epigenetics, chimeras, CRISPR-cas9, and genetically engineered organisms.

Topics in Political Science: Contemporary Issues/Critical Perspectives

[Social Practice minor] This is a reading/discussion course in which students will study various controversial issues facing today's society, enabling them to discover their values and responsibilities as informed and engaged citizens of the world. As our nation approaches the 2024 Presidential and Congressional Elections, Americans find themselves more deeply and bitterly divided on social, political, economic, and cultural issues than at any time since the 1960s. We will examine how a number of these volatile issues are depicted in American popular culture, for example, an analysis of racism in the recently award-winning film Get Out, Jordan Peele's provocative cinematic vision of the world through a black man's eyes and Do the Right Thing by director Spike Lee. Students will be responsible for seminar presentations, at least two research and analytical papers. Intellectual discourse, thoughtful reflection, and a healthy, rigorous civil debate on controversial issues will be encouraged and welcomed.

Topics in Art as History: The Long 1930s

[Sound minor] This course will examine the history of the United States from the late 1920s through the early 1940s (the "long 1930s") using the medium of film. The Great Depression and its effects on the lives of Americans is the central historical backdrop of this era, but we will also discuss issues such as prohibition and organized crime, African-American culture, changing conceptions of women and gender roles, the effects of industrial capitalism on individuals, the New Deal and the arts, and the early years of WWII. This course will also examine Hollywood history during the 1930s, including the transition from silent films to talkies, the studio system, and classic Hollywood film genres (westerns, musicals, screwball comedies, gangster films, etc.). Finally, this course will pose questions about historical memory and how the past is represented in film. This includes how prior historical events (such as the Civil War and Westward expansion) were represented in Hollywood films of the 1930s as well as how Hollywood has represented the Great Depression era in more recent films.

Topics in Sociology: Peace and Conflict Resolution

[Social Practice minor] This course will explore the nature of conflict, peacemaking, and conflict resolution from various perspectives and prepare students with conflict resolution and change skills to participate actively and creatively in building a global society based on peace, justice, and the nonviolent resolution of conflicts. We will come to see that peace is not the absence of conflict; it is a way of responding to conflict. Conflict resolution, the technology of peace, is therefore an integral part of any peacemaking process. A variety of techniques will enable students to both understand and analyze peacemaking and conflict resolution skills including presentation of major concepts, readings, discussions, films, and skill demonstrations and practice.

Topics in Sociology: Western Attitudes Towards Death and Dying

[Social Practice minor] As artists, the subject of death will be found in our work at some point, whether it be in the form of an elegiac response, metaphysical inquiry, political outrage toward mass killing in warfare or meditation on our collective predicament. In this reading-intensive course, students will explore and discuss numerous critical and creative writings on death. Assigned readings will include, but are not limited to, Philippe Ariès' "Western Attitudes Towards Death from the Middle Ages to the Present", Leo Tolstoy's "The Death of Ivan Ilyich", Don DeLillo's White Noise, and various poems and short stories that have death as their subject. Students will write two close reading response essays, and produce a final creative project accompanied by a detailed artist statement.

Topics in Sociology: The African American Experience

This is a reading-intensive course of African American literature from the 18th century to the present. We will read a wide selection of fiction, essays, folklore and poetry to aid in our understanding of how the creation of such a purely original literature, born out of a vernacular tradition, helped to combat racial bigotry and inequality in this country. Beginning with slavery and moving through the periods of Reconstruction, the Harlem Renaissance, Modernism, the Black Arts Movement, and postmodernism, students will fully realize the close ties between history and literature that marks the African American experience.

Topics in Psychology: Abnormal Psychology

The study of abnormal psychology helps us better understand the human experience. The goal of this class is to increase student awareness of, and sensitivity to a variety of mental health problems (disorders). This course will cover the history of abnormal psychology, with a focus on the clinically-identified causes, symptoms, and treatments of psychological conditions interrupting functional daily life like anxiety, mood disorders, personality disorders, substance abuse, and thought disorders. This course will use a seminar-format where students prepare for and contribute to the class discussions and write reflection papers about selected readings, films, and student and instructor presentations.

Topics in Archaeology: Ancient Mediterranean Ceramics—Craft, Use, and Society

This course will examine significant examples of the ceramic industry in the ancient Mediterranean world, from the Bronze Age through the late Roman Empire (c. 3000 BCE-500 CE). Case studies will primarily be drawn from Greece and Rome, though examples from Etruria, North Africa, and Gaul will also be discussed. Major topics include stylistic, typological, and technical developments; how and where these ceramics were used in their historical setting; the organization of ceramic workshops; the social status of potters; and how archaeologists use ceramics to interpret, date, and reconstruct ancient sites. Students will gain an understanding of the important role pottery played in the ancient world, learn to identify forms and functions of ancient ceramics, and consider interactions between craft, industry, and social hierarchies in the ancient world.

SOC 3412 (cross-listed with LIT 3412)

Topics in Narrative: Asian American Literature

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] This course will trace the development of Asian American Literature by exploring literary texts written from the beginning of the 20th century to the present. Readings for this class will include novels, short stories, essays and poetry written by Asian American writers from diverse backgrounds. The class will examine how different literary forms of representation inform the construction of Asian American identities. We will look closely at the historical, political and social contexts that have shaped the diverse Asian American literary tradition. Through the various literary works of Asian American authors, the class will explore issues such as immigration, racial intolerance, assimilation, the Asian diaspora, and the intersection of gender inequality and cultural hegemony.

Topics in Global/Comparative Studies: The Asian American Experience

[G/C; Asian Studies minor; Social Practice minor] This course is an interdisciplinary, cross-cultural study of the various dimensions of Asian American experiences, including history, social organization, literature, arts, and politics. This course will focus on the diverse experiences of Chinese, Japanese, Filipino, Korean, South Asian and Southeast Asian ethnic groups in the United States. We will focus on significant issues such as immigration, racial prejudice, stereotypes, gender, labor, and identity. The class will use varied sources to explore “Asian American” experiences throughout American history. We will read seminal Asian American literary works such as Maxine Hong Kingston’s Woman Warrior and John Okada’s No Boy and watch films such as Ang Lee’s The Wedding Banquet. The class will also examine political topics such as affirmative action, the “model minority” stereotype, and racial tensions in the history of Asians in America as well as explore pop culture phenomenon such as Amy Chua’s The Battle Hymn of the Tiger Mother.

SOC 3601 (cross-listed with PHL 3606)

Topics in Global/Comparative Studies: World Religions

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] This course is a study of major religions around the world regarding sacred texts, beliefs, rituals, ways of life, ethical teachings, and communal structures. Religious traditions studied will include indigenous religious traditions, the Abrahamic Faiths: Judaism, Christianity and Islam, as well as Asian religious traditions: Hinduism, Sikhism, Jainism, Buddhism, and Taoism. The course will also study “new religious movements” originating in the last three hundred years. The purpose of the course is to help students to compare similarities and differences between traditions and to learn from local practitioners and insiders of the traditions covered who reside in the Kansas City area. Topics discussed will include interpretation of sacred texts, religion and gender, religion and sexuality, art and ritual in spiritual practice, and the role of religion in contemporary political and social issues.

Topics in Global/Comparative Studies: The Asian American as Other in Film and Media

[G/C; Asian Studies minor; Social Practice minor] This class will examine images of Asia and Asian Americans in American and transnational film and media, and how these reflect the national anxieties and fantasies precipitated by Asian immigration, labor policies, and US imperialist interests in Asia. We will address the shifting perceptions of Asian Americans as Other in film and media, with particular attention to the presence of Orientalist discourse in representations of Asian Americans as “the yellow peril” or “the model minority” and other stereotypes. The course will also explore the intersectionality of race, national identity, gender, sexuality, and socio-economic class in the depictions of Asian Americans in film and media.

SOC 3606 (cross-listed with LIT 3604 and PHL 3604)

Topics in Global/Comparative Studies: The Intellectual Heritage of China

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] This course explores topics in philosophical and religious traditions originating in and associated with China. These include Confucianism, Taoism, Buddhism, Neo-Confucianism, and Maoism in the history of China.

SOC 3701 (cross-listed with LIT 3702)

Topics in Gender Studies: Constructing the Woman Warrior

[G/C; Social Practice minor] A multidisciplinary study of the scholarship on women, with an introduction to feminist theory and methodology. As Maxine Hong Kingston explains, a woman warrior must “make (her) mind large, as the universe is large, so that there is room for paradoxes.” This course will explore the various paradoxes involved in constructing the concept of woman by looking at historical and contemporary experiences of women in both public and private spheres. The class will study feminist theory by reading the groundbreaking works of women such as Simone DeBeauvoir, Virginia Woolf, Julia Kristeva and Helene

Cixous. We will examine representations of female identity in literary works such as Charlotte Perkins Gilman's "The Yellow Wallpaper" and Hong Kingston's The Woman Warrior. In addition, we will look at imposed standards of beauty (corsets, footbinding) and social codes of conduct that contribute to the formulation of the ideal female image. The class will study the significance of popular female icons throughout history and in the media. Specific attention will also be given to how the construction of the concept of woman intersects with nationality, race, class and sexuality.

SOC 3702

Topics in Gender Studies: Gender Literacy

Students will acquire literacy of gender and feminist scholarship, and a fluency in the language of this discipline. The course will include a history of feminism and practical applications of theory. Most importantly, this course will serve as a conceptual toolkit to aid students in the transmission and communication of such knowledge to affect change in their communities, countries and world. We will address the formation of gender and its intersection of race, class, and sexuality. Questions to be addressed include: How are gender identities constructed and what is their relationship to culture/location/time? What is the legacy of feminism and its mission for the 21st century? We will look at representations and issues of gender in film, media, politics, and popular culture. Students will learn to identify examples of sexism and gender discrimination, address LGBTQAI issues, challenge gender binaries.

SOC 3705 (cross-listed with LIT 3704)

Topics in Gender Studies: Major American Women Writers

In this course we will survey literary works by major American women authors from the late 19th century up to the present. The focus will be on both novels and short stories. We will discuss what impact each author and her work has had on the development of feminism and the role of women in modern American culture and society. We will also consider the female voices that may have been excluded from popular feminist discourses and the possible reasons for such exclusion. One chief objective of the course will be to define the parameters of the American Female Literary Tradition. In our attempt to do so, we will also consider if there is a "female voice" separate and distinguishable from that of dominant male discourse. Authors include: Willa Cather, Kate Chopin, Sandra Cisneros, Gish Jen, Zora Neal Hurston, Maxine Hong Kingston, Jhumpa Lahiri, Toni Morrison, Flannery O'Connor, Joyce Carol Oates, Cynthia Ozick, Leslie Marmon Silko, Alice Walker, and Eudora Welty.

SOC 3706 (cross-listed with LIT 3706)

Topics in Gender Studies: Through the Lens—Gender and Nation in Contemporary Chinese Cinema

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] This class will examine how film reflects traditional, socially-constructed gender roles, and conventional ideas on sexuality. Emphasis will be placed on how issues of national identity and historical context are conveyed through the lens of gender. Students will acquire knowledge of Chinese cinematic history and the movements that it encompasses, as well as an understanding of cinematic techniques and modern Chinese history, politics and culture. Films include Raise the Red Lantern, The Story of Qiu Jiu, and Farewell My Concubine.

SOC 3707 (cross-listed with HST 3707)

Topics in Gender Studies: Women, Race and Class

Angela Davis's 1981 book, Women, Race and Class inspires this course. Along with Davis, we will read women of color historical analyses which trouble the identity category of women by detailing the ways in which race and class have influenced perceptions and expectations of so-called womanhood. The class will mostly look at Black and Latina women's histories within the United States in order to understand how historical narratives of slavery, immigration, sexuality, religion, domestic labor, sex work, and family structures have shaped conceptions of racialized femininity. Outside of the readings, we will also explore how popular culture has influenced and propagated women of color stereotypes throughout United States history. This section will be reading-intensive with once-a-week seminars that will be discussion-based and student-led.

Courses in Japanese Language and Culture

JLC 2600

Japanese Language and Culture I

[G/C; Asian Studies minor; Sound minor] [There are no prerequisites for this course.] This is an intensive introduction to the Japanese language, designed to develop proficiency in speaking, listening, reading and writing. The Japanese writing scripts Hiragana and Katakana will be covered and Kanji will be introduced. Cultural awareness through the language will also be explored. A variety of resources will enhance the classroom immersion experience, including video, audio, and other source material.

JLC 2601

Japanese Calligraphy

[G/C; Asian Studies minor; Sound minor] An iconic example of Japanese culture is learning to write with a brush. Japanese character writing skills will be explored with both the pen and calligraphy brush. Students will learn to recognize the different scripts using ancient and modern resources from scrolls to manga and advertising. Students will also learn to write Hiragana, Katakana, and select Kanji in the three classic styles of Japanese calligraphy: Kaisho (regular), Gyosho (semi-cursive) and Sosho (cursive). Japanese language skills are not a requirement.

Japanese Language and Culture II

[G/C; Asian Studies minor; Sound minor] [Prerequisite: JLC 2600, or permission of the instructor] This is the second in a sequence of courses in the intensive study of the Japanese language, designed to develop proficiency in speaking, listening, reading and writing. The Japanese writing scripts Hiragana and Katakana will be covered and Kanji will be introduced. Cultural awareness through the language will also be explored. A variety of resources will enhance the classroom immersion experience, including video, audio, and other source material.

Japanese Language and Culture III

[G/C; Asian Studies minor; Sound minor] [Prerequisites: JLC 2600 and JLC 3600, or permission of the instructor] This course is the third in a series of Japanese Language & Culture courses. Emphasis is on complex grammar patterns and intensive Kanji study that will allow the students to explore the culture using authentic source materials such as advertisements, magazines, and websites.

JLC 4601

Kanji I: Reading Japanese Characters

[G/C; Asian Studies minor; Sound minor] [There are no prerequisites for this course.] [This is an online course.] This is an online course, introducing the meaning and writing of Japanese characters using the first step in the Heisig Method for Kanji acquisition. Topics include the historical development of the characters, identification of Kanji in historical and modern settings, and brush calligraphy styles. Rigorous participation in online forums, written assignments, online research, and submission of the Kanji journal project at the end of semester are required. NOTE: students do NOT need prior language experience to participate successfully in this course. Students interested in the written Chinese language are encouraged to enroll although there are some differences between the simplified Chinese and modern Japanese characters.

Kanji II: Reading Japanese Characters

[G/C; Asian Studies minor; Sound minor] [Prerequisite: JLC 4601] [This is an online course.] Kanji II is a continuation of the Kanji I course. Students will explore the "ON" pronunciations of Kanji introduced in Kanji I, focusing on those characters and vocabulary found in levels 2-5 of the Japanese Language Proficiency Test.

JLC 4603

Japanese Language & Culture Online

[G/C; Asian Studies minor; Sound minor] [This is an online course.] The Japanese Language & Culture Online course offers multi-level learning through the Moodle platform. In addition to completing coursework online, students will participate in a minimum of five fact-to-face sessions to explore Japanese culture with hands-on activities, and practice their language skills.

JLC 4604

Japanese Language and Culture IV

[G/C; Asian Studies minor; Sound minor] [Prerequisite: JLC 2600, JLC 3600, and JLC 4600, or permission of Instructor] This is the fourth in a sequence of courses in the intensive study of the Japanese language, designed to develop proficiency in speaking, listening, reading and writing. The writing system of Kanji will be further studied. Cultural awareness through the language will also be explored. Students at this stage are able to use a computer to write in Japanese and perform basic research in the Japanese language. A variety of resources will enhance the classroom immersion experience, including video, audio, and other source material.

Academic Majors

Animation

KCAI's animation department provides students with a singularly unique education in the history and application of the medium. Our curriculum is organized into a suite of courses designed to progressively develop essential ideas, skills, and competencies over three years. All animation majors receive immersive instruction in classical, experimental, and digital animation techniques and technologies as well as animation history, professional practice, and interaction with renown visiting artists. We encourage our students to creatively interact with powerful tools and ideas to challenge and refine their individual perspectives and goals while working critically in partnership with faculty and peers.

Sophomore and Junior years present a thorough exposure to the full palette of approaches and outcomes animation has to offer so that students may discover individually and collaboratively which best suit their visions and aspirations. Seniors are offered a year long studio to fully produce an original animated work and to create a portfolio reel. Our students graduate with the momentum to continue producing and the know-how to begin building sustainable creative careers across a broad spectrum of roles.

Prerequisites for sophomore studio: FOUN 100 and FOUN 110

ANIM 210

Sophomore Studio I: Principles of Animation

6 credit hours (6 studio)

Animation is the art and design of motion. This course represents a comprehensive introduction to the core principles of animation. Instruction emphasizes creative discipline while acquiring and incorporating traditional and alternative animation techniques with one's art practice. Course structure allows students to successfully produce weekly skill building assignments and to establish a solid foundation for the creation of future work.

ANIM 215

History of Animation: Origins

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This survey course traces the origins and contributions of the early pioneers who established animation as an art form and commercial entertainment industry during the first half of the 20th century. Students will be guided through a comprehensive and immersive introduction to this period in an effort to expand their historical awareness of the medium's context and cultural impact. Course structure: lectures, screenings and readings.

ANIM 251

Sophomore Studio II: Animators Toolbox

6 credit hours (6 studio)

Students will apply the principles of animation learned in the fall semester by acquiring a new set of tools, Adobe Photoshop and After Effects Software. This introductory course progresses the student towards basic mastery of the software's interfaces, tool sets and animation capabilities while developing stronger visual communication skills in animation. Additionally, students will learn how to incorporate diverse digital and analogue techniques to create hybrid forms of 2-D animation. Students will creatively explore all aspects of the technology through assignments and will complete a finished sequence of animation.

ANIM 310

Junior Studio: Explorations in Animation

6 credit hours (6 studio)

The goal of this course is to foster a creatively dynamic and collaborative studio environment for students to explore new ideas and approaches to the medium. Through weekly lectures, critiques and screenings, students are mentored through the creative development of their original concepts and techniques. Students will experiment and incorporate various approaches as well be encouraged to push the limitations of the medium through bi-weekly topic-based projects. The course culminates with a collaborative final sequence of animation.

ANIM 320

Junior Studio: Ideas in Motion

6 credit hours (6 studio)

Students will learn to advance and fuse the development of their concepts and projects with established industry production pipelines. The goal of this course is to prepare students to fully manage larger scale, multifaceted projects. Through the study and practice of industry standards, students will craft unique approaches to pre-production, animating and final output. Additionally, students will learn to self-evaluate their own strengths and weaknesses by designing short, individualized assignments and projects. Class will culminate with the full completion of an individualized project.

ANIM 313

History of Animation Since 1960

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Building on the foundation established in History of Animation: Origins, students will now self-direct their journey into the history of the medium after 1960 by participating in small decade-specific research groups. With curatorial assistance from the instructor, students will take turns presenting their summaries and leading their classmates through discussion each week. The goals of this exchange are to strengthen students working knowledge of animation history and progressing them towards becoming more fully empowered media makers better able to contextually navigate and express an ever evolving and expanding medium.

Senior Studio: Graduation Animation 1

6 credit hours (6 studio)

All animation seniors are required to produce and complete a minimum of three minutes of animation in order to graduate. This course represents part one of this intensive yearlong process and is designed to provide the structured studio environment and mentorship necessary for students to successfully achieve this critical goal. Students are expected to fulfill a series of set production deadlines that progress them towards the completion of at least fifty percent of their Graduation Animation projects. Additionally, through lectures and critiques, students will forge a deeper understanding of their work and how it relates to the world.

ANPP 480

Professional Practice

3 credit hours (3 lecture)

Students will develop a deeper understanding of their work in the contexts of contemporary art, film, television and the animation industry at large. Fundamental issues regarding the creation of artwork including ethics, commercialism, and originality will be examined and critiqued. The course will also cover a professional approach to writing, and the preparation of artist' statements, project pitches, and the conceptual link between the craft of animation and the challenges of creating a compelling narrative or conceptual body of work. This class also covers topics of professional practice including CV/resumes, professional opportunities such as residencies, grants and fellowships, the decision around graduate school, and promotional skills including print, web presence and social media.

ANIM 420

Senior Studio: Graduation Animation 2

6 credit hours (6 studio)

All animation seniors are required to produce and complete a three-minute animated film, installation, or presentation to graduate. This course represents part two of this year-long process and is designed to provide the structured studio environment, tools, and mentorship necessary for students to successfully achieve this critical milestone. Students are expected to fulfill a series of set production and professional practice deadlines in addition to completing all aspects of their graduation animation project. Additionally, students will be prepped for successful entry into the field.

Animation Department Electives

ANIME 201

Introduction to Animation for Artists

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Non-majors only] This course is designed to introduce artists from all disciplines to the essentials of animation as they apply to the art and design of the moving image. No prior experience or familiarity with animation or its related technologies is required. Through weekly in-class demos, creative tasks, and lectures, students will practice and learn the core essentials of animated movement and explore how they apply and interact with different approaches and mediums.

ANIM/ANIME 205

Experimental Animation

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Animation began in the 19th century when artists started exploiting the frame-by-frame capabilities of emerging film technologies to design the illusion of apparent motion. Unbridled experimentation on behalf of early pioneers would eventually give birth to both a unique new art form and a thriving commercial industry.

This course explores the history and contemporary practice of the non-commercialized, experimentally based approach to animation. Both as a means of expression and a non-objective alternative to narrative-dominant applications. Students will learn how animation and its essential technologies work and apply their knowledge through various techniques, approaches, and conceptual frameworks. Course structure is lectures/demos, discussions, and bi-weekly tasks. Students will produce a short final project to conclude the course.

ANIM 206

Intro to Toon Boom Harmony

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Animation majors only] This course will explore the fundamental principles of working in Toon Boom Harmony Premium and will delve into intermediate/advanced techniques and workflows. Students will explore many aspects of 2D animation, from character design and performance to compositing and rendering. Through a series of lectures, projects and workshops, students will expand on their animation skills and technical expertise in Toon Boom Harmony Premium.

ANIM 207

Real-Time Animation

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Animation majors only] This studio course explores the creation of visual media for interactive applications. Students will gain a foundational understanding of the concepts and techniques involved with art production for real-time graphics and animation. Class structure is lecture, demonstration and special projects.

ANIM 244

Writing for Animation: Approaches to Writing for Short Animated Works

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Animation majors only] This course will focus on approaches and techniques for writing for Animation, and how they can be applied to short narrative, documentary, and experimental works. The class will include discussions of early conceptualization, character and narrative, script format, and how each can be molded or shaped depending on the nature of the intended work. Throughout the semester students will read and discuss selections from various texts tailored to writing short scripts for animated works. Students are expected to write and develop three short scripts over the course of the semester. The class will include a number of workshop opportunities. Invested class participation is key.

ANIM/ANIME 280

The Art of Stop Motion Puppetry

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This class will introduce students to professional stop motion puppet fabrication techniques and provide experience working as a member of an animation crew. Puppet construction will be explored through the creation of one's own stop motion puppet. Students will improve their animation skills and gain experience working as a team by using their puppets to develop a class project based on the ideas of absurdist and improvisational theater.

ANIM 302

Intro to 3D Animation

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Animation majors only] Digital 3D animation has become an essential tool in the modern animators kit. From the highest production value feature film to photo realistic visual effects to assisting with pre-production, layout, and cinematography, these digital processes allow an artist to more quickly and efficiently realize their ideas. This course will focus on exploring the various animation tools and techniques within modern 3D animation software. With an emphasis on making frames, this course will allow students to bring their established skills as animators and actors into the technical and complex world of 3D animation.

ANIM 303

Stop Motion Character Performance

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Animation majors only] This course will focus on character performance and the articulation of artful motion design through the practice and discipline of stop motion puppetry. Students will complete course work using prefabricated armatures, with class exercises culminating in the creation of a complete motion reel of animated character performance. Emphasis for this course will be on the exploration of emotionally nuanced character performance and studying the complex mechanics of animating the human body in motion.

ANIM 312

Motion Graphics: History and Practice

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Animation majors only] This course covers the history and practice of motion graphics and how the practice has evolved over time. Through a series of workshops and exercises, students will be introduced to the core concepts of the practice of motion graphics and how those concepts are applied in a professional production environment. Students will learn a range of workflows ranging from creating pitch documents for motion graphics projects to using industry-standard software to create motion graphics work. Students will apply these techniques and principles using industry-standard software and learn how to apply those principles using the Adobe Creative Cloud software and Cinema 4D.

ANIME 321

Beyond the Frame: Understanding Narrative in Lens-Based & Visual Media

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Filmmaking and Photography juniors and seniors are prohibited from taking this class] The primary focus of this elective will be the varying approaches to the development of narratives with an emphasis on lens-based mediums, but also including other sequential narrative visual mediums. Each student will concentrate on the pre-production process of individualized story development and methods, exploring and utilizing visual language and the production of a body of work based on students' discoveries and personal visions.

ANIM/ANIME 341

Character Development & Design

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Students will develop their skills in character development in relation to the medium of animation. The focus will go deeper than the outward appearance of a character, and include character driven narrative strategies and the development of fictional personalities informed by backstory and internal and external stimuli. Various approaches to character development, including stylistic iteration, will be explored through lecture, readings and exercises.

ANIME 361

Animation Elective - Sponsored Studio

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[BY INSTRUCTOR/DEPT CHAIR PERMISSION ONLY] This class represents a comprehensive introduction to the art, history and technique of animation. Each student will learn the basic principles of animation through a series of assignments followed by the completion of a short personal piece. In addition, each student will finish the class with the knowledge necessary to continue making animation and exploring the form on their own. This class can be repeated one time for credit.

ANIM/ANIME 370

Live Action for Animation

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Juniors and seniors only] In Live Action for Animation, we will explore the making of live action videos to understand the real-world references that you will need to ground your animated works, as well as a means to fully understand the distinctions between live-action video and animation both their limitations and strengths. Throughout the course of this elective, you will create three works each will focus on a different aspect of the cinematic frame, Character, Action, Objects and Space/Geography. We will also watch and discuss live action films as they pertain to these assignments.

ANIM/ANIME 2ST/3ST

Special Topics in Animation

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Special Topics courses in a variety of disciplines are offered each semester for academic credit.

Art History

Art history at an art college is intrinsically different. At KCAI, the art history program reflects a unique approach that combines academic rigor with an understanding of studio practice. The program as a whole takes an object-based approach. This infuses the curriculum with a deep understanding of media, technique and the dynamics of art-making in tandem with the history and theories of art. The art history program is structured to stimulate and enrich critical thinking, intellectual inquiry, investigation, research and analysis between liberal arts and the studio disciplines, as well as throughout the campus community. Investigating art historical methodology and scholarship within the context of a studio-based environment provides the student with insights into and perspectives on the relationships between concept and practice.

As an art history major at KCAI, students have opportunities to enrich their academic experience with internships, directed individual research, travel and writing. Recent hosts for internships have included the Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art, the Kemper Museum of Contemporary Art, The Mellon Fellowship, the H & R Block Artspace, the KCAI Gallery: Center for Contemporary Practice and other local, national and international organizations. Graduates of the art history program at KCAI work in museums and galleries and as educators, writers and editors. They become the critical thinkers of the art world — people who put past and present work into perspective.

As students progress in the major they have opportunities to select from a wide variety of upper level courses, such as “Built for Eternity--From Stonehenge to the Pyramids to the Great Mosques,” “Renaissance Florence--Patronage and Politics,” “Japanese Prints,” “The Politics of Abstraction,” “Asian Animation,” and “Textiles of the World,” and “Seminar: Infames: The Art and Archaeology of Non-Elite Romans” to name only a few.

The program dovetails with the college's minor programs in Social Practice and Asian Studies, and the art history curriculum includes courses that examine the artist's role in society and diverse aspects of Asian art, history literature, language and studio practice.

Dedicated to their teaching, the full-time art history faculty are also active as scholars in their fields — curating, publishing, working with museums and serving on boards of leading professional associations and societies. In the classroom and in professional practice sessions, which junior and senior year students attend as a means of career preparation, art historians talk with students about the symbiotic relationship between studio artists and art historians. Discussion focuses on how the two interact professionally throughout their careers, intersecting in virtually all art venues, including grant-making agencies, critical journals and newspapers, collegiate and university art departments, art galleries and museums and public art programs.

Studies stress content, examination of texts, research and writing. Concurrently, students stay actively involved in the studio.

The student learning outcomes for art history are:

1. Effectively communicate and express ideas orally and in writing.
2. Apply creative and critical thinking and integrate ideas from multiple approaches and perspectives.
3. Possess skills of independent inquiry and effective research through critical engagement with sources of information.
4. Demonstrate the ability to visually analyze works of art – style, technique and process.
5. Have the capacity to address art with cultural awareness and global understanding.
6. Demonstrate an intellectual curiosity beyond one's lived experience in pursuit of living an examined life.

Art history major with studio minor
Art history	30 credit hours
Liberal arts	24 credit hours
Studio	60 credit hours
Open elective	6 credit hours
Total:	120 credit hours

Art history major with studio major (double major)
Art history	30 credit hours
Liberal arts	24 credit hours
Studio	75 credit hours
Open elective	6 credit hours
Total:	135 credit hours

The 30 credit hours in art history include: three hours of Art Historical Studies I, three hours of Art Historical Studies II, three hours of either Ancient or Medieval Art, three hours of either Renaissance or Baroque Art, three hours of Modern Art, three hours of Contemporary Art, three hours of Global/Comparative Art, three hours of Senior Seminar and six hours of art history electives.

The 24 credit hours of liberal arts include: three hours of Writing Seminar, three hours of Critical Studies (formerly History of Thought), three hours of history, three hours of literature, three hours of philosophy, three hours of science or social science and six hours of liberal arts electives (to be taken from any of the six disciplines: art history, history, literature, philosophy, science or social science).

The 60 credit hours of studio are governed by that particular studio's requirements and are required of students majoring in art history and minoring in a studio. The 75 credit hours of studio are required of students double majoring in art history and a studio.

The 6 hours of open elective can be either a studio elective or a liberal arts elective.

Lower Division Art History Required Courses

The Art Historical Studies sequence provides an introductory and thematic study of art from prehistory to the present and recognizes multiple art histories. Emphasis is on critical thinking skills, visual analysis, and a broadened awareness of global cultural and historical contexts. Each section explores a specific theme and selection of works across historical periods and geographic regions determined by the instructor. Art Historical Studies I focuses on art prior to 1600; Art Historical Studies II focuses on art after 1600.

Sample courses:

Art Historical Studies I: You Can Take it with You -- Death and the Afterlife

The Art Historical Studies sequence provides an introductory and thematic study of art from prehistory to the present and recognizes multiple art histories. Emphasis is on critical thinking skills, visual analysis, and a broadened awareness of global cultural and historical contexts. Each section explores a specific theme and selection of works across historical periods and geographic regions determined by the instructor. Art Historical Studies I focuses on art prior to 1600; Art Historical Studies II focuses on art after 1600.

This course will examine the global theme of death and the afterlife, which will focus on the anxieties of, and the practicalities and preparations for, an individual's, or group's, final journey into the next life. This 'next life' has been imagined and interpreted differently across civilizations and time, thus providing this class with diverse visual cultures to analyze. We will explore depictions of and/or objects and monuments associated with burials, remembrance, renewal, rebirth, and various religious beliefs concerning mortality. We will discuss funerary art and practice from many regions, including, but not limited to, East Asia, Africa, Western Europe, the Middle East, and Mesoamerica.

Art Historical Studies I: Fantastic Beasts -- Animals in Global Art

The Art Historical Studies sequence provides an introductory and thematic study of art from prehistory to the present and recognizes multiple art histories. Emphasis is on critical thinking skills, visual analysis, and a broadened awareness of global cultural and historical contexts. Each section explores a specific theme and selection of works across historical periods and geographic regions determined by the instructor. Art Historical Studies I focuses on art prior to 1600; Art Historical Studies II focuses on art after 1600.

From the earliest paleolithic cave paintings to late medieval tapestries, images of animals frequently appear throughout the history of art across regions of the globe. This course will survey the depiction of animals in art before 1600 and investigate objects as diverse as Egyptian sculpture, illuminated bestiaries, and Tang dynasty tomb figures, among many other works. We will explore various stylistic approaches to the representation of animals, their artistic contexts, and how human relationships to the animal world are visually described.

Additionally, we will consider animal-derived materials in the production of art and how they are utilized.

Upper Division Art History Electives

Art History electives can be found under the Liberal Arts Department section on pages 29-46.

Ceramics

The ceramics program provides an in-depth technical, visual, critical, and conceptual foundation for the education of artists. Students explore the vessel, figure, and architectural applications of ceramic art and technology as they pertain to contemporary forms, from functional designs to diverse sculptural practices. Ceramics department facilities support student work with equipment of all kinds, including clay mixers, wheels, a plaster area for advanced mold making, a glaze room, and kilns for ceramics and kiln-formed glass. To safeguard health, students learn procedures and protocols to ensure ongoing safe practice throughout their careers.

The curriculum begins with technically and formally challenging studies in the sophomore year. Once exposed to a broad palette of information, students are supported as they become increasingly self-directed in concept, material, and process through the junior and senior years. Studio elective courses in the ceramics department and across campus offer subjects and media to complement and extend students' explorations, with topics ranging from various disciplines and themes to those that support studio minors such as social practice and entrepreneurship. Students exercise verbal articulation and critical thinking through discussion with faculty, group critiques with peers, and written assignments. Students sharpen their abilities to analyze creative choices and ask their own questions. The program encourages discovery through the process of making and the pursuit of individual research.

Exposure to exhibitions in galleries and museums and direct contact with visiting artists informs historical and global perspectives, a sense of the contemporary, and a knowledge of the diverse working lives of artists and arts professionals. Professional practice skills and internships are stressed so that students will graduate with abilities to work within the arts, present their art, and enter careers in the field. The peer group is an invaluable resource for students, as undergraduates and for future contacts. The faculty seeks to create a sense of community, affirming the learning that occurs outside formal class structure.

CERM 200

Sophomore I: Figure and Structure in Clay

6 credit hours (6 studio)

The fall semester emphasizes figurative sculpture with a focus on the self-portrait. Constructing methods for coil, slab, and casting are introduced; form and the conceptual potential of the figure are primary considerations. Glazes and a variety of surface treatments are layered and applied in multiple firings, with attention to the operations of gas and electric kilns. Students study the history and contemporary uses of the figure and representations of the body in global art practices. Group discussions, individual critiques, and journaling augment the studio experience to develop communication skills for analysis and critical thought.

CERM 205

Materials and Processes I

3 credit hours (2 lecture/4 studio)

This course will focus on individual clays, clay body components, and the various properties of clay that determine color, firing temperature, plasticity, and glaze compatibility. Utilization of the information will allow students to more effectively formulate clay bodies, slips, and terra sigillatas. Laboratory and firing methods will also be covered with an emphasis on safety procedures. Information is presented to complement the sophomore studio course work in the fall semester, enabling the student to more completely and accurately achieve their artistic visions.

Sophomore II: Innovation in the Multiple

6 credit hours (6 studio)

In the spring semester of the sophomore year students are introduced to two modes of vessel production - the potter's wheel and the plaster mold making/slip casting process. The combination of processes will lead to the production of multiple works so that students' innovations are realized in a technically proficient and personal way. Students learn the principles and subtleties that constitute good form. Porcelain clay and casting slip are introduced. Emphasis is placed on developing an understanding of the relationship of form and surface as students explore a variety of finishing techniques. High temperature glazes and firing in reduction and oxidation kilns are explored, as well as post firing techniques that include china paints and lusters. Students also learn resist methods, sgraffito, mishima, glaze trailing, and sandblasting. Students are encouraged to take risks through artistic experimentation as well as to exhibit a strong work ethic while developing and refining skills. Individual and group critiques are conducted throughout the semester. Students study historical and philosophical foundations of vessels through discussion and assignments, using personal experience and knowledge to support, generate, and develop ideas.

CERM 225

Materials and Processes II

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course offers students a comprehensive understanding of ceramic glaze materials and processes. Through lectures, exams and laboratory projects, students learn essential glaze characteristics, the chemical elements, raw materials, and their individual glaze properties. Advanced testing procedures for adjusting glaze characteristics, the toxicity of glaze materials, and the effects of kiln firing is addressed. Laboratory and firing methods will be covered with an emphasis on safety procedures. Information is presented to compliment the sophomore studio course work in the spring semester, enabling the students to achieve their artistic visions more completely and accurately.

CERM 300

Junior I: Source and Form

6 credit hours (6 studio)

Fall semester junior course work builds on the knowledge base gained in previous studies. Students expand technical skills while increasing focus on specialized, personal, and creative investigations of the material. Experimentation and risk taking in technique, vision, and concept are key notions. Research and collecting source material in areas of personal interest are emphasized; historical and contemporary examples will be gathered, studied, and presented. Through this investigation students achieve a greater understanding of context for their work, with participation and growth in critical thinking and articulation. Students select a concentration in the vessel or sculpture. In the vessel curriculum students learn to throw, slip cast, and hand construct advanced compound forms. Students acquire more complex knowledge of glaze, surface embellishment, and subject matter for decoration. Mid- and high-temperature oxidation, reduction, and atmospheric surfaces and firings are conducted. Issues of utility, design and craft are examined. There is an emphasis on enhancing skills to analyze the details of utilitarian and one of-a-kind vessel forms. Juniors choosing the sculpture concentration explore the use of the medium in architecture - tile, relief, terra cotta, and sculpture. There is an in-depth experience with low-fire clay and glazes. Students identify and develop a personal approach to imagery, form, and the surface considerations of painting, relief, pattern, color, texture, and composition by designing, producing, and installing architectural ceramics.

CERM 320

Junior II: Process and Practice

6 credit hours (6 studio)

Second semester juniors continue to pursue an in-depth and focused investigation in ceramic art, identifying and using subject matter and forms of personal interest. Learning to develop ideas, and to process and direct them toward individual technical, visual, and conceptual growth, is the challenge of the semester. You will advance your critical skills for examining your works and the works of your peers through group and individual critiques/meetings with your classmates and the faculty. Students are expected to demonstrate a strong work ethic and a passionate pursuit for investigating personal artistic directions in ceramics throughout the semester, and to maintain openness and a willingness to take risks. You will explore display methods for your works in the mid-term critique, final critique, and Spring Exhibition.

CERM 400

Senior I: Context and Thesis

6 credit hours (6 studio)

Senior students define and implement a thesis - a set of subjects or questions that directs studio practice and source research for the duration of the semester. The thesis will encompass an approach to form, content, and technique in which students explore visual and conceptual issues that are individualized and particular to their interests. Sustaining an idea within the context of risk-taking and experimentation is the challenge of the semester. Students work with their professor to develop a structure for learning through studio practice, writings, and discussion. Skills are advanced for examining artworks through group and individual critiques with classmates and faculty. Students investigate presentation and installation solutions for their works in concert with the spaces and venues planned for end-of-semester exhibitions. Source research and the investigation of historical ceramics and contemporary art practice are conducted by each student in relation to their thesis. Students are expected to demonstrate a strong work ethic and passionate pursuit for investigating personal artistic directions in studio art throughout the semester, and to maintain openness to critique and a willingness to take risks.

CEPP 480

Senior Professional Practice

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course provides ceramics students with tools to initiate and sustain a career in the arts. It covers a range of topics for understanding and navigating the field, identifying options and building strategies for professional pursuits. Studio practices will be examined along with approaches for exhibiting, marketing and selling work within the design and fine arts genres. Prospects for continued artistic growth via grants, residencies, and graduate programs will be explored. Additionally, there will be an investigation of opportunities within the areas of social practice, public art, arts administration, museums, and education. Along with lectures by faculty and field professionals, students will be engaged in researching and presenting regional and national resources. Each senior will present a lecture about their artwork and source research.

Senior II: Thesis, Exhibition and Presentation

6 credit hours (6 studio)

Seniors establish a direction and intent for a final undergraduate body of work - the Senior Exhibition - to be exhibited in the ceramics department spring exhibition at the end of the semester. Seniors are also required to create and submit a piece for the BFA exhibition to be held at the H & R Block Artspace or KCAI Gallery. Each senior must be motivated, focused, and determined to explore visual and conceptual issues that are individualized and personal. Sustaining an idea within the context of risk-taking and experimentation is the challenge for students in this course. You will work with the instructor to develop a structure for your semester's work, while investigating display and installation solutions in concert with the spaces and venues planned for the Senior and BFA exhibitions. Individual research and the investigation of historic ceramic and/or contemporary art practice are expected of each student. You will advance critical skills for examining your works and the works of your peers through group and individual critiques/meetings with your classmates and the faculty. Students are expected to demonstrate a strong work ethic and passionate pursuit for investigating personal artistic directions, and to maintain openness to critique and a willingness to take risks.

INTC 300

Ceramics Internship

(Variable credit hours) [Juniors and Seniors only]

The internship is designed to provide a professional and on-the-job experience in design or fine arts. This may include working in an artist's studio, a gallery, an industry/business or a teaching institution. Workplace learning experiences are valuable for students as they encounter first-hand the daily operation of art-related work opportunities. The internship is also an outreach tool and is mutually beneficial for students, KCAI programs and the local, regional and perhaps national or international community. Students must consult the department chair before initiating application procedures.

Ceramics Electives

CERME 226

Hand-building with Clay

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Hand-building with Clay will give students the skills necessary to produce, glaze, and fire a variety of ceramic forms. Commonly used ceramic construction and surfacing techniques will be covered, including but not limited to a variety of slab construction methods, pinching and coiling techniques, the production and use of press molds, and the fabrication of handheld tools for the forming, texture, and coloration of ceramic works. Through presentations and access to our Teaching Collection, students will gain a greater awareness of how these different forming methodologies have enabled ceramic artists to create meaningful works of art for centuries. Students will have the opportunity to explore both functional and sculptural applications of the ceramic material in this course. Ceramic surface and appropriate finishing techniques will be covered. Students are encouraged to bring their own research and interests into the coursework. Prior experience in ceramics is not required to enroll in the course.

CERME 347

Fundamentals of Wheel Throwing

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Fundamentals of Wheel Throwing will give students the basic skills necessary to produce, glaze, and fire a variety of wheel thrown ceramic forms. Demonstrations and presentations will introduce students to the process of wheel throwing, including trimming, finishing, attaching components, and glazing. Concerns of function and use as well as opportunities to research contemporary and historical traditions will be incorporated into the coursework. A series of projects offers the chance to make both functional vessels and sculptural forms. Students will be encouraged to create individual and original ideas in ceramic media, and to develop a personal approach and artistic direction which may complement the work in their major. The course is open to students of all knowledge and experience levels in ceramics.

CERME 358

Fundamentals of Glass: Kiln Forming

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course explores and expands on kiln forming techniques for creating functional and sculptural works in glass. Students will learn five processes of kiln glass production: glass drawing, fusing, slumping, casting, and coldworking. Using non-traditional drawing materials such as glass powder, mosaic, stringers, and hot glass manipulation, students will translate their ideas and images into form and color. The fusing and slumping methods will teach the properties of melting glass and how it responds to various kiln temperatures. The casting approach explores dimensional glass forms along with cold working techniques to shape and polish them.

CERME 384

Advanced Glass: Kiln Forming

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Prerequisite: CERME 240 or CERME 358] This course is open to students who have completed the Fundamentals of Glass: Kiln Forming elective. It is an advanced class for students who wish to continue their work in this technique and to conduct an intensive personal investigation in the medium. Each student will be encouraged to develop a continued understanding of material, equipment, and firing cycles, and to demonstrate a strong work ethic for pursuing artistic strengths and goals.

CERME 387

The Conversational Dish

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Social Practice minor] The Conversational Dish will cover the creation of handbuilt vessels using a variety of popular forming techniques (pinch, slab, coil and the use of press molds) and decoration methods (slip, underglaze, glaze, monoprinting, inlay and carving/stamping) in clay. Wheel throwing will not be covered in this course. Students will explore the handmade vessel as an intimate and social object that has the power to start conversations, convey information, tell stories, change behavior, and create social interactions. Students will study the relationship of the ceramic dish—its design and function—to food and food-based gatherings. As part of the coursework, students will design, create, and use their dishes in interactions with peers and the community at large. In addition to individual and collaborative studio projects, we will look at contemporary ceramic artists that use the vessel as a platform for social engagement, education, and activism. We will discuss the history of vessels as objects that respond to culture, food, and innovation. Prior experience with ceramics material is not required to enroll in the course.

CERME 2ST/3ST

Special Topics in Ceramics

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Special Topics courses in a variety of disciplines are offered each semester for academic credit.

Creative Writing

When you study creative writing at KCAI, you'll work closely with innovative, accomplished writers to develop a literary practice that complements and deepens your education as an artist. You'll experience engaged, passionate teaching and risk-taking writing grounded in literary fundamentals.

Through small classes, directed individual studies, internships, and opportunities with distinguished visiting writers, you'll develop technique and confidence as a writer. KCAI's award-winning literary magazine, Sprung Formal, allows you to practice real-world editing and publishing skills, while our selection of classes in fiction, poetry, nonfiction, memoir, pastiche, minute fiction, and hybrid forms provide you with the skills to work in the forms you choose. Literature courses are categorized in order to clarify our program's collective areas of expertise, interest, and concentration:

LIT 3000 topics courses:	Topics in Aesthetics
LIT 3100 topics courses:	Topics in Prose
LIT 3200 topics courses:	Topics in Poetry

LIT 3300 topics courses:	Topics in Drama
LIT 3400 topics courses:	Topics in Narrative
LIT 3600 topics courses:	Topics in Global/Comparative Studies
LIT 3700 topics courses:	Topics in Gender Studies
LIT 3800 topics courses:	Topics in Translation and Translation Studies
LIT 3900 topics courses:	Topics in Interdisciplinary Studies

Creative Writing at KCAI offers you a unique experience to integrate your writing and your studio practice while providing a rigorous intellectual framework in the liberal arts. Our program seeks to develop writers who are thinkers and artists and whose work will change the world for the better.

Student learning outcomes for creative writing:

1. Communication. Demonstrate ability to communicate in writing. Clarity. Expressiveness in the sound and sense of language.
2. Critical thinking. Demonstrate ability to analyze a literary text using multiple approaches. Close reading. Development of deep observational skills.
3. Inquiry. Demonstrate ability to conduct an exhaustive and creative investigation. Access all available sources of information. Exercise intellectual curiosity beyond one's lived experience.
4. Risk-taking. Demonstrate a high level of creativity, and a willingness to take creative risks.
5. Techniques and skills. Demonstrate fluency in poetic and narrative techniques.
6. Cultural literacy. Demonstrate the ability to contextualize a literary work, using more than one perspective—cultural, political, historical, and aesthetic.
7. Professional practice. Demonstrate a working knowledge of professional practice in the literary arts.

At least 15 credit hours (five courses) must be taken at the 3000- or 4000-level.

At least one upper division course must be a course in Global/Comparative Studies.

Fiber

The fiber curriculum combines traditional and experimental practices to provide students with a broad technical foundation as well as a conceptual focus. Fiber as a medium crosses boundaries and interfaces with art, design, craft, and technology. Inherently multi-disciplinary, the field of fiber encompasses among others, painting, printing, dyeing, pattern design, sewing, quilting, experimental fashion and costume, weaving, knitting, crochet, sculpture and basketry techniques, felting, spinning and papermaking. Emphasis in this medium is on skill development and the generation of ideas through a materials-based process of making.

FIBR 200

Introduction to Surface and Color

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course will introduce students to color theory and surface design techniques as applied to textile materials. We will work with Fiber Reactive and Natural Dyes to explore the possibilities of immersion dyeing and resist methods as well as direct application techniques such as painting and screen printing. Students will be encouraged to explore their ideas through layering color, imagery, and visual texture with additional processes of overdyeing, discharging, and applying textile pigments.

FIBR 264

Basic Sewn Construction

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This technical studio course covers the basics of sewn construction techniques, including hand and machine sewing, using domestic and industrial machines, including sergers. Students will create a personal library of seams and finishes for use in a wide range of projects. Commercial patterns, patchwork, and dimensional possibilities with sewing will all be covered. While focusing on understanding and practicing the basics of sewn construction, students will have the opportunity to apply their skills to personal and creative outcomes.

FIBR 220

Textile Materials and Construction: Introduction to Weaving

6 credit hours (6 studio)

This course introduces students to various approaches in constructed textiles using weaving. In weaving, all elements are interrelated and function interdependently to create a unified whole. This semester we will examine each of these elements, from the choice of fiber and yarn to the impact of structure and finishing in a logical progression and use the process of weaving as a vehicle in developing a problem-solving attitude. We will first closely examine the plant and animal fibers that have traditionally been used in the fabrication of textiles. We will study their molecular arrangement, chemical composition, and physical structure to make educated choices. The fundamental processes of felting, spinning and knitting are covered to give students opportunities to become familiar with the basic characteristics of the materials and elements used in weaving.

FIBR 335

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Hand Construction: Soft Bodies

This course will investigate various methods of construction to create three-dimensional forms in soft sculpture. We will address surface as well as form by exploring low relief layering techniques that include applique, stitching, collaging, laser cutting and gathering to develop individualized coverings for our sculptures. Approaching the topic through various lenses from experimental costuming, mask making and garment construction as well as more traditional approaches using armatures and stuffing techniques, assignments will center around skill development and exploration. Discussions will focus on contemporary artists and designers while students consider how forms and bodies exist in space, interact with gravity, gesture and drape.

FIBR 355

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Textile Construction: Linear Elements

A line, one of the simplest visual elements, can imply direction, delineate pathways and connect what was once separated. Linear elements in Fiber are mostly used to create forms and construct surfaces. In this course students will be introduced to various methods of connection and construction using linear elements. In a logical progression from single elements such as crochet and knitting to working with multiple elements such as weaving. Using these techniques students will investigate a multitude of materials, natural and man-made, to consider different approaches to creating textile structures.

FIBR 375

Working in Series

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Students will identify the materials, processes, and ideas that are important to their work and develop these areas through a variety of projects, readings, discussions, and critiques. The focus will be on beginning to develop research skills related to studio practice. A variety of dye processes and methods for subtraction and addition of materials and marks for both natural and synthetic fabrics using immersion and direct application methods will be covered. Students are expected to have adequate technical skills in sewing, weaving, printing, dyeing, knitting or related textile medium to be able to work independently on extensive sampling and experimentation.

FIBR 395

Fiber in Context

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course will explore the different ways a fiber studio practice can have a public-facing component. Students will work together to plan, curate, and host an exhibition of their work and develop and teach workshops based on their specific fiber interests. Students will be introduced to professional practices in Fiber through writing artist statements and curating and presenting an exhibition. In addition, each student will identify and begin to establish an online presence for their studio practice which could include a product line in their chosen area of concentration.

FIBR 410

Senior Fiber/Textiles

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This component of the senior year is meant to provide students with opportunities to practice and develop their communication skills as they relate to addressing issues that are relevant to their chosen path in Fiber as well as the broader field. Students are required to participate in organized class activities, including discussions, critiques, artist studio visits, and exhibitions. By the end of the semester, students will have formed the basis for the development of a coherent body of work, which will be exhibited/presented as part of the requirements in FIBR 420, "Senior Thesis Seminar."

FIBR 415

Senior Studio: Fiber, Research, and Studio Practice

3 credit hours (3 studio)

For the majority of studio time, seniors will explore methodologies that are consistent with their chosen artistic direction. It is the student's responsibility to research relevant artists and ideas, to seek out faculty expertise and to work out technical and conceptual issues. By the end of the semester, students will have formed the foundation for a studio practice that will result in a coherent body of work, which will be exhibited/presented as part of the requirements in FIBR 420, "Senior Thesis Seminar."

FIPP 480

Senior Professional Practice

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Professional practice will help students develop professional standards for their on-line and print-based portfolio. The portfolio will include professional image documentation, resume, cover letters and an artist statement. Students prepare an artist presentation chronicling their creative journey and present this to the department in their final semester. All areas of professional practice specific to the field of fiber will be covered.

Senior Thesis Seminar

6 credit hours (6 studio)

The focus of the second semester senior year is the further development of a body of work to be presented in an off campus exhibition, fashion performance or event/presentation appropriate to the nature of the work. With faculty supervision, the majority of class time will be dedicated to working independently in the studio. Faculty and students will meet as a group to discuss professional issues and participate in weekly critiques. Students are required to take part in organized class activities, including artist studio visits, discussions and related exhibitions.

INTFB 300

Fiber Internship

(Variable credit hours) [Juniors and Seniors only]

For juniors and seniors only, this course is designed to provide on-the-job training for students enrolled in the fiber program. Job training does not have to be in an area related to textiles. This course will introduce students to a professional business environment and a wide range of technical applications.

Fiber Electives

FIBRE 265

Stitch: Acts of Purpose, Decoration, Repair, and Storytelling

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Embroidery and other forms of needle arts are ancient, tactile forms of communication and care. The practice of using a needle and thread to patch, mend, tailor, reinforce, and decorate cloth can be traced back thousands of years, with examples found on nearly every continent. While practical and rooted in sustainability, stitching can also be a form of drawing, record-keeping, and storytelling. In this class, we will look at cultures that span time and place and how they have utilized a simple tool to create a variety of approaches for transforming, decorating, and enhancing the surface of pliable materials. Working with new and repurposed textiles, plus alternative substrates, we will explore a range of surface manipulation processes including hand and machine stitching, piecing, embroidery, cross stitch, and applique. This class will place equal emphasis on learning the skills and traditions of various needle arts from around the world, while also exploring our own unique voices and approaches to these ancient techniques.

FIBR/FIBRE 311

The Quilt: More than the Sum of its Parts

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course will explore the many facets of contemporary quilt-making, from function to fine art. Students will investigate traditional and non-traditional methods of constructing quilts, including stitching, joining, appliqué, improvisational machine piecing and machine quilting. Research and discussion of historic and contemporary quilting topics, including quilting and community, quilts as documents of history and the “Modern Quilt” movement will aid students in identifying their own interests within the field.

FIBR 3112

The Quilt: More than the Sum of its Parts – Intermediate

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Prerequisite: FIBR/FIBRE 311] This course is offered as an intermediate level alongside FIBR 311. The intent of this course is to provide students who have completed FIBR 311 with more in depth instruction and challenge them with applying their foundational quilting skills with an individual/personal focus. Students are also required to assist the instructor with demos and class preparation in order to provide them with additional training.

FIBR/FIBRE 338

Knitwear and the Body

3 credit hours (3 studio)

In Knitwear and the Body, students will apply the structure of knitting to create three-dimensional skins using the format of the body as a point of departure. Students will begin with basic hand and machine knitting instruction and will develop a series of proposed projects that support their individualized approaches. Readings and discussions will consider the body within a contemporary art context as well as the development of the fashioned body and how it has played a role in the formation of identity, class, and culture. No prior knitting experience is required.

FIBR/FIBRE 345

Hand and Machine Knitting

3 credit hours (3 studio)

In this class students will learn to create fabric and 3-D forms by using the structure of knitting– an ancient technique consisting of a series of connected interlocking loops of yarn or fiber to create fabric. Students will learn the basic knitting stitches and techniques, study traditional applications for knitting and more contemporary approaches. Projects will start with mastering the basics then applying that understanding in solving problems in garment construction, sculptural forms or fabric yardage. This class introduces students to a range of materials and methods commonly associated with Textiles.

FIBR/FIBRE 353

Waste as Resource: Garment Construction and Material Reuse

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Social Practice minor] Waste as Resource is a studio course that will cover garment design and sewn construction within the context of material re-use. Students enrolled in the course will work with traditional and experimental garment forms, and they will develop basic sewing skills as well as a material awareness. This course is intended for students with all levels of sewing experience, and is directed towards students who are interested in thinking globally about fashion and garment design. It would be helpful that students have basic sewing machine experience. Students will be introduced to various mending techniques and develop material awareness. They will learn to read and employ commercially available patterns, and to construct and finish garments that are both functional as well as grounded in waste-led design.

FIBR 3532

Waste as Resource: Garment Construction and Material Reuse - Intermediate

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Social Practice minor] [Prerequisite: FIBR/FIBRE 353] Waste as Resource is a studio course that will cover intermediate level garment design and sewn construction within the context of material re-use. Students enrolled in the course will work with traditional and experimental garment forms, and they will develop intermediate sewing skills as well as a material awareness. This course is intended for students with intermediate level sewing experience, and is directed towards students who are interested in thinking globally about fashion and garment design.

FIBR/FIBRE 381

Introduction to Garment Design and Construction

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This is a course that focuses specifically on garment design and construction, and includes studio-based inquiries into material re-use and the development of experimental garment forms. This course is intended for both intermediate and advanced students who are interested in using garments—as prompt, subject, or material—in their work. Students will learn advanced draping techniques, to read and employ commercially available patterns, and to construct and finish garments that are functionally driven as well as conceptually driven.

FIBR 3812

Intermediate Garment Design and Construction

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course is an intermediate level to the companion course introduction to garment design and construction FIBR 381. It focuses on intermediate garment design and construction processes and includes studio-based inquiries into material re-use and the development of experimental garment forms. This course is intended for both intermediate and advanced students who are interested in using garments—as prompt, subject, or material—in their work. Students will learn advanced draping techniques, to read and employ commercially available patterns, and to construct and finish garments that are functionally driven as well as conceptually driven. Students in this class will take on a mentoring role and occasionally assist the instructor with demos and class organization. Students in this level are expected to build on their previously acquired skills and engage in more in depth research.

FIBR/FIBRE 391

Advanced Sewn Construction: From Idea to Physical Form

(3 credit hours)

[Prerequisite: FIBR/FIBRE 264 or FIBR 320] In this course students will build on basic sewing skills to obtain a technically sound and advanced construction skill set; through acquiring proficiency in draping, custom pattern drafting and sewing techniques. Developing these skills in a series of small collections, students will explore their raw conception abilities and how to produce completely original designs with competitive industry standards and couture finishing. We will cover how inspiration is turned into physical form by focusing on the craft of draping onto the form, creating an original pattern and then sewing an authentic design after following those steps. The goal of this course is for the student to become very familiar with this process and to be able to produce any original idea going forward with advanced construction and finishing.

FIBR/FIBRE 2ST/3ST

Special Topics in Fiber

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Special Topics courses in a variety of disciplines are offered each semester for academic credit.

Filmmaking

As the medium of our times the moving image and related lens generated images are the most common and often the least understood images in usage.

Our curriculum is based on critical conceptual and technical driven inquiry and investigation into the medium, exploring the moving image as a delivery system for content and ideas.

You will be exposed to all modes of historical and contemporary fine art filmmaking, cinematic theory and practice- including expanded approaches to the moving image and emerging relationships between the still and the moving image. The elective program is developed in conjunction with core curriculum to provide a variety to expand your personal artistic practice within the camera arts.

As a member of the filmmaking program, you will explore aesthetic, conceptual and technical perspectives of the moving image with students who are working in diverse areas of personal image making. The program is active in both traditional materials and digital production and provides strong grounding in professional cinematography, production, and post-production workflow along with professional distribution skills. These methods are intertwined throughout the curriculum reinforcing the interrogation of the syntax and production of the moving image.

Technical instruction covers the understanding of 16mm analog film production, digital filmmaking production, sound production, and presentation techniques.

Advanced studios focus on conceptual development and expanding technical skills with an emphasis on the individual student's vision through the advancement of self-driven production and research projects mentored by faculty in concept development, individualized technical explorations, and professional management skills. These advanced studios emphasize producing a personal body of work that demonstrates strong conceptual and technical underpinnings while broadening professional practice skills that includes self-promotion, distribution, grant writing, formulating budgets, public speaking, archiving, residency, and exhibition applications. The senior year is dedicated to the development of a yearlong thesis project that culminates into an artist talk as well as the BFA Exhibition.

Nearby museums such as the Kemper Museum of Contemporary Art and the Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art, make it possible for students to see examples of important historical and contemporary collections and exhibitions, meet with curators and attend gallery talks.

CAMA 201

Camera Arts: Fundamentals of Analog Filmmaking

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This hands-on course immerses students in the art and technique of 16mm cinematography, exploring both its historical significance and contemporary applications. Through practical exercises, students will develop a strong technical foundation in shooting, lighting, and exposing film while also engaging with the aesthetic and conceptual possibilities of the medium. Students will be introduced to filmmakers and movements that have embraced 16mm, from classic cinema to experimental and avant-garde practices, gaining an understanding of how this format has been used to challenge cinematic conventions and expand visual storytelling. Through workshops and practical assignments, students will refine their visual language and develop their own projects on film.

CAMA 202

Camera Arts: Fundamentals of Analog Photography

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course introduces the foundational principles of image-making through analog black-and-white photography. Students will develop technical proficiency in exposure, film development, darkroom printing, and scanning while exploring the medium's unique visual and expressive qualities. Emphasizing both technical mastery and creative exploration, the course encourages experimentation with form and technique as a means of engaging with photographic theory, aesthetics, and poetics. Through hands-on assignments, discussions, and critiques, students will refine their understanding of photographic image-making as a platform for conceptual and fine art practice.

CAMA 205

The Historical and Contemporary Moving Image I

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course is an exploration of the historical and contemporary landscape of moving images, examining artists, filmmakers, and movements that have shaped cinematic history. By analyzing moments in film history and questioning the subjectivity of historical narratives, this course encourages critical thinking about how moving images have been used as artistic, political, and cultural tools across different contexts. Students will study works from around the world, tracing the development of film form, experimental storytelling, and radical artistic interventions. Through screenings, discussions, readings, and written assignments, students will gain a deeper understanding of the historical and contemporary moving image climate and perspectives.

CAMA 203

Camera Arts: Fundamentals of Digital Filmmaking

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This hands-on course immerses students in the art and technique of digital filmmaking production, while exploring its contemporary significance and applications. Through practical exercises, students will develop a strong technical foundation in shooting, lighting, and editing while also engaging with the aesthetic and conceptual possibilities of the digital medium. Students will be introduced to filmmakers and movements that have embraced digital film, from traditional cinema to experimental and avant-garde practices, gaining an understanding of how this format has been used to challenge cinematic conventions and expand visual storytelling. Through workshops and practical assignments, students will refine their visual language and develop their own digital film projects.

CAMA 204

Camera Arts: Fundamentals of Digital Photography

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course introduces the foundational principles of image-making through digital photography. Through practical exercises, students will develop a strong technical foundation in shooting, lighting, and digital printing and editing while also engaging with the aesthetic and conceptual possibilities of the digital medium while exploring the medium's unique visual and expressive qualities. Emphasizing both technical mastery and creative exploration, the course encourages experimentation with form and technique as a means of engaging with photographic theory, aesthetics, and poetics. Through hands-on assignments, discussions, and critiques, students will refine their understanding of photographic image-making as a platform for conceptual and fine art practice.

CAMA 207

The Historical and Contemporary Moving Image II

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Prerequisite: CAMA 205] This course is a continuation of The Historical and Contemporary Moving Image I that further explores the historical and contemporary landscape of moving images, examining artists, filmmakers, and movements that have shaped cinematic history. By analyzing moments in film history and questioning the subjectivity of historical narratives, this course encourages critical thinking about how moving images have been used as artistic, political, and cultural tools across different contexts. Students will study works from around the world, tracing the development of film form, experimental storytelling, and radical artistic interventions. Through screenings, discussions, readings, and written assignments, students will gain a deeper understanding of the historical and contemporary moving image climate and perspectives.

CAMA 301

Camera Arts: Specializations in Filmmaking

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Intended for first semester juniors with a solid foundational knowledge of film production. This course investigates advanced cinematic approaches and expanded notions of lens-based artwork while fostering the development of both conceptual and technical elements within a student's individual practice. Emphasis is on the integration of ideas and artistic expression through a guided exploration of self-directed artistic production and research through hands-on filmmaking demonstrations, production assignments, group discussions, professional practice techniques within filmmaking, and surveying historical and contemporary cinematic-based work.

Camera Arts: Specializations in Photography

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Intended for first semester juniors with a solid foundational knowledge of photographic processes. This course investigates advanced photographic approaches and expanded notions of lens-based artwork while fostering the development of both conceptual and technical elements within a student's individual practice. Emphasis is on the integration of ideas and artistic expression through a guided exploration of self-directed artistic production and research through hands-on photography demonstrations, photography-based production assignments, group discussions, professional practice techniques with photography, and surveying historical and contemporary photographic-based work.

CAMA 311

Filmmaking Studio I

6 credit hours (6 studio)

Filmmaking Studio I centers on advanced methods and strategies for the development and realization of an independent filmmaking project while becoming self-aware of one's own creative process. Through a guided, self-driven, semester-long cinematic-based work and research project, students will be introduced to project proposal, filmmaking budgets, and filmmaking project management approaches in addition to advanced research methods while pursuing their own individualized investigations. Fostering the blending of historical, technical, and conceptual elements of a student's cinematic-based work and research and engaging within critical dialog surrounding expanded approaches to filmmaking is a focus within the course. Students are expected to take risks and explore new artistic territories while further advancing their technical filmmaking and critical skills in the context of group critiques and discussions. Screenings, assigned readings, research, fieldwork, grant writing assignments, technical filmmaking demonstrations, production coursework, and class presentations will parallel each individual student's area of focus.

CAMA 411

Filmmaking Studio II

6 credit hours (6 studio)

Filmmaking Studio II centers on the guided development and management of a self-directed, year-long, filmmaking-based thesis production and research project. Emphasis is on advanced professional practice skills based on each student's own creative process, mastery of cinematic-based techniques, and advanced research methods including fieldwork. Upholding the unification of historical, technical, and conceptual elements of a student's cinematic-based thesis production and thesis research project while engaging within critical dialog surrounding expanded notions of filmmaking is a focus within the course. Students are expected to take risks and build upon previously discovered artistic territories while further advancing their technical filmmaking expertise and critical skills in the context of weekly production presentations, group critiques, and discussions. Screenings, assigned readings, research, fieldwork, grant writing assignments, technical filmmaking demonstrations, production coursework, and class presentations will parallel each individual student's area of focus.

CAMA 421

Filmmaking Studio III

6 credit hours (6 studio)

Filmmaking Studio III is dedicated to the post-production phase of your self-directed, year-long, senior thesis project, initiated during Filmmaking Studio II. Focus is on advanced film editing methods, advance sound design, and professional exporting techniques for various distribution practices. Emphasis will be on the development, submission, and professional installation of students' BFA exhibition. Additionally, students are required to refine their presentation skills, artist statement writing, and cinematic-based self-promotional approaches that will culminate in to both an artist talk and a senior printed catalog. Screenings, suggested readings, research, production coursework, and class presentations will parallel each individual student's filmmaking-based area of focus. Shared research and group critiques of work in progress take place on a regular weekly schedule.

SOUNE 301

Audio-Vision: Sound for the Screen & Space

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Sound minor; required for Sound minor students] Perceptual embodiment in aural and visual experience is applied to developing audio production techniques for the screen and space. Hands-on technical demonstrations, production crew work, artistic and technical presentations, and soundtrack analysis will serve in developing audio for the screen. Sound works by artists and sound designers will be introduced to support our work.

CAMAE 349

Artist as Curator

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Juniors and Seniors only] This course explores professional practice in various career paths and focuses on the process of exhibition making as a collaborative practice and ways of thinking about curating, not only from an artist perspective, but through engagement with processes that involve all parties relevant to specific presentations. Exhibitions are the central function of museums and art galleries and the dominant format to showcase artworks by individuals or groups of artists, particular genres, thematic areas, or collections. Spatial decision making, handling and placement of objects, and public program development, catalog, mailing lists and approaching galleries will be considered in a practical learning environment. Additionally, students are exposed to a range of resources and opportunities for artists and professionals with an in-depth understanding of written and organizational skills necessary to support their work in varied areas of the professional fields. The course will culminate in a group exhibition with artworks by the students of the class and an exhibition proposal based on the collaborative practice. This course fulfills the Professional Practice requirement for Filmmaking and Photography majors but it is open and encouraged to be taken by all students interested in curatorial practice.

LIVE! - Audiovisual Concepts and Approaches for Creative Real Time Situations

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Prerequisite: CAMA/CAMAE 203; Social Practice minor; Sound minor] How can artists utilize audiovisual media's immediacy? Through experimentation and research, this studio course will concentrate on the use of visual and sonic media as a central component within live creative situations such as performance, installation, outdoor/architectural projection, and real time streaming. You will gain the foundational skills needed for projection mapping (technique for merging the projected image with physical space and or objects, moving away from traditional flat projection surfaces), audiovisual mixers for live manipulation, multi-channel projection, fundamental lighting programming, and streaming. In addition, there will be an examination of the historical predecessors who employed live audiovisual components as well as contemporary artists working in this field. Production assignments will be given throughout the semester, and towards the end of the semester, one large individually driven final production will be due.

CAMAE 237

Cameraperson: Feminist Filmmaking and Moving Image

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This seminar-workshop course explores works by women artists behind the camera who discovered and invented new languages and approaches by refusing, redefining, and restructuring the conventional boundaries in moving image form. Through screenings, readings, visiting artist talks, and discussions, students will critically examine gender not only as in the realm of representation, but also as a historically embedded element in the development of the film production process, the cinematic apparatus, the cinematic language, and the materiality of film. Students will work on individual filmmaking projects seeking to reevaluate the power and subjectivity of the camera while envisioning alternative possibilities of cinema and moving image.

CAMAE 251

Performance as Image, Interaction and Intervention

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Social Practice minor; Sound minor] In this seminar-style elective, students will delve into the conceptual, historical and technical underpinnings of performance art. We will consider creative methods to produce artworks that engage embodied experience, impermanence and physical movements for students to explore their personal engagement with these processes. The class will focus around three topical areas: performance as a live event and/or action for the camera, participatory performance and performance as intervention with an existing cultural or social sphere. This coursework will be structured through lectures, student research presentations, class discussions, work in progress and critiques. Drawing from the three areas, students will produce three studio projects over the course of the semester. Any media or cross disciplinary practice is welcome and encouraged to be employed through this experimental engagement with performance methodologies.

Special Topics in Camera Arts

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Special Topics courses in a variety of disciplines are offered each semester for academic credit.

Graphic Design

Design begins with the premise that the world is a mutable, transitioning, and shared place. Supported by a diverse array of media-fluid skills and methods, graphic design students at KCAI develop a holistic idea-driven creative practice through critical and exploratory thinking, making, and reflecting. Students learn how to make and shape meaning, and communicate ideas visually, through the manipulation of text, image, and space. Working in multiple orientations in collaborative and self-directed settings, students are encouraged to question and explore how design can creatively impact the world.

The revised curriculum features a core track of six inquiry-based studio courses that cut across media [2d / 3d / 4d] and repositions graphic design as equally important within civic and commercial contexts. These major studios are supported by a series of studies in essential design principles and practices. This flexible structure provides students with a foundation of generalist abilities and at the same time allows for the self-driven development of a specialist set of knowledge and skills. Students leave with the capacity to be fluid and nimble within a constantly shifting world of design.

Building on a foundation of broad visual-based thinking and making inquiry during their sophomore fall semester, students will continue their development through deeper dives in several different areas of design inquiry that constitute future-focused needs for designers in society. These include interaction, interdisciplinary studies, information visualization, social innovation, and branding + identity. Embedded in each six-credit studio is a constant thread of reading- and discussion-based mini-seminars that help students connect ideas and increase the relevance of their work. Their inquiry-based track will culminate in a self-directed senior project during their final semester. Essential studio courses in typography, image-making, research, and professional practices will run alongside and support the students' inquiry-based learning.

Overall, this mix of exploratory thinking and making with more traditional learning will allow students to form a fluid and nimble approach to a continually expanding and shifting field of design. It will provide them the agency to push on the boundaries of the practice and continue to evolve the field during their studies and onwards in various professional positions.

All students majoring in Graphic Design must participate in the mandatory laptop buy.

DESN 201

Visual Inquiry

6 credit hours (6 studio)

As creative practitioners and makers, graphic designers are engaged with the powers and persuasions of the visual realm. We will engage in a rigorous study of techniques and processes that form the foundation of an expansive visual communication practice, including elements and principles of design, gestalt theory, composition, image/text combination, video editing and montage, photography, and sequential and non-linear narrative. Through the introduction of the design process — research, ideation, iteration, and prototyping, we will examine the designers’ roles in society as well as contextualize ethics and sustainability in design practice. We will discuss insights and share ideas we glean from reading, watching, and listening to a range of relevant sources.

DESN 221

Type and Image I

3 credit hours (3 studio)

We are constantly surrounded by text and images that inform, assist, persuade, and entertain us. Understanding these two fundamental building blocks of graphic design is critical to successful design practice. Consider this your starting point for a critical dive into making meaningful and conceptually-driven images, text, and the gray space between them. With an eye toward breadth and range and a bias toward making, we will explore typographic history, classification, and its roles as “language made visible” in information and visual expression. We’ll practice using a wide range of expected and unexpected analog and digital image-making tools and media, from pens and brushes to digital photo/video and all points in between.

DESN 240

Graphic Design Histories

3 credit hours (2 lecture/1 studio)

As critical thinkers and makers, the strongest graphic designers must develop an understanding of visual communication from prehistory to the present as a critical history of social, cultural and technological change. We will examine the history of the written word, production methods, mass communication, and other modes and means of design to study the changing values and ideas around distribution, circulation, literacy, and other activities core to design. Research methodologies establish and reinforce a foundation for independent research and writing. We will engage in group conversations to discuss, activate and share insights and ideas we glean from reading, watching, and listening to a range of relevant sources.

DESN 202

Communication Inquiry

3 credit hours (3 studio)

We are in near-constant communication every day, yet most people have no idea of the underlying processes and concepts that govern how and why communication works in the ways it does. Understanding the fundamentals of a range of communication theories is vital for graphic designers to practice effectively with a deep understanding of the “why” and “how” of what we do. Through active and exploratory questioning, we will dig into theories such as semiotics, rhetoric, modes of persuasion, communication theory and similar ideas to understand what they are, how they work, and their impacts on graphic design and society at large in both commercial and social/civic contexts.

DESN 222

Type and Image II

3 credit hours (3 studio)

To continue our exploration of the visual power of type & image, we will investigate the wide-ranging possibilities of various formal combinations of text and image to produce meaning that is vital to social and cultural communication systems. Issues of composition and hierarchy, simultaneity and sequencing of image & text, together and in isolation, will be addressed through 2d, 3d, and 4d experimentation.

DESN 242

Media Inquiry

3 credit hours (3 studio)

We are living in an age of rapid and constant expansion of media. Our tools and platforms — our modes and means to design and tell stories — are advancing at bewildering rates. A fluency in how to effectively communicate with various media forms, and a fluidity to design across a diverse array of media channels, are essential traits for graphic designers operating in this exciting age of transmedia. We'll gain experience and skill in the technical processes of a graphic design practice, acquiring a basic command of our core toolset — Adobe Creative Suite — with an emphasis on the principles of how to most effectively operate across multiple programs. Additionally, we'll explore HTML/CSS, best practices in file building and management, creative hardware applications, and other processes that will allow us to continue on the most fruitful path of further inquiry and to build towards a proficient design practice. To support and shape our experiences within the studio, we will discuss insights and share ideas we glean from reading, watching, and listening to a range of relevant sources.

DESN 302

Professional Practices

3 credit hours (3 studio)

As contemporary graphic designers, we must understand the ways in which we develop, frame and share our work and processes. With focus on portfolio presentation and resume development, we will develop experience in documentation, writing, presenting, public speaking, and other essential skills to prepare for creative opportunities beyond the classroom. To support and shape our experiences within the studio and understand the broader design landscape, we will attend studio visits, research firms and studios, and engage in informational interviews with professional designers.

DESN 321

Interaction Inquiry*

6 credit hours (6 studio)

Deliberate integration of interaction and usability is now a prerequisite for all graphic design work. Using both digital and analog technologies, we will examine fundamental principles governing this ever-evolving field. By wireframing, studying mobile-first methodologies, prototyping, and introducing ourselves to information architecture, user interface design, and user-experience principles, we focus on the user as the center of our designs in both social/civic and commercial contexts. Considerations for project usability are gathered through user testing methodologies and seen through user-centered design fundamentals. In advanced levels we work with hardware and software applications (physical sensors, machine learning, internet of things, VR/AR, etc.) and emerging technologies that integrate with user interactions. To support and shape our experiences within the studio, we will discuss insights and share ideas we glean from reading, watching, and listening to a range of relevant sources.

DESN 341

Branding and Identity Inquiry*

6 credit hours (6 studio)

With a fluency and fluidity to design with and in a transmedia world, for diverse audiences and contexts that are constantly shifting between modes of reception, we have the opportunity to create deep meaning and impact through the design of comprehensive systems. We will explore the full scope of the identity and branding design process, from research to concept development to production, learning how to apply an array of conceptual and visual elements across various media to create a cohesive system. We will investigate practical and speculative approaches, research new trends and strategies, and broaden our understanding of how design can help establish a unified message. To support and shape our experiences within the studio, we will discuss insights and share ideas we glean from reading, watching, and listening to a range of relevant sources. Subject matter draws from the fields of design, marketing, mass communication, and psychology. The class will focus on a range of identity and branding topics such as; identity design, guerrilla marketing, participatory design, designing for diverse cultures and subcultures, design applications for goods and services entities, and the use of machine learning and artificial intelligence. A second iteration of this course has students exploring advanced branding and identity topics such as: competitive branding, rebranding, damage and disaster mitigation, and market disruption.

DESN 361

Social Innovation Inquiry*

6 credit hours (6 studio)

[Social Practice minor] As creative thinkers and makers, graphic designers have much to contribute to the complex societal issues we face with respect to justice, equity, sustainability, [dis]ability, and a range of other wicked problems worthy of our attention. We also have a responsibility to people and the planet to undertake our work within a thoughtful ethical framework. Through a student-initiated, question-led process, we will explore these interrelated topics in a holistic, strategic, and systematic way. We will respectfully center our audience and their relationships to the issue in a co-design process, with media, communication strategy, context, and visual form following suit, leading to innovative design propositions that seek to improve our communities within both social/civic and commercial contexts. Advanced students will focus more intently on independent, grassroots work and their role as designer-facilitator-community member in a real-world context. To support and shape our experiences within the studio, we will discuss insights and share ideas we glean from reading, watching, and listening to a range of relevant sources.

DESN 301

Research and Process

3 credit hours (3 studio)

An empathetic and nuanced understanding of the audience is part and parcel of effective graphic design work, as are iterative and expansive processes that center those for whom we design. Together, we will examine current practices in socially-centered, human-centered, and ethnographic design research methods. Process exploration into participatory, co-design, and experimental approaches at both the micro- and macro-level will broaden our understanding of how we might engage our practice in new ways, resulting in more empowering, inclusive, and effective graphic design work.

DESN 322

Interdisciplinary Inquiry*

6 credit hours (6 studio)

As graphic designers with an expansive practice and a skillset built for transmedia communication, we are particularly equipped for interdisciplinary collaboration. We will engage with diverse makers and thinkers outside our department to form collaborative project teams, working together to address complex issues in social/civic, and/or commercial contexts through practical and theoretical projects. We will develop various collaboration strategies and methods in skill and resource sharing, team management, group research, participatory workshop facilitation, and diversity and inclusion best practices, among others. To support and shape our experiences within the studio, we will discuss insights and share ideas we glean from reading, watching, and listening to a range of relevant sources.

DESN 342

Information and Data Visualization Inquiry*

6 credit hours (6 studio)

An information and attention economy requires that quantitative and qualitative data, news, statistics, processes, and instructions take on clear, understandable, and investigable visual form. This enhances the viewer's ability to understand and analyze information or accomplish tasks. Together we will immerse ourselves in foundational principles of information design, diagramming and mapping systems and processes, visualization of the concrete and abstract, systems thinking, and consider the ethical issues such as data bias and use/misuse of data. To support and shape our experiences within the studio, we will discuss insights and share ideas we glean from reading, watching, and listening to a range of relevant sources.

DESN 401

Type / Image Inquiry

3 credit hours (3 studio)

As creative thinkers and makers, graphic designers are particularly aware of the power of type and image. In this student-initiated, question-led process and structure, each student will investigate the finer points of the art and craft of typography and/or image to produce meaning that is vital to social and cultural communication systems. Activating our cumulative knowledge, we will choose a focus area for the semester and investigate those ideas through a series of projects. Focus on composition, sequence and narrative, simultaneity and sequencing of image & text, together and in isolation, will be addressed through 2D, 3D, and 4D experimentation.

DESN 422

Self-Directed Inquiry

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This student-led inquiry serves as an opportunity for each student to propose, design and produce a complex, multi-part project addressing a unique topic and focus of your choosing. Through a self-directed design process of research, problem identification and inquiry, we will focus on people, communication, and media in commercial and social/civic contexts. Complex visual systems will be addressed through 2D, 3D, and 4D experimentation. To support and shape our experiences within the studio, we will discuss insights and share ideas we glean from reading, watching, and listening to a range of relevant sources.

DESNE 215

D.I.Y.T. [Do It Yourself Typography]

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Taking cues from the d.i.y.-ers of all stripes, we will experiment, ask questions, and direct ourselves in making typography “by any means necessary”. Whether it be cell phone cameras and free software, magazines and x-actos, or popsicle sticks and hot glue, the emphasis will be on accessible materials and making the ordinary extraordinary. After an initial focus on making type, we will examine its meaning and potential – how, where, and why it might be used in your existing body of work or to create new work. We’ll focus on fun, unbridled typo-making in this course. Prior typography coursework is cool but not required.

DESNE 230

Typography as Public Engagement / Intervention / Disruption

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Social Practice minor] How do designers and artists leverage the written word for engaging meaningfully with communities in ways that disrupts normal patterns of thought and action? What does it look like to collaborate with others in telling stories, expressing viewpoints, or sharing facts? As visually creative people, what is our role as authors of messages or facilitators of messages alongside others? How might we design processes that allow everyday folks to express themselves through the written [and seen] word? To suss out these answers, we will practice putting our text-based ideas out into public spaces, examine co-design processes, meet with creators of public projects, activists, and non-profits, learn basics of typography and lettering as a means of emotional and rational communication, and look at a range of public projects from street art to exhibition design, from installations to protest design and art.

DESNE 240

Graphic Design Histories

3 credit hours (2 lecture/1 studio)

As critical thinkers and makers, the strongest graphic designers must develop an understanding of visual communication from prehistory to the present as a critical history of social, cultural and technological change. We will examine the history of the written word, production methods, mass communication, and other modes and means of design to study the changing values and ideas around distribution, circulation, literacy, and other activities core to design. Research methodologies establish and reinforce a foundation for independent research and writing. We will engage in group conversations to discuss, activate and share insights and ideas we glean from reading, watching, and listening to a range of relevant sources.

DESNE 280

Abecedarium: A Cabinet of Typographic Curiosities

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Interested in letters, alphabets, syllabaries, or writing systems around the globe? In this course, we explore all things typographic from dropcaps to lettering to type design. We explore the back shelves of used bookstores, visit archives and libraries, look at painted signage, and observe how visual language is read, seen, felt and heard through typography. Through a series of prompts, we study the fundamentals and principles of typography supported by highlights from design histories and contemporary practices. We discuss the differences between lettering (drawing words) and making a font (type design). You will be exposed to a variety of forms of calligraphy and drawing letterforms in order to integrate design systems processes and type design practices into your work.

DESNE 312

Typography for the Artist

3 credit hours (3 studio)

The visual form of written words plays a vital role in not only common objects like resumes and websites but in many forms of art. This course will visually explore both the pragmatic and expressive potential of letters and words. Exercises are designed to equip artists with an understanding of letterforms and their anatomy: including design, classifications, history, making font selections, basic hierarchy, layout, and digital typesetting tools. Students will leverage their preferred art medium as a vehicle to execute projects and meaningfully integrate typographic fundamentals into their work.

DESNE 330

Typography In/With/For Space

3 credit hours (3 studio)

In what ways might typography and language manifest in an artistic practice? This studio elective course begins with a series of workshops focused on the fundamentals and principles of typography. The course offers exposure to artistic practices and inquiries that engage language in space — physical, virtual, digital, material, and augmented spatial constructs. In a proposal-based format, students work with typography at multiple scales. A strong interest in developing work that engages language is encouraged and expected. No prior experience with typography or graphic design courses is required.

DESNE 2ST/3ST

Special Topics in Graphic Design

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Special Topics courses in a variety of disciplines are offered each semester for academic credit.

Illustration

Illustration has always helped to define, energize or set the mood/tone for the story. As a result, it has often helped to record the diverse human experience and related visual narratives. Illustration has had many faces and various venues always seeming in flux, moving forward and transitioning now toward a new personal view. This morphing of purpose and exciting change continues, its definition dependent upon the avant-garde creative and passionate producers, who through their cutting-edge work, will inform us of its ever-changing direction, culture and identity.

Here at KCAI, we value and help deliver to the external community, young artists that mirror the unique interpretation of various cultural narratives and help celebrate them as the visual essay. The work they develop and form is for print, the screen and beyond, is individually or collaboratively thoughtful, innovative, imaginative and communicative.

Our Mission: The Illustration program emphasizes the development of creative and effective image-making skills, a contemporary approach to unique (visual essay) solutions and the professional practice necessary to help promote living life as a productive artist and as a contributor to the ever-changing culture.

Illustration students work with traditional and digital media to develop the conceptual, technical and aesthetic skills necessary for success in the diverse range of practices in this continually evolving field. Courses such as Analytical Drawing Systems, Exploring the Narrative, Visual/Sequential Storytelling and Thesis are geared toward enabling students to simultaneously express themselves as artists while learning how to communicate substantive visual messages. The Illustration department has a history of working with the external community in and around Kansas City. Within the US: Collaboration class, students collect input from area residents in underrepresented communities and create imagery that celebrates the cultural diversity of these communities. A clear understanding of the program's courses can be found on KCAI's website within the Illustration major page.

Students work on collaborative projects and are encouraged to participate in an internship or mentorship that provides real-world exposure to creative issues in professional work settings. The department features studio and classroom technology to help prepare students for diverse areas of professional practice. Work in a digital and analog environment is designed to facilitate creativity and interdisciplinary approaches to image making. The results of which are expected at times to work across disciplines and in collaboration with other studio majors. Their work is also measured at the end of every academic year by our well-established illustration-specific Student Learning Outcomes (SLOs).

Our faculty are seasoned, practicing, award-winning, working professionals who bring to the classroom a wealth of experience, work ethic, knowledge of processes and a dedication not only to the discipline, but also to the educational opportunity of sharing, guiding and learning through teaching. The faculty's combined experience is passed on to students in preparation for the students' future careers.

The successful graduate will find work in many different areas, depending on their strengths, preferences, and locale. Children's books, web-ventures, editorial magazines, newspapers, new product lines, game design, animation, design firms, galleries, corporations, ad agencies and other yet undefined new future ventures all offer employment opportunities. A number of exceptional graduates are also able to establish a practice as a freelancer.

Sophomore Studio: Organic Perceptions

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Figure drawing, with an emphasis on gesture drawing in addition to representational drawing, is the focus of this class. Students will spend time in class drawing from the nude model. Exploration of various methods of image-making (collage, charcoal, ink, pastel) and various methods of drawing (blind contour, continuous line) are also a focus.

ILLU 210

Color and Space

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Color theory, color mixing, and color exploration will be realized through the hands-on painting experience in this course. Students will create a large-scale self-portrait with oil paint; supplies will be provided. An understanding of three-dimensional space through collage, still-life construction and models will add to the student's formative experience.

ILLU 221

Graphic Form for Illustrators

3 credit hours (3 studio)

The student will create work related to the balance of image and type. Type and hand lettering as image, mock-ups for posters, magazine covers, logos, product packaging, layout, design, technical and compositional issues will all be covered. Introduction of the illustration workflow: from thumbnail sketches and presentation of concepts to finished art.

ILLU 220

Sophomore Studio: Image and Form Exploration

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Solution-focused problem-solving is a part of the artist's process. This course will focus on exploration, innovation, discovery and play as means toward that end. We will work to create images and/or objects and explore a variety of image-making techniques such as the 3D constructed image, linocut, silkscreen, collage and more.

ILLU 235

Analytical Drawing Systems

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Students will explore various drawing systems that together will help establish their understanding of the basics of defining a visual result. Content will include 1-2-3 point perspective, plan drawing, top-front-side view drawing, isometric drawing and other systems.

ILLU 250

Storytellers and Mythmakers

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Discussion and related narrative projects will help the student discover the value of the artist's role in society as a storyteller and mythmaker. Projects are designed to stretch students' boundaries conceptually and stylistically. Several media, illustration styles and markets will be explored (e.g. mixed media, vector art, editorial illustration, minimalism, and poster art). Integrated into the course, throughout, will be a historical context related to the above.

ILLU 300

Junior Studio: Conceptual Problem Solving

3 credit hours (3 studio)

In this course, the student will undergo exercises and/or projects that will support the building of the smart visual image by exploring various methods for sound idea generation. The metaphor, the mind map, 21 ways of wit, the visual pun and other types of incorporating intelligence into the visual image are explored as a foundation in the visual building process. Illustration tropes, cliché, and idea categories are also explored.

ILLU 310

Paper and Ink

3 credit hours (3 studio)

The steps taken from initial thumbnail generation, pre-production file set-up (working with bleeds and crop marks, CMYK vs RGB), template creation, through to the final image will be introduced in this course. Students will expand their familiarity with wet and dry media and substrates, analog and digital image creation. Projects encompass editorial illustration, picture books, posters, album art, and more. Emphasis will be on the personal voice and story as content of the work as well as professional presentation and craft.

ILLU 315

US: Collaboration, Teamwork and Flexibility

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Social Practice minor] This course will give students an opportunity to experience collaboration and flexibility within a team. Students will practice communication and creative skills by working in teams with fellow classmates on projects ranging from large-scale murals to artist/writer collaborations. The group dynamic can produce very interesting creative solutions. Learning to work in a group, understanding the importance of good communication, the client partnership, the shedding of one's ego, the collective brainstorming process, are all a part of this class.

ILLU 320

Junior Studio: Exploring the Narrative

3 credit hours (3 studio)

In this course, students will be encouraged to experiment with different techniques and will sample various narrative story-telling challenges within a single image. Projects might include exploring spot illustrations, posters, 3D illustration, editorial illustration and other media opportunities such as simple gif animation. These are introduced to the student as avenues and directions for showcasing their talent both in print, on the screen and beyond.

ILLU 325

Covers and Pages

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Sequential Art and Comics are explored as a synthesis of sequential narrative and visual storytelling. Many of the exercises utilize a specific comic book template and an anthology is created and printed at the end of the semester. A condensed history of comics and various ways to approach paneling and sequential image-making is introduced. Students are encouraged to integrate their own stories/personal narrative into the exercises.

ILLU 327

ME: Individual Expression

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Focus will primarily be centered around the research and development of a personal image portfolio or body of work. Discussion will be focused on helping the student toward building confidence with self-initiated projects, entrepreneurial efforts, a personal work authorship, an individual preference for a particular market venue and the corresponding artwork connection that will act as a foundation for the student's life work. Students will give presentations about their work in progress at midterm, culminating in a final presentation to the entire junior class at the end of the semester.

ILLU 400

Senior Studio: Image Thesis I

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course offers an opportunity to research and develop a personal body of work that will represent the student's personal voice. Emphasis will be focused on the building of a visual resource library of files that acts as a foundation for the forming of the personal portfolio thesis. Students will give presentations about their work in progress throughout the semester, culminating in a final presentation to their section.

ILLU 414

Illustration in Action: Networking and Exhibition

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Networking and exhibition are the focus of this course. From industry-specific networking events to gallery exhibitions, the student will be exposed to various ways to physically promote their professional practice. Students will experience an emphasis and attention to the process, planning, and implementation of artwork and marketing materials for promotion as it relates to the creation of the annual Illustration Department's industry networking event. Student committees (faculty-led) will execute and implement plans for this event resulting in Junior and Senior level students tabling at the networking event attended by professionals from all over the Kansas City metropolitan area and beyond. Students will utilize their own identity and promotional materials created in Professional Practice: The Business of Illustration when tabling in this event. In addition, students will learn how to prepare and participate in the gallery exhibition space. This will include everything from framing and preparing your work for exhibition to the various industry application processes'. This effort will also provide support and preparation for the annual spring KCAI Senior BFA Exhibition.

ILLU 415

Professional Practice: The Business of Illustration

3 credit hours (3 studio)

A seminar devoted to bringing local or national/international artists, business owners, etc. on campus and virtual visits, as well as location field trips for discussions about the aspects of the practice: business maintenance, entrepreneurship, self-promotion, ethics and guidelines, contracts, records, taxes, billing, and other issues that are supported by the graphic artist guild standards and practices and supported by the IPA (Illustrators Partnership Association). Additionally in this course, students will create their own tools of professional practice promotion (social media, website, leave-behind, image identity, logo, business card, postcard, etc.) for use in their practice that will give the student an early start to promoting their professional work. This work will be implemented immediately in the fall course, Illustration in Action: Networking and Exhibition.

ILLU 420

Studio: Image Thesis II

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course offers a further opportunity to research and develop a personal body of work that will represent the student's personal voice. Emphasis will be focused on the building of a visual resource library that acts as a foundation for the forming of the portfolio thesis. Students will give formal presentations about their work throughout the semester, culminating in a final presentation to the entire department, students and faculty. Seniors will have an individual exhibition space for the final spring semester EOS show, along with leaving process documentation in printed/digital form. Note: Upon return for the spring semester, each senior will be required to formalize and write an Artist Statement and Plan of Action for the spring semester based on the experience and learning taken from Thesis I.

ILLU 421

Sketchbook: The Cultural Safari

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course is an attempt at creating, for the overall program, a bookend approach to drawing as an important aspect of the program experience. The student will be sent out into the external community to record and to report (visually) aspects of the local Kansas City culture through on-site drawing. Markets, museums, social facilities, area businesses, “gathering” destinations, local color, cultural icons, social service agencies, sports events and many others, all will act as examples of visual source material that can begin to tell the story of Kansas City and its people.

Illustration Electives

ILLE 223

The Voice

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Students will have the opportunity to practice the essential design sensibilities and processes (methods) related to the practice of illustration and to explore their personal individual voice in the making of that visual. The core of this course will be a focus on how the professional illustrator works independently or with the art director/designer to produce uniquely formed visuals necessary for any given medium approach. We will focus also on the creative, aesthetic, thoughtful, content-based, story-telling aspects of editorial and/or book work. Research, ideation, problem-solving techniques and forming the image as a creative and (personally) contemporary solution will be integral to this unique course’s productivity results. This course may produce images by processes and personal approaches that may range from painting, drawing, silkscreen, collage, 3-D and/or monoprint through to the digital realm of possibilities. We encourage the development and nurturing of a unique contemporary approach toward the needs of the illustration industry.

Children’s Picture Book

3 credit hours (3 studio)

A picture speaks a thousand words, so the saying goes and telling a story in pictures is both challenging and immensely satisfying. Books live in which profound stories unfold through a series of extraordinary drawings that illustrate ordinary emotions, experiences, and lives. This course will cover basic stages in the creation of a picture book, including understanding solving problems of pacing, page turns, developing ideas, creating sequential storytelling images and book layout. The emphasis will be on the process of making the visual story seamless, from the first rough thumbnail sketches all the way through to present a dummy. Students will explore finding their ‘visual voice’ and will experiment different approaches in order to build a base for their own picture book. This course is repeatable one time for credit.

Concept Art: Character Design and More

3 credit hours (3 studio)

In this class students will be introduced to the ever-growing industry of concept art and illustration where they will learn how to confidently create characters and character design sheets, what it takes to grow and stay relevant in this industry and how to approach a variety of clients. Students in this class will focus on a range of Concept Art projects including: creating and pitching their own character designs, complete with full body turn-around model sheets; creating effective, believable environments with confidence utilizing a variety of tools; creating expansive content for their characters, editing/refining story; and understanding the difference between creating content for games vs movies.

ILLE 270

Illustration Process and Digital Techniques

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Students in this course will explore a variety of illustration processes while developing digital techniques. Students will learn how the professional illustrator problem solves to creating production-ready visual solutions. This illustration elective is intended for students to focus on generating strong imagery for real-world illustration assignments created with industry standard tools. Students will be challenged with a variety of projects designed to highlight specific concepts of visual communication, increase their digital skills and understanding of the computer's potential as a tool. Research, idea generation, problem solving techniques and forming the image as a creative and contemporary solution will be integral to this course. Assignments emphasize traditional illustration skills such as visual problem solving, conceptual thinking, drawing, and designing while exploring the possibilities of digital execution. Students spend half of the studio time in a lab environment working on sketches, concepts, skill development, and instructor-led demonstrations.

ILLE 450

Micro Agency

3 credit hours (3 studio)

The course will facilitate the illustration department's internal functioning "small agency" known to the external community as MICRO. Students will function in a collaborative and team environment creating work (focusing on exceptional illustration and design) for clients in the surrounding professional Kansas City community. The students perform the position(s) of illustrator, designer, art director and account manager. Students will concept, prepare and present the work directly to the client, as well as execute and deliver final art to the client. The students will work alongside faculty/mentors (advising students) in the execution of the client work. This course requires individuals that are collaborative, concept driven, professional, detail oriented, organized and exceptional in their craft. Participating students will submit a portfolio to course faculty for review before acceptance into the course. This course can be repeated for credit. PLEASE NOTE: A meeting with the course instructor is required prior to the first day of class.

ILLU 399

Mentorship

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Juniors and Seniors only] The mentorship experience, different than the internship experience, is an opportunity to work with a single local or remote artist as a mentor. That mentor, identified by the student, will help guide the student through a student-initiated process of building a personal body of work. To qualify, the student must be self-directed and will have achieved junior level standing. Paperwork is necessary and a portfolio review is required.

INTI 300

Illustration Internship

(Variable credit hours) [Juniors and Seniors only]

This elective opportunity gives the student a chance to secure an internship with numerous and diverse Kansas City area organizations, corporations, agencies or non-profits that will provide an in-house professional artistic experience related to the illustration discipline practice. To qualify, a student will have achieved a junior-level standing to participate. Paperwork is necessary and a portfolio review is required.

ILLE 2ST/3ST

Special Topics in Illustration

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Special Topics courses in a variety of disciplines are offered each semester for academic credit.

Painting

Painting students at KCAI will develop a visual language based on the creation of a personal studio practice rooted in both visual and critical skills that allow them to experiment both conceptually and materially. As a painting student you are not limited by specific material techniques, but rather you are asked to expand the field through an understanding of core philosophies within the discipline of painting as they interact with a variety of contemporary art issues. Artists are now viewed as cultural workers whose ideas dictate their materials rather than as creators who are defined by one chosen medium.

Diversity is a core value of the Painting Department, and as a result, experimentation is encouraged in both process and concept. This diversity is mirrored in the breadth of experience in our faculty and visiting artists as well as in the richness of the critical dialogues surrounding the departmental community.

Individual studios for sophomores, juniors and seniors facilitate a one-on-one approach between you and the faculty, while group critiques and discussions foster a community of innovation built upon current dialogues in contemporary art and culture. As a student in the painting department, you can work within a wide range of possible outcomes, from academic figuration, abstraction and installation art, to performance, video and digital production. Students are not expected to produce work within a specific style or genre but are free to create their own lineage, adding their voice to a rich continuum.

You will be instructed in essential traditions, materials and methods, and you will develop a critical dialogue that serves to amplify your individual voice within the universal and expanded language of painting. As you progress through the sophomore, junior and senior years, you will be encouraged to experiment with and expand your conceptual and materials concerns, finding processes that best suit your personal tendencies and aspirations.

You will leave the painting department with an understanding of materials and methods and also with a practice that recognizes the edges of the discipline and how the philosophical underpinnings of the discipline form the basis for a wide exploration of ideas and materials.

6 credit hours (6 studio)

This course is designed for second year students to develop a studio practice based on their own individuality, curiosity, and creativity. Students will be exposed to a wide variety of materials, processes, and issues concerning the expanded field of painting. Through group discussions, instructor and peer presentations, and individual meetings with their instructor, students will begin to develop a strong base of contextualized knowledge that will foster the growth of their critical thinking and speaking skills, as well as an understanding of the nuanced relationships between material, process, subject, and concept. Through daily work in their studios with guidance from their instructors, students will hone their interests and abilities, and develop a capacity for research and growth.

6 credit hours (6 studio)

This course continues and builds upon ideas and experiences learned in Sophomore Painting I. It is designed for second year students to continue developing a studio practice based on their own individuality, curiosity, and creativity. Students will be exposed to a wide variety of materials, processes, and issues concerning the expanded field of painting. Through group discussions, instructor and peer presentations, and individual meetings with their instructor, students will begin to develop a strong base of contextualized knowledge that will foster the growth of their critical thinking and speaking skills, as well as an understanding of the nuanced relationships between material, process, subject, and concept. Through daily work in their studios with guidance from their instructors, students will hone their interests and abilities, and develop a capacity for research and growth.

Junior Painting I

6 credit hours (6 studio)

This course is designed to facilitate an intense exploration of ideas and themes as well as encourage conceptual and technical risk-taking. Students will develop research methodologies and self-awareness of how their research influences their visual and conceptual problem-solving. Students will practice self-assessment daily in the studio and in midterm self-assessment forms and conferences. The instructor will meet with students individually and in groups to discuss students' work, art theory and professional concerns. The instructor will give slide lectures, lead discussions and provide exposure to a wide variety of relevant material. General course goals: This course seeks to challenge students to take risks, experiment with materials and ideas, develop a working vocabulary of critical terms, become aware of historical and contemporary themes and strategies in their field and continue to understand who they are and who they can become as artists. Learning outcomes: Throughout the semester, students will cultivate a disciplined studio practice through which they will develop individual conceptual and visual vocabularies. Reading and writing assignments as well as critiques are intended to broaden the student's critical abilities and theoretical awareness.

Professional Practice for the Studio Artist

3 credit hours (3 lecture)

Professional Practice for the Studio Artist presents painting students with research methods and professional strategies to aid them in their careers. Students will learn how to effectively conduct research and competitively interact with employers, galleries, residencies, grants, public arts commissions and other arts institutions. Students will draft various professional documents (CVs, resumes, artist statements, project proposals and cover letters). The goal of this course is to provide students with tools necessary to "build" a career using regional or national opportunities. Students will be evaluated by the quality of their research, written forms, preparation and classroom participation. This course is meant to give the students the necessary skills to pursue a career that is relevant to their interests and professional ambitions.

PAIT 400

Senior Painting I

6 credit hours (6 studio)

This course is designed to direct the student's attention to building a focused body of work to be presented at the thesis exhibition, while at the same time continuing to experiment and take risks in order to develop an individualized, robust theory of practice. Seniors will continue to develop the good studio and research habits that are necessary to nurture and sustain their ongoing studio practice. Emphasis will be placed on understanding the conceptual implications and strategies implicit in their work and finding relationships to other artists dealing with similar issues. Students will be assessed in group and individual critiques and will practice self- assessment daily in the studio and on midterm self-assessment forms and in conferences with the instructor. The professor will meet with students individually and in groups to discuss students' work, art theory and professional concerns. The instructor will give slide lectures, lead discussions and provide exposure to a wide variety of relevant material. General course goals: This course seeks to challenge students to create a unified body of work, develop a working vocabulary of critical terms, become aware of historical and contemporary themes and strategies in their field and continue to understand who they are and who they can become as an artist. Learning outcomes: Throughout the semester, students will cultivate a disciplined studio practice through which they will develop individual conceptual and visual vocabularies. Reading and writing assignments as well as critiques are intended to broaden the student's critical abilities and theoretical awareness. Students will employ critical thinking to pose problems visually. Students will gain an increased professional awareness. Graduating seniors will create a thesis body of work.

NOTE: For Painting majors, elective instructor cannot be the same as studio instructor.

PADRE 260

Cultivation: Drawing Intentional Relationships with Plants

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Social Practice minor] Gardens are human interventions with nature for the cultivation of food, relaxation, and aesthetics. Gardens are places where city-dwellers can come to re-establish a connection to nature and where knowledge about plants can be passed down from one generation to the next. To explore what it means to cultivate a garden is to step into a layered discourse about history, health, power, and beauty, among many other topics. This class provides the student the opportunity to enter into this conversation and intentionally foster their own relationship to plants and gardens. Throughout the semester, especially in the warmer months, we will visit local parks and gardens, looking at them as places of healing, as well as ecosystems and metaphors. We will explore individual plants, and analyze gardens as interactive art installations and imagine new interventions with them. Through readings and presentations, the student will learn about many creative strategies, from the traditional to the subversive, in which artists have sought to cultivate deeper connections between the botanical and human worlds. Assignment prompts will encourage the development of individual research and methods of working in an environment of inclusion and experimentation. These ideas and experiments will be discussed in individual meetings with the instructor as well as in large group discussions. Our goal is to develop a studio practice that employs social, collaborative, and/or interventionist strategies to explore the relationships we create with plants.

PADRE 265

Drawing through Lens, Stylus and Screen

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course challenges students to engage with portraiture, still-life, master study and landscape using a variety of processes. Students will explore themes of identity, class, influence, culture/region and daily life. We will consider the possibilities inherent in traditional drawing materials (pencil/charcoal and acrylic paint) and mediate them through various processes (frottage, photo-transfers, digital painting, digital printing). Classroom assignments will focus on observational drawing while homework assignments will focus on mediation and discovery in process through series.

PADRE 272

Portrait and Figure Drawing

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course will challenge students to draw figures and portraits from observation. Students will develop an understanding of their own mark-making and sensitivities to form while also demonstrating an understanding of proportion and form. Drawings will begin in charcoal and pencil but move on to acrylic painting. Additionally, students will be tasked with drawing self-portraits in their sketchbook and in larger sizes. Portrait and Figure drawing is a course for students who want to develop a stronger understanding of observation, tonality, as well as anatomy.

PADRE 302

Celebratory Drawing

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course serves to explore the power and meanings behind what we choose to celebrate and how we choose to do so. Students will consider the role of materials, subject, scale, series and process as they relate to a viewer's experience. Three thematic prompts will be given, "the sacred", "the pivotal", and "the sublime" to consider what kinds of celebratory histories precede them and are active now. Students will be encouraged to expand upon or deviate from their major studio activities in this course. Celebratory Drawing will ask students to consider what features of their life/history are work celebrating in the most serious, humorous or mysterious manners.

PADRE 312

Methods and Materials: Contemporary Approaches to Classical Ideas

3 credit hours (3 studio)

In this course students will learn the studio procedures and materials science used by ancient, classical and contemporary artists. This course will be structured as an experimental workshop where students will learn through hands-on experience, preparing art materials from the ground up, making work using these approaches. We will focus on several periods and regions, ranging from East Asian material approaches to ink and paper, to Western European painting and drawing traditions, to modern projection and lens-based techniques that have changed the way we define material processes. At the same time students will learn how to handle contemporary materials and methods as they relate to these traditions, making their own work using these approaches. These projects will parallel conceptual conversations that reinforce the motivations behind their use, with a critical look at how the histories and vocabularies that surround these traditions have been formed and interpreted. Throughout the semester students will be given both specific constraints and selected open-ended assignments where they can choose a particular approach to explore. By breaking down materials to their elements we will understand the procedures that can expand future material, technical and conceptual understanding.

PADRE 331

Text and Image

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course will examine the use of text and image in fine arts, design and drawing. We will look at examples with various points of reference including hand lettering, graphic design and the use of text and language in contemporary visual art. This drawing course is designed with the goal of working with artists on various adoptions of the letter form in conjunction with image but also to introduce contextual analysis into the use of these two systems of language. There will be several weekly and longer projects that combine digital strategies and outputting with hand lettering, drawing and design. We will look at the work of Ed Fella, the situationist international, Hannah Hoch, Tracy Emin, Frida Kahlo, Vivianne Westwood, Jenny Holzer, Kay Rosen, Christopher Wool and Glenn Ligon among many other artists. Students will also be responsible for artist presentations and a final project that they will propose.

PADRE 332

From Collage to Montage

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course will examine the visual relationships between drawing and film, and will map elements of the historical construction of the time and still image in both seminar and studio contexts. As many of the relationships between still and time-based media are elastic, students will respond to readings, screenings and rigorous in-class collaborations and independent projects in the investigation of that idea. The screenings (including artists such as Sergei Eisenstein, Dziga Vertov and Bill Viola) and readings (including Marjorie Perloff, Gertrude Stein and Gilles Deleuze) will initiate seminar discussions and studio projects. Special attention will be paid to German Expressionist and Russian Constructivist cinema, as well as contemporary montage-based video artists such as Paul Chan and Sharon Lockhart. How does a collage cut become a moving image? How can series and sequence function as mechanisms for a greater understanding of drawing? What is at stake when we attempt to bridge these two fields? As both aesthetic and critical practices, we will consider these questions as a way to initiate a greater discourse. The central goal of the course is to develop an awareness of how images, objects and theoretical frameworks contribute to our perception of time, and how our work might provide a constructive response through drawing.

PADRE 333

The Drawing Book

3 credit hours (3 studio)

How does one understand the concept of the book? How does it relate to the practice of drawing, series, collaboration and observation? Is the book specifically an object, or how can we expand it? In this course, students will engage these questions by exploring drawing practices that surround the book historically, practically and conceptually. Various bookmaking approaches will be paired with research into both analog and digital materials science. Additionally, investigations into the cultural pluralism of the book will be paired with conceptual drawing problems. To that end, this class will pay particular attention to the various differences and diffusions between historically Arabic, Turkish, Persian, East Asian and Western / European bookmaking traditions as a departure point for projects in a contemporary context. These projects will explore relationships between still and time-based media, as well as observed and appropriated information. Screenings, virtual scholar and artist visits and seminar discussions will supplement intensive studio projects. The central goal of the course is to develop an awareness of how the book contributes to our perception of objecthood, point of view, storytelling and how our work might provide constructive responses.

PADRE 338

Ecstatic Drawing

3 credit hours (3 studio)

“Ecstatic Drawing” allows students the time to take risks and realize a few ambitious and time-consuming projects while becoming conversant in other methods/circumstances for drawing. Students will work on short figurative works intermittently while developing a small series of semester long drawings. Students will be encouraged to create projects that directly relate to their studio practice, technical ambitions or conceptual/expressive concerns. In order to compliment these time-intensive projects, classroom activities will additionally explore observational/figurative processes, wet-media (ink, gouache, watercolor) and large-scale drawing. Often the commitment of time to one project, in an academic environment, can be as risky as challenging the aesthetics, history or traditions of one’s chosen discipline. This course seeks to encourage students to push their own technical and conceptual limits through engaging in a few long-term drawing projects.

PADRE 349

Drawing Systems

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This studio elective will explore drawing concepts and materials pertinent to cultural, procedural and material systems. By examining the intersection between theme and variation, students will be exposed to the possibilities of how an artistic system can be built and used, and how this practice moves beyond or further enhances the common ground between figurative depiction and conceptual self-reference in drawing. Specifically, this course will emphasize how vision, time, the body and the use of new light and lens-based technologies can be tools for the artist to use in their own work. By exploring perception, mediation, artist games and collaborative projects, the class will also analyze the period from the late 1960s throughout the early 1970s and the corresponding emerging Post-Minimalist, conceptual and performative art movements, with a parallel focus on the 1920s School of Paris drawing strategies and how they impact contemporary drawing and system building. The semester will focus on multiple approaches to drawing experience through varied, experimental in-class exercises and challenging individual projects. The class will also feature group and individual critiques, selected readings and talks, with a primary focus on exploring what an individual drawing system can be.

PADRE 2ST/3ST

Special Topics in Painting

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Special Topics courses in a variety of disciplines are offered each semester for academic credit.

Photography

As the medium of our times the photograph and related lens generated images are the most common and often the least understood images in usage.

Our curriculum is based on critical conceptual and technical driven inquiry and investigation into the medium, exploring the image as a delivery system for content and ideas.

You will be exposed to all modes of historical and contemporary fine art photography, photographic theory, and practice- including expanded photographic works and emerging relationships between the still and the moving image. The elective program is developed in conjunction with core curriculum to provide a variety of approaches to expand your personal artistic practice within the camera arts.

As a member of the photography program, you will explore aesthetic, conceptual, and technical perspectives of photography with students who are working in diverse areas of personal image making. The program is active in both traditional materials and digital production and provides strong grounding in professional camera controls, lighting, and fine tuning your workflow and fine printing skills. These methods are intertwined throughout the curriculum reinforcing the interrogation of the syntax and production of the image.

Technical instruction covers the understanding of black and white film, color film, the negative, the darkroom printing process. The use of small, medium, and large format cameras, digital cameras, lighting, color workflow, supporting software, archival printing, and presentation techniques.

Advanced studios focus on conceptual development and expanding technical skills with an emphasis on the individual student's vision through the advancement of self-driven production and research projects mentored by faculty in concept development, individualized technical explorations, and professional management skills. These advanced studios emphasize producing a personal body of work that demonstrates strong conceptual and technical underpinnings while broadening professional practice skills that includes self-promotion, distribution, grant writing, formulating budgets, public speaking, archiving, residency, and exhibition applications. The senior year is dedicated to the development of a yearlong thesis project that culminates into an artist talk as well as the BFA Exhibition.

Nearby museums such as the Kemper Museum of Contemporary Art and the Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art, which houses the Hallmark Photography Collection (one of the largest and highest quality photographic collections in the country), make it possible for students to see examples of important historical and contemporary collections and exhibitions, meet with curators and attend gallery talks.

Prerequisites for sophomore studio: FOUN 100 and FOUN 110

CAMA 201

Camera Arts: Fundamentals of Analog Filmmaking

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This hands-on course immerses students in the art and technique of 16mm cinematography, exploring both its historical significance and contemporary applications. Through practical exercises, students will develop a strong technical foundation in shooting, lighting, and exposing film while also engaging with the aesthetic and conceptual possibilities of the medium. Students will be introduced to filmmakers and movements that have embraced 16mm, from classic cinema to experimental and avant-garde practices, gaining an understanding of how this format has been used to challenge cinematic conventions and expand visual storytelling. Through workshops and practical assignments, students will refine their visual language and develop their own projects on film.

CAMA 202

Camera Arts: Fundamentals of Analog Photography

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course introduces the foundational principles of image-making through analog black-and-white photography. Students will develop technical proficiency in exposure, film development, darkroom printing, and scanning while exploring the medium's unique visual and expressive qualities. Emphasizing both technical mastery and creative exploration, the course encourages experimentation with form and technique as a means of engaging with photographic theory, aesthetics, and poetics. Through hands-on assignments, discussions, and critiques, students will refine their understanding of photographic image-making as a platform for conceptual and fine art practice.

CAMA 206

Visual Literacy Through the History of Photography I

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Photography, the most pervasive of methods mediating our experience of the world, demands the most challenging and dynamic of stories. This class will propose a history for photography through transformation and cultural dissemination, rather than a history of autonomous static photographic relics.

CAMA 203

Camera Arts: Fundamentals of Digital Filmmaking

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This hands-on course immerses students in the art and technique of digital filmmaking production, while exploring its contemporary significance and applications. Through practical exercises, students will develop a strong technical foundation in shooting, lighting, and editing while also engaging with the aesthetic and conceptual possibilities of the digital medium. Students will be introduced to filmmakers and movements that have embraced digital film, from traditional cinema to experimental and avant-garde practices, gaining an understanding of how this format has been used to challenge cinematic conventions and expand visual storytelling. Through workshops and practical assignments, students will refine their visual language and develop their own digital film projects.

CAMA 204

Camera Arts: Fundamentals of Digital Photography

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course introduces the foundational principles of image-making through digital photography. Through practical exercises, students will develop a strong technical foundation in shooting, lighting, and digital printing and editing while also engaging with the aesthetic and conceptual possibilities of the digital medium while exploring the medium's unique visual and expressive qualities. Emphasizing both technical mastery and creative exploration, the course encourages experimentation with form and technique as a means of engaging with photographic theory, aesthetics, and poetics. Through hands-on assignments, discussions, and critiques, students will refine their understanding of photographic image-making as a platform for conceptual and fine art practice.

Visual Literacy Through the History of Photography II

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Prerequisite: CAMA 206] This course is a continuation of Visual Literacy through the History of Photography I. Photography, the most pervasive of methods mediating our experience of the world, demands the most challenging and dynamic of stories. This class will propose a history for photography through transformation and cultural dissemination, rather than a history of autonomous static photographic relics.

CAMA 301

Camera Arts: Specializations in Filmmaking

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Intended for first semester juniors with a solid foundational knowledge of film production. This course investigates advanced cinematic approaches and expanded notions of lens-based artwork while fostering the development of both conceptual and technical elements within a student's individual practice. Emphasis is on the integration of ideas and artistic expression through a guided exploration of self-directed artistic production and research through hands-on filmmaking demonstrations, production assignments, group discussions, professional practice techniques within filmmaking, and surveying historical and contemporary cinematic-based work.

CAMA 302

Camera Arts: Specializations in Photography

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Intended for first semester juniors with a solid foundational knowledge of photographic processes. This course investigates advanced photographic approaches and expanded notions of lens-based artwork while fostering the development of both conceptual and technical elements within a student's individual practice. Emphasis is on the integration of ideas and artistic expression through a guided exploration of self-directed artistic production and research through hands-on photography demonstrations, photography-based production assignments, group discussions, professional practice techniques with photography, and surveying historical and contemporary photographic-based work.

CAMA 312

Photography Studio I

6 credit hours (6 studio)

Photography Studio I centers on advanced methods and strategies for the development and realization of an independent body of photographic work while becoming self-aware of one's own creative process. Through a guided, self-driven, semester-long photography and research project, students will be introduced to project proposal, photography budgets, and photographic project management approaches in addition to advanced research methods while pursuing their own individualized investigations. Fostering the blending of historical, technical, and conceptual elements of a student's photography-based work and research and engaging within critical dialog surrounding expanded approaches to photographic artwork is a focus within the course. Students are expected to take risks and explore new artistic territories while further advancing their technical photography and critical skills in the context of group critiques and discussions. Viewings, assigned readings, research, fieldwork, grant writing assignments, technical photography demonstrations, production coursework, and class presentations will parallel each individual student's area of focus.

CAMA 412

Photography Studio II

6 credit hours (6 studio)

Photography Studio II centers on the guided development and management of a self-directed, year-long, independent body of photographic thesis work and research project. Emphasis is on advanced professional practice skills based on each student's own creative process, technical mastery of photography techniques, and advanced research methods including fieldwork. Upholding the unification of historical, technical, and conceptual elements of a student's photographic-based thesis production and thesis research project while engaging within critical dialog surrounding expanded notions of photography is a focus within the course. Students are expected to take risks and build upon previously discovered artistic territories while further advancing their technical photography expertise and critical skills in the context of weekly production presentations, group critiques, and discussions. Viewings, assigned readings, research, fieldwork, grant writing assignments, technical photography demonstrations, production coursework, and class presentations will parallel each individual student's area of focus.

CAMA 422

Photography Studio III

6 credit hours (6 studio)

Photography Studio III is dedicated to the post-production phase of your self-directed, year-long, senior thesis project, initiated during Photography Studio II. Focus is on advanced photography editing methods, advanced archival printing skills, cataloging, and professional matting and framing techniques for various installation situations. Emphasis will be on the development, submission, and professional installation of students' BFA exhibition. Additionally, students are required to refine their presentation skills, artist statement writing, and photography-based self-promotional approaches that will culminate in to both an artist talk and a senior printed catalog. Viewing artist examples, suggested readings, research, production coursework, and class presentations will parallel each individual student's area of photography-based focus. Shared research and group critiques of work in progress take place on a regular weekly schedule.

SOUNE 301

Audio-Vision: Sound for the Screen & Space

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Sound minor; required for Sound minor students] Perceptual embodiment in aural and visual experience is applied to developing audio production techniques for the screen and space. Hands-on technical demonstrations, production crew work, artistic and technical presentations, and soundtrack analysis will serve in developing audio for the screen. Sound works by artists and sound designers will be introduced to support our work.

Artist as Curator

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Juniors and Seniors only] This course explores professional practice in various career paths and focuses on the process of exhibition making as a collaborative practice and ways of thinking about curating, not only from an artist perspective, but through engagement with processes that involve all parties relevant to specific presentations. Exhibitions are the central function of museums and art galleries and the dominant format to showcase artworks by individuals or groups of artists, particular genres, thematic areas, or collections. Spatial decision making, handling and placement of objects, and public program development, catalog, mailing lists and approaching galleries will be considered in a practical learning environment. Additionally, students are exposed to a range of resources and opportunities for artists and professionals with an in-depth understanding of written and organizational skills necessary to support their work in varied areas of the professional fields. The course will culminate in a group exhibition with artworks by the students of the class and an exhibition proposal based on the collaborative practice. This course fulfills the Professional Practice requirement for Filmmaking and Photography majors but it is open and encouraged to be taken by all students interested in curatorial practice.

Camera Arts: Fundamentals of Analog Photography

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course introduces the foundational principles of image-making through analog black-and-white photography. Students will develop technical proficiency in exposure, film development, darkroom printing, and scanning while exploring the medium's unique visual and expressive qualities. Emphasizing both technical mastery and creative exploration, the course encourages experimentation with form and technique as a means of engaging with photographic theory, aesthetics, and poetics. Through hands-on assignments, discussions, and critiques, students will refine their understanding of photographic image-making as a platform for conceptual and fine art practice.

Camera Arts: Fundamentals of Digital Photography

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course introduces the foundational principles of image-making through digital photography. Through practical exercises, students will develop a strong technical foundation in shooting, lighting, and digital printing and editing while also engaging with the aesthetic and conceptual possibilities of the digital medium while exploring the medium's unique visual and expressive qualities. Emphasizing both technical mastery and creative exploration, the course encourages experimentation with form and technique as a means of engaging with photographic theory, aesthetics, and poetics. Through hands-on assignments, discussions, and critiques, students will refine their understanding of photographic image-making as a platform for conceptual and fine art practice.

CAMAE 206

Visual Literacy Through the History of Photography I

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Photography, the most pervasive of methods mediating our experience of the world, demands the most challenging and dynamic of stories. This class will propose a history for photography through transformation and cultural dissemination, rather than a history of autonomous static photographic relics.

CAMAE 208

Visual Literacy Through the History of Photography II

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Prerequisite: CAMA/CAMAE 206] This course is a continuation of Visual Literacy through the History of Photography I. Photography, the most pervasive of methods mediating our experience of the world, demands the most challenging and dynamic of stories. This class will propose a history for photography through transformation and cultural dissemination, rather than a history of autonomous static photographic relics.

CAMAE 222

Principles of Camera Lighting

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Prerequisite: CAMA/CAMAE 203 or CAMA/CAMAE 204] The comprehensive study of the qualities, meaning, physical properties of light and the tools necessary for controlling light will be the areas of emphasis of this class. Contemporary approaches to crafting lighting in the studio and the field, as well as the study of historical references and previsualizing studio lighting using software will also be important components of this class.

CAMAE 224

The Impossible Photograph: Advanced Digital Workbench

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Prerequisite: CAMA/CAMAE 203 or CAMA/CAMAE 204] Photographs need no longer depict a single slice of time nor a single point in space. This class will cover the means to produce what isn't achievable in a single exposure. Areas covered include HDR imaging; layering for depth-of-field effects not achievable normally; advanced masking for compositing elements shot separately; shooting and lighting strategies for effective compositing; and stitching single frames into large-scale, extremely high-resolution frames. This class is for students with a strong conceptual viewpoint and the ability to integrate appropriate methods into their work.

Special Topics in Camera Arts

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Special Topics courses in a variety of disciplines are offered each semester for academic credit.

Printmaking

The printmaking program educates students to their highest ability and provides them with a deep understanding of the processes, creative concepts and issues that inform contemporary printmaking and art in a global creative environment. KCAI's printmaking program involves the student in a dynamic dialogue between printmaking, individual studio narrative, collaboration, professional practice and digital media possibilities and concepts. Traditional printmaking processes and concepts — etching, lithography, drawing, collage, silkscreen, letterpress, book arts — and post-modern processes — mass media, collaboration, simulation, appropriation and dissemination — are taught concurrently. Individual studio practices are required on top of a range of social and collaborative practices and assignments throughout the program. Printmaking sponsors and shares classes with the KCAI Social Practice program.

The sequence of educational experiences is designed to facilitate interdisciplinary exploration by the students. An intense group dynamic and extensive one-on-one attention from faculty encourages students to develop their individual studio narratives while examining the cultural role and potential power of visual communication. Students gain a grasp of traditional printmaking techniques through assignment-based sophomore and first-semester junior levels that investigate the visual and conceptual potential of multiples and unique works, sequential thinking and active social communication through individually and collaboratively created works. Second-semester juniors are integrated into the advanced printmaking curriculum through a series of studio dialogs and research, which encourages an increasingly self-driven studio approach as the student approaches graduation and life as an independent working artist, designer and/or cultural facilitator. The curriculum complements traditional media with new media, and faculty help students identify and develop the skills that will allow them to determine which media best serve their ideas. The program is designed to foster the development of talented cross-disciplinary artists who can express themselves through visual, written and spoken language. An extensive technology base fosters in-depth and cross-disciplinary exploration, though students are not limited to the media available in the printmaking studio and are encouraged to utilize processes that support the ideas driving their work beyond graduation.

PRIN 227

Drawing Applications for Printmaking

3 credit hours (3 studio)

The drawing print class is a hands-on drawing course that explores direct strategies as a compliment to etching, relief and monoprint. It emphasizes the investigation of the languages of drawing and their relationship to printmaking such as reversible imaging, tracing, photocopying and adapting the use of photo images manually. The course will include lectures, critiques, and discussions relevant to history of artists in print from the beginning of their concept drawings. The course is meant to foster dialogue on drawing/print. The logic is to present ideas, and assignments coupled with technical information to provide the students with both conceptual and technical means using the rich history of print communication and self-expression.

PRIN 228

Etching

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Etching is perhaps the ones of the oldest processes and a core foundation to traditional printmaking. It lays down fundamental ground to understand the metallic matrix and ink and paper properties specific to intaglio printing. As they become fluid with etching and altered intaglio techniques students will look at the history and relevance of printed media as a storyteller and a depository for historical political commentary. Students will work using a traditional approach and work on fringe and contemporary nuances towards the medium. Readings and written assignments will complement the investigation of multiples and one of- a-kind prints facilitated by assignments, readings, critiques, and presentations in several formats.

PRIN 229

Relief and Monoprint

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course introduces students to core fundamentals of prints and multiples. Students will learn and apply techniques that are fundamental applications to any printmaker such as paper, matrix, ink properties and proper printing. Students will become familiar with Printmaking key concepts: authorship, multiples and singulars, editions, artists' proofs, publishing, conservation and dissemination. Relief print will focus on traditional processing of a wooden matrix, linoleum and found or adopted materials to extract images as "found" impressions. There will be a careful consideration to explore expanded media possibilities like collagraphs, image transfers, multiple layered printing and registration techniques as ways to introduce monotypes and mono-prints into their understanding of print. Students will be expected to take part of a dialogue of print and its place in the larger context of art. Students will evolve into a studio practice as an individual and as a communal being in an atelier setting.

PRIN 277

Digital Applications for Printmaking

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Digital Applications will focus on the transition between analog and digital imaging processes and back with the help of the instructor. The semester's focus will incorporate a synthesized approach, one that examines work and issues through the use of traditional printing disciplines and processes as vehicles for final prints, however, the starting point as image sources include the use of a computer, a camera, video and/or web based sources. Special emphasis will focus on the computer's ability to assist in visualizing layers, separations, text, and prepress layout, as well as a creative imaging and idea generation source. An important component of this course is the integration of Post digital technology, ie. CNC routers, vinyl plotters laser engravers and inkjet plotters; such technology will demonstrate the inevitable crossover that occurs between fine art, photographic, design, publishing and digital methodologies.

PRIN 281

Lithography

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Lithography is a beginning level studio class in stone lithographic techniques. This is designed to provide students an introductory emphasis that integrates both conceptual and technical experiences necessary to utilize and integrate lithography in printmaking and the arts today. Students learn the basic techniques in the medium as an entry point and will explore a variety of media within the lithographic process on stones and onto aluminum surfaces. Processes will include drawn and painted media, photography positives, transfers, text based info and monotypes.

PRIN 366

Silkscreen

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This class should provide the students with a foundation and history of silkscreen printing techniques and provide a launching pad for mixed-media experimentation involving printed matter and multiples. Students will become familiar with traditional and non-traditional ways of working with prints, multiples, design and public art through lectures, field trips, collaborative and individual work. Research will be a key in individual projects, and considerations of audience, packaging, design, and public realms will be discussed at length. Consider the power of printmaking to help you exercise your democratic rights. Contemporary prints disseminate images, messages, propaganda, mundane information and can save you 35 cents on your next purchase. Think of all the prints you notice, ignore, fill out, exchange, collect. What kind of print might change your life forever?

Junior Print Seminar

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course will expose students to mixed media prints and problem solving. The content will take into consideration technical properties across printmaking techniques on flat surfaces and beyond paper substrate integrating a conglomerate of known processes, supplies, machinery and tools; this approach will re-enforce the idea of printmaking as a flexible media. Therefore, this will provide students with the capstone for a visual self-expression and will require students to develop an original approach with guided assistance from their instructor. This course will require students to develop a personal narrative in the form of biography. Students will use a common practice in the visual artists called visual research for personal concept applications. A small portion of this course will be dedicated to understand basics of opportunities applications, i.e. C.V. slide editing and letters of intent.

PRIN 342

Color in Printmaking

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Color in Printmaking deeply explores the use of color in making prints. Students will learn analog and digital techniques of using color, in tandem with further development of the main printmaking techniques of monoprint, relief, etching, silkscreen and lithography. The history of color through the lens of culture, materials and psychology will be a focus of this class.

PRIN 355

Dimensional Printmaking

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Dimensional Printmaking provides the student the ability to expand traditional printmaking techniques and methods into three and four-dimensional spaces. Structures of the book, combinatorial processes, three-dimensional prints will be explored along with collaboration, improvisation and installation.

PRIN 320

Advanced Printmaking I

6 credit hours (6 studio)

The advanced print studio is a dedicated exploration of the student's ongoing studio narrative following a structure of visual and literary research. Visual research fundamentals delivered in written and verbal narratives gives students content as well of context for their original work. The focus is on developing a rich and consistent studio practice and creative voice. Integrated into the course are intro to basic professional practice materials and essays of personal findings for future senior hypothesis. These requirements will be scheduled as a seminar.

PRIN 400

Advanced Printmaking II

6 credit hours (6 studio)

The students will focus on developing their ideas and studio practices through critiques, individual research and collaborative presentations. The focus of this course is on development of the student's individual work and the articulation of the concept it generates.

PRPP 480

Senior Professional Practice

3 credit hours (3 lecture)

This course enhances students' knowledge of career opportunities and facilitates their preparation for graduate school, grant or other applications. Students will develop their communications skills, preparing artist's statements, resumes and a professional quality sheet of slides or other media for appropriate documentation.

PRIN 420

Senior Thesis

6 credit hours (6 studio)

This course will require the students to focus on developing their ideas and studio practices through critiques, individual research and collaborative presentations. The focus of this course is on the development of the student's individual work and the articulation of the concept it generates. Students prepare and execute a final public presentation of their work, which could take the form of a gallery exhibition, a public performance, the distribution and public screening of a video or multi-media work or a printed publication. All graduating seniors develop and give an articulate public presentation of their Theses, concepts and technical processes involved in the work. Oral and written assignments are developed to hone student's communication skills.

INTPR 300

Internship in Printmaking

(Variable credit hours)

[Juniors and Seniors only] Students will be required to use their knowledge of printmaking pertaining organization. Students work directly in a hands-on internship with printmaking and/or paper arts professionals. Through this experience, students gain knowledge and experience in the field of printmaking and paper arts while expanding their own community. Technical knowledge, practical applications of printmaking and paper arts and an understanding of business methods related to the field of printmaking and paper arts are all possible skills to gain through this internship.

Narrative and Ephemera in the Midwest

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Narrative and Ephemera in the Midwest refers to the common practice of landscape observation for artists. This class will document using “plein air” drawing, photography and on-site installation to describe the narrative of the human condition and the effects we cause to the environment. Current visual culture and printmaking share the practice to describe events and raise awareness through the illustrated narrative on paper. Students will source images for site-specific locations and reconstruct their experiences and artistic voices through the means of digital imaging and hand drawing. Prints will represent their place and time in our society by combining the nature of documentary photography in tandem with the hand-mark by the artists, altering, enhancing or editing the original. NEM will use current available print technology and processes in the printmaking department, Beals III studios and the print center to process drawings and photos into positives and negatives translated to plates and silkscreens in order to make multiples. Students will create drawings and experience the use of digital processes, silkscreen, lithography and relief processes to capture the nature of the original and to achieve rapid dissemination. The visual illustrated narrative result of modern and traditional printmaking, art, and of life itself will help the student examine our relationship to the surrounding environment.

PRINE 240

Letterpress: Visual Rebels and Revolutions - Art of the Poster

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Social Practice minor] Letterpress is a sixteen week course, designed to introduce students to the fundamentals and technical principles of a variety of letterpress processes. Students will explore traditional and contemporary methods such as hand-set type, linocuts, pressure printing, digitally carved/cut matrices (using cnc routers and laser cutters) and possibly photopolymer. Students will create and discuss imagery/pattern-based works that are both conceptually engaging and well executed, thus developing their understanding and vocabulary of aesthetics and printmaking. This course includes constructive dialogue about social and activist issues in tandem with the Social Practice program. This critical discourse acquaints student artists with the dynamic possibilities available through the incorporation of print processes with the ongoing western concerns including, but not limited to, social, economic and equity issues . Additionally, the history of letterpress along with its contemporary aspects will be addressed throughout the semester in discussions, assignments, visiting artists and events.

PRINE 280

Photographic Printmaking, Life and Death

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course will explore the use of the photographic image as the basis for making layered prints. The course will focus on generating original content through building, collaging, photographing and drawing. These constructions will be used for a variety of approaches to creating matrices for printing, from photopolymer plates to etchings, photolithography, cliché verre, and digital negatives. Students will learn a variety of printing processes using inks as well as a range of alternative photographic processes, including cyanotype, Van Dyke and gum bichromate. This class will be a great addition to any studio practice as it will incorporate photographic and printmaking process that accommodate drawing, painting, digital design, fibers and three-dimensional media.

PRINE 281

Lithography

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Lithography is a beginning level studio class in stone lithographic techniques. This is designed to provide students an introductory emphasis that integrates both conceptual and technical experiences necessary to utilize and integrate lithography in printmaking and the arts today. #### Color in Printmaking

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Prerequisite: Any Printmaking elective] Color in Printmaking deeply explores the use of color in making prints. Students will learn analog and digital techniques of using color, in tandem with further development of the main printmaking techniques of monoprint, relief, etching, silkscreen and lithography. The history of color through the lens of culture, materials and psychology will be a focus of this class.

PRINE 351

Beyond The Book

3 credit hours (3 studio)

What lies beyond the book? This class will explore relationships of context, meaning and format of books beyond their material substance within the book form. Students will be encouraged to explore irregular means of making books and to deviate from the usual understanding of “book-ness” itself. Students will become familiar with historical and contemporary, traditional and non-traditional ways of working with books, printed matter, images and text through lectures, field trips, collaborative and individual work. Research will be key to individual projects, and considerations of audience, communication, legibility and design will be discussed at length. Consider the power of bookmaking to help you communicate as an artist. Contemporary books exist in a multitude of overlapping worlds of information, knowledge, storytelling, wisdom, introspection, politics, culture and human experience. What kind of book might change your life forever?

PRINE 358

Relief Revival

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Students will explore the many facets of the relief medium of printmaking. This course will cover an assortment of techniques, registration methods, presentation, contemporary and historical artists who use the relief medium and discussion about the return of the relief medium in recent years to the contemporary scene.

PRINE 366

Silkscreen

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This class should provide the students with a foundation and history of silkscreen printing techniques and provide a launching pad for mixed-media experimentation involving printed matter and multiples. Students will become familiar with traditional and non-traditional ways of working with prints, multiples, design and public art through lectures, field trips, collaborative and individual work. Research will be a key in individual projects, and considerations of audience, packaging, design, and public realms will be discussed at length. Special Topics in Printmaking

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Special Topics courses in a variety of disciplines are offered each semester for academic credit.

Product Design

Product Design makes the most of KCAI's strengths in creative form-making to explore the design of products that respond to global and everyday challenges. Our program will prepare you to be agents for positive change through the objects, systems, and businesses you create.

We begin in Sophomore year building on the language of creative form-making learned in Foundation; we study how meaning, narrative, and purpose can be expressed in the physical object. Sophomore year is dedicated to the study of meaningful form-making, which is at the core of every good product.

The focus of Junior year is real-world human engagement with products. Using principles of ethnography and ergonomics, DesignSpace (your studio courses) will focus on human-centered design, developing products that engage users and me to solve real problems.

Senior year is dedicated to empowering you to pursue a personal direction in Product Design and to transitioning into your personal career direction as a designer. In the first semester, you will research to determine a direction for your thesis work and career trajectory. In the second semester, you will engage with mentors in developing thesis work as a project aimed at turning your design concepts into reality. Senior year is also distinguished by a strong entrepreneurial emphasis. It is through the principles of entrepreneurship that you will learn how to take your work out of the studio and into the real world.

PDES 201

DesignSpace 1

6 credit hours (6 studio)

This studio course is dedicated to expanding your definitions of form, form-making, and creative processes. The intent of Design is explored through the meaningful manipulation of 3-Dimensional form-making, materiality, and communicative potential. This is a hands-on experience, learning basic design processes, formal problem solving, and integration of iterative prototyping. You will be working both individually and collaboratively in a dedicated cross-disciplinary design studio environment. There is an emphasis on materiality, ethnography, biomimicry, and meaning embedded in useful objects. Project and topics are subject to expand or change in responses to current influences and needs.

PDES 210

Prototyping for Designers

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course synchronizes with DesignSpace 1 with various project touch points, emphasizing 2D and 3D prototyping for design experimentation and development. The focus is hands-on full-scale and scaled rapid-prototype model making for experimentation and development in the process of 3D form design. The class will focus on the use of basic tools, materials, and various construction techniques to manifest examples of study models at various levels of difficulty. A high standard of craftsmanship will be established in this course.

PDES 202

DesignSpace 2

6 credit hours (6 studio)

This is a project-based studio course that builds upon prior learning to deepen students' understanding of form-giving forces, semiotics of 3-dimensional form, and form-making as narrative. Students begin to explore where and how designers can influence the world they live in through the objects they design. Students will be working both individually and collaboratively, in a dedicated product design studio. Emphasis is on form-making as narrative; semiotics of 3D form; expanding creative processes; form-giving forces; human factors, ergonomics, and interface; and sustainable systems and materials.

PDES 230

Theory & History of Product Design

3 credit hours (3 lecture)

This course explores the history and contemporary practice of design, comparatively, to introduce students to theories and principles that have shaped the practice of Product Design while also pointing to its future. We focus on philosophical and practice-based theories associated with modernity, commodity culture, semiotics, visual communication, disruption, and the many ways designers can have a positive impact on the world in which we live. Special emphasis is placed on developing critical tools for expanding students' definition of design and their individual outlook on their own creative future.

DesignSpace 3

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This project-based studio builds on prior learning to explore real-world challenges and how we can use Product Design to respond to those challenges. We use techniques in ethnographic research, empathy mapping, and product testing to deepen our understanding of human-centered design. Projects will provide opportunities to gain a deep understanding of existing human challenges that will allow you to practice in-depth research to gain empathy and understand users' goals, needs, and motivation through immersive research and industry engagement. Real-world collaborators will play a strong role in DesignSpace projects through graduation. EMPHASIS: Human-centered design, solving real-world problems through design, design research, industry engagement, and interdisciplinary collaborations.

PDES 315

Design Drawing Studio

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This studio course is dedicated to building drawing skills used by Product Design professionals in project development and presentation. Both hand drawing and digital rendering are introduced and developed, strengthening visual communication skills and portfolio presentation.

PDES 303

DesignSpace 4

6 credit hours (6 studio)

This session of DesignSpace 4 is dedicated to brainstorming, iterating, concepting, validating, and designing products that follow the methodologies and principles of Design Thinking. During this studio course, you will experience designing products from a service perspective and apply various methodologies to create multiple touchpoints as part of the design process.

PDES 320

Professional Practice for Designers

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course is designed to guide each student through an exploration of their own career goals and empower them to build a pathway toward those goals. The instructor of this course will help each student identify their individual direction in the world of design. Students will leave this course with a clear career focus and a portfolio designed to meet those career goals.

This course provides discussion and exercises regarding the following topics:

- Principles of design leadership in society
- Principles of design project planning and management
- Project organization and teamwork
- Portfolio building and self-promotion
- Launching a viable and productive design career

PDES 401

DesignSpace 5

6 credit hours (6 studio)

This is a 2-part studio course that builds upon all previous work to prepare students for a successful Thesis project. Part 1 (first half of the semester) is dedicated to an independent exploratory project to help students discover a direction of thesis study. Part 2 (second half of the semester) is dedicated to the start of the Thesis project. During both parts, students collaborate with community, industry, and/or entrepreneurial partners with the intent to bring the finished design to market.

PDES 402

DesignSpace 6

6 credit hours (6 studio)

In this capstone studio course, students engage with mentors—industry professionals, entrepreneurship educators, and alumni—to fully immerse in the development of a self-driven Product Design thesis project. Emphasis is on professional mentorship in product development, production, and presentation, professional collaborations, and Entrepreneurship.

ENTP 353

Creative Enterprise Studio

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Prerequisite: ENTP 250] Topics covered in this course include opportunity recognition, venture modeling and design, and strategies for getting started. This course counts as an open elective. Please note CERME 308 can satisfy the ENTP 353 requirement.

INTPD 300

Product Design Internship

(Variable credit hours) [Juniors and Seniors only]

Professional experience is integral to this program to help students prepare for their chosen career direction after graduation. To that end, this course provides students with real world design experience through mentorship from design professionals.

Product Design Electives

PDESE 210

Prototyping for Designers

3 credit hours (3 studio)

The focus of this course is hands-on full-scale and scaled rapid-prototype model making for experimentation and development in the process of 3D form design. The class will focus on the use of basic tools, materials, and various construction techniques to manifest examples of study models at various levels of difficulty. A high standard of craftsmanship will be established in this course. Emphasis is on 2D and 3D design prototyping for experimentation and development.

PDESE 240

Pattern to Product

3 credit hours (3 studio)

From concept to prototype, students will learn how to design and fabricate soft products—transforming textiles into creative and functional products. Content will include bags, backpacks, and similar fabric-based form-making. Students will learn iterative design strategies through 2D isometric hand drawing, digital 3D modeling, and the basics of sewing production. This course resides between the 2D and 3D worlds, exploring the creative intersections of form, function and the human body that is at the core of all good design. This course is geared toward students who are interested in Product Design, 3D modeling, and pattern-making, using digital tools and manual construction methods.

PDESE 315

Design Drawing Studio

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This studio course is dedicated to building drawing skills used by Product Design professionals in project development and presentation. Both hand drawing and digital rendering are introduced and developed, strengthening visual communication skills and portfolio presentation.

PDESE 340

Flat to Furniture

3 credit hours (3 studio)

From concept to prototype, students will learn how to design and build flat-pack furniture—transforming a single sheet of plywood into a creative piece of functional furniture. Students will learn iterative design strategies through 2D isometric drawing, 3D rapid prototyping, and digital CNC production. This course resides between the 2-D and 3-D worlds, exploring the creative intersections of form, function and the human body that is at the core of all good furniture design. This studio elective is for anyone who wants to expand their skills and creative processes through the principles and practices of product design.

PDES/PDESE 2ST/3ST

Special Topics in Product Design

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Special Topics courses in a variety of disciplines are offered each semester for academic credit.

Sculpture

Overview

Sculpture at the Kansas City Art Institute aims to educate students to develop their individual artistic voices with an understanding of diverse world views. We seek to educate students for the 21st Century who know how to observe with critical thinking skills, identify creative challenges, test varied solutions, fail and persevere, communicate ideas persuasively and complete projects. The program stresses the importance of research and development within conceptual frameworks, historical precedents and material understanding. Students learn to transfer challenging and abstract ideas into materials and forms. Sculpture embraces an expanding field of production that includes making objects, installations, kinetics, performance, multi-media, sound, video, digital work, virtual reality and augmented reality, computational design, community art projects and collaborative ventures. In the past seven years, the rapid changes in technology have positively transformed the sculpture education experience with the addition of the David T. Beals III Studios for Art and Technology (Fab Lab). Synthesis of digital literacy, analogue methods and material understanding all take place in the sculpture curriculum.

Curricular Structure

The curriculum's design supports students' development toward the goal of an individual artistic voice with an understanding of global contexts. Community is the heart of the program. Community-building events, such as potlucks, field trips, and social events, foster a sense of belonging and trust among students. Each class follows a developmentally appropriate curriculum as stated in the syllabus. Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors come together for mid-term critiques and the End of Semester Group Show. Mixed groups allow less experienced students to learn from more experienced students. Each student completes an individual review with a faculty panel at the end of every semester.

The curricular structure leads students through experiences designed to advance their art-making practice from assignment-driven systems to a model of research and development. Students learn about the relationships between material, form, and concept. They develop skills sequentially with a wide range of materials and processes. Over time, students identify their likes, sensibilities, and connections to media. Students achieve a standard of creative practice whereby they choose the content, appropriate material, and form within a conceptual framework. Group dialogue that contextualizes contemporary sculpture is integrated at every class level. Students select electives from across all departments to augment and expand their skills. The knowledge gained from studio electives in other departments informs the sculpture major's practice.

The culminating BFA Senior Exhibition and Thesis presentations demonstrate each student's ability to create and present a body of artwork with conceptual and aesthetic intent. A curricular goal is for the graduating student to exhibit comprehension evidenced by technical skill and internal logic within individual pieces and the body of work. The Professional Practice curriculum is delivered through experiences at each class level and includes a required three-credit hour course during junior year. The Professional Practice Center is a supportive resource with programming that addresses opportunities, finances, employment, and support after graduation.

SCUL 200

Sophomore Sculpture I

6 credit hours (6 studio)

The fall sophomore studio is designed to introduce students to a panoramic scope of sculpture: materials, working methods, critical discourse, self-reflection, context, and global happenings. These will be covered by working in a variety of timelines—some projects will start and be critiqued the day of, other projects will span weeks to work through the details. These varying timelines will help the student begin to identify project management methods that best for their practice. Material studies will be comprehensive and cover woodworking basics, hot and cold metal working, two-part mold making, casting in wax and aluminum, and other methods. Together as a class, we will build a vocabulary of material and construction terms that will apply to critique and the written portion of the course work. Reading and writing assignments will be a crucial component in developing ideas and placing an active studio practice within the context of contemporary discourse. This course also serves to welcome the sophomore student into the department, where courtesy towards others, helping your peers, and developing strong ties with your community make for a safe, productive, and fulfilling studio environment.

SCUL 205

Materials and Processes

3 credit hours (3 studio)

The Materials and Processes course expands the sophomore sculpture majors' understanding of material possibility by exploring two essential methods: metal construction and subtractive strategies with soft materials, such as foam. Faculty will guide students through demonstrations and safety protocols to gain welding, cutting, bending, and shaping metal skills. The carving experience will emphasize the importance of the three-dimensional form, positive and negative space, and finishing techniques. The faculty and class cohort will support you as you develop ideas through every sculpting phase to your final product. Students will gain curiosity for material exploration, alongside technical experience and know-how, to successfully add new skills to the toolkit of their developing studio practice. This course is required of all Sophomore Sculpture Majors in the Fall semester. If open seats are available, any student may enroll.

Sophomore Sculpture II

6 credit hours (6 studio)

The spring sophomore studio course will build on topics covered in the first semester by advancing material studies, developing processes, continuing to master techniques, and refining conceptual investigation. Students are guided through the rigorous process of developing a complex studio practice that addresses personal interest as well as collective concerns, historical precedents, and speculative futures. Reading and writing assignments will encourage critical thinking as each student works toward drafting an artist statement and prepares for an end-of-semester review. Students will be given the whole semester to work on one self-directed project, while also working on a variety of smaller projects to exercise a fluency within techniques. Students are encouraged to introduce new materials and processes and to explore the expanded sculptural field, which may involve incorporating collaboration, video, sound, performance, and other modes of working to shape their practice. This course serves to prepare sophomore students to enter their junior year with confidence in their studio practice and knowledge of the field.

SCUL 300

Junior Sculpture I

6 credit hours (6 studio)

The first semester junior students will begin work by expanding on the research they completed in sophomore year. By focusing on studio practice, identity development, critical assessment and professional practice, juniors will be able to make the transition towards their advanced studies at KCAI. Juniors will be required to take one of the three workshops taught by the faculty and visiting artists in an effort to engage materials, techniques and processes thoroughly. The ability to craft several materials into forms on a professional level will be required in order for a junior to make a smooth transition into the senior year. After the workshops and/or simultaneously with them, juniors will begin to work primarily on a tutorial basis in studio. Students are expected to produce four major pieces or an equivalent throughout the term. Juniors will be required to make manifest of their own personal interests and vision.

Junior Sculpture II

6 credit hours (6 studio)

The junior sculpture spring semester is focused on the development of the self-directed studio practice. Students will spend their studio time building upon their material and conceptual explorations with an increased emphasis on generating independently originated projects while maintaining an experimental research driven agenda. Each student is required to have regular in-progress critiques with the instructor, participate in scheduled small group critiques, mid-term critiques with sophomores, seniors, and guest critics and have a final critique with the full department faculty. Participation in department exhibitions is required. Second semester junior studio is a continuation of investigation and process begun in the fall semester.

SCPP 385

Sculpture Professional Practice

3 credit hours (3 studio)

The Professional Practice seminar concentrates on creating effective artist statements, resumes, and portfolios and developing other skills relevant to an artist's career. By the end of the semester, students will have a complete, ready to send out, professional "packet" that can be used for an exhibition proposal, grad school application, residency application or other art related purpose. All students will use the content created during the class to support an exhibition and apply for one grant, residency, scholarship, award, exhibition or RFQ.

Professional Practice presents sculpture students with strategies and methods to aid in developing the skills necessary to pursue a career that is relevant to their interests and professional ambitions.

SCUL 400

Senior Sculpture I

6 credit hours (6 studio)

First semester seniors will work on a tutorial basis with faculty during studio visits which are combined with regular critiques and discussions with peers and visiting critics. Most importantly, seniors are expected to have identified a direction for their artwork and to be in the process of creating an on-going series of substantial works. Studio practice, on a material, technical and process level, must demonstrate a move from a broadly based, experimental approach to an approach in which the emphasis is on honing and refining both the conceptual and the technical aspects of the artwork. In-depth engagement with conceptual issues on a historical and contemporary level must be supported in writing, oral presentations and group discussions with peers, faculty and visiting artists/critics. Research, interpretation and analysis must support the artworks on multiple levels.

SCUL 420

Senior Sculpture II

6 credit hours (6 studio)

Second-semester seniors will work on a tutorial basis with faculty during studio visits. Individual studio visits are combined with regular critiques and discussions with peers and visiting critics. Seniors are expected to have identified a direction for their artwork and to be in the process of creating an on-going series of substantial works. Studio practice, on a material, technical and process level, must demonstrate a move from a broadly-based experimental approach to an approach in which the emphasis is on honing and refining both the conceptual and the technical aspects of the artwork. In-depth engagement with conceptual issues on a historical and contemporary level must be supported in writing, oral presentations and group discussions with peers, faculty and visiting artists/critics. Research, interpretation and analysis must support the artworks on multiple levels.

Sculpture Electives

SCUE 250

Lucid Dreaming with Open AI

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This sculpture elective is designed in order to expand the tool use of the traditional sculptor into the 21st century world of digital sculpture. The course will incorporate CAD modeling and rendering in a variety of software programs including Rhino and Blender, parametric and computational modeling in Grasshopper and Python, and delve into Artificial Intelligence with ChatGPT and gpt-4 text prompting, Github scripting with Copilot, and final renders with Stable Diffusion. 3D modeling will explore rapid prototyping in the FABLAB and physical modeling in the pre-existing metal casting facility and welding studio in the Sculpture Building at the Kansas City Art Institute. Most importantly, co-existing and co-creating with these new AI technologies will leverage both artists and designers alike and will provide a link between contemporary aesthetics and computer science and encourage collaboration across the Arts and Technology Building and the Volker Studios. The concepts and ideas of the contemporary artist have increasingly become dependent on the computer for gathering and developing visual information. The digital has certainly made itself present in our culture. In an effort to interface more easily with new technologies and move beyond traditional limitations it is necessary for the artist to “design and intervene” at every possible stage of the form-making process. This course does not intend to fetishize the machines or their products, rather, it is intended to find relationships between the “artificial mind of the computer with the intuitive and creative mind of the artist” into every aspect of digital sculpture. We will investigate algorithmic code; parametrically designing, altering, transforming, and distorting the digital files in the FabLab; and design physical maquettes and fabricate metal castings and welded artworks in the sculpture studios.

The Human Hand in Digital Sculpture

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This sculpture elective is designed in order to expand the tool use of the traditional sculptor into the 21st century world of digital sculpture. The course will incorporate parametric modeling and rendering, input technologies, and 3D rapid prototyping into the pre-existing metal casting facility and welding studio at the Kansas City Art Institute. Most importantly, this extraordinary technology for sculptors will provide a link between contemporary aesthetics and computer science and encourage collaboration across the Arts and Technology Building and the Volker Studios. The concepts and ideas of the contemporary artist have increasingly become dependent on the computer for gathering and developing visual information. The digital has certainly made itself present in our culture. In an effort to interface more easily with new technologies and move beyond traditional limitations it is necessary for the artist to “design and intervene” at every possible stage of the form-making process. This course does not intend to fetishize the machines or their products, rather, it is intended to introduce the “hand (and mind) of the artist” into every aspect of digital sculpture. We will investigate algorithmic code; parametrically designing, altering, transforming, and distorting the digital files in the FabLab; and design physical maquettes and fabricate metal castings and welded artworks in the sculpture studios. Our goal will be to morph the individual's initial concepts and ideas on every digital and physical level imaginable.

SCUE 360

Sculpture Elective

3 credit hours (3 studio)

The Sculpture Elective course explores three dimensional form through mixed media and skill building with sculpture materials and equipment. Early in the semester, Sculpture Elective will introduce you to methods, materials and processes unique to the Sculpture Department such as welding with steel. Later in the semester, there is an opportunity to expand upon the above techniques with the addition of other materials. The course encourages, but does not require, the use of mixed media. The Sculpture Elective is open to all departments and skill levels.

SCUE 361

Advanced Sculpture Elective II

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Advanced Sculpture Elective II provides an opportunity for students who have successfully completed basic Sculpture Elective to expand upon previous and explore new projects. This advanced course continues to explore three dimensional form through mixed media and skill building with sculpture materials and equipment.

SCUE 2ST/3ST

Special Topics in Sculpture

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Special Topics courses in a variety of disciplines are offered each semester for academic credit.

Undergraduate Minor Programs

Minor in Asian Studies (15 total credit hours)

Students participating in KCAI's Asian Studies Program study the language, art, aesthetics and creative activities of China and Japan. Students pursue an intensive study of East Asia through designated courses in language, art history, literature, history and philosophy, along with a studio component. Fifteen credit hours are required to attain the minor. In addition, students completing the program will write a "reflection paper" and give a short presentation in which they discuss their experiences and communicate ideas that indicate a more comprehensive understanding of the nature of Asian studies.

Students in the program are required to take an Asian language (many levels of Japanese language are offered at KCAI), a survey-level Asian art history course (Survey of Asian Art, Survey of Chinese Art or Survey of Japanese Art), and three liberal arts electives that have an Asian emphasis. A studio elective with an Asian emphasis may also be used to fulfill one of these electives.

A variety of liberal arts electives have an Asian emphasis, counting toward the Asian Studies requirements. Some of these courses enable students to explore multiple Asian cultures, such as "Survey of Asian Art," "Topics in Asian Art: Text and Image," "Buddhist Arts of Asia," and "World Religions." Other courses focus on certain art forms, topics, or chronological periods, such as "Asian Animation," "Asian Ceramics," "Japanese Prints," "Contemporary Japanese Art," "Gender in Japanese Art," "Modern Chinese Literature in Translation," along with many others. A more intensive and focused study of Asian art and culture can be found in the art history seminar courses "East Meets West" and "Art of Zen." Additionally, students can fulfill Asian Studies requirements through travel-study programs to Asia, when offered.

Course Titles, Descriptions, and Student Learning Outcomes

Asian Art History Survey – 3 credit hours (3 lecture) - choose one of the following:

AHS 2601 Survey of Asian Art

AHS 2602 Survey of Chinese Art

AHS 2603 Survey of Islamic Art

AHS 2604 Survey of Japanese Art

AHS 2601

Survey of Asian Art

[G/C] In this course we will examine art produced in India, China and Japan from prehistoric to modern times. Painting, prints, ceramics, sculpture and architecture will be examined both chronologically and thematically, noting the spread of various styles throughout India, China, Japan, Korea and Southeast Asia. We will take into consideration the various social, religious, and cultural contexts under which the art was produced.

AHS 2602

Survey of Chinese Art

[G/C] In this course we will examine the art of China beginning with its emergence in the Neolithic period through modern times. We will discuss the great burial finds of such periods as the Shang, Qin and Han Dynasties, see the development of art related to Buddhism and Daoism (Taoism), and explore the variety of paintings and ceramics produced in the Song Dynasty and the periods that follow. Paintings, sculptures, bronzes, ceramics, jades and lacquer ware will be examined both chronologically and thematically. We will take into consideration the various social, religious, and cultural contexts under which the art was produced.

Survey of Islamic Art and Architecture

[G/C] This course will trace the history of Islamic art and architecture beginning with its formation in the 7th century. We will consider a wide variety of media — including textiles, ceramics, manuscripts and metalwork — as we explore this diverse culture. Emphasis will be placed on understanding artworks within their religious, political and cultural contexts.

Survey of Japanese Art

[G/C] In this course we will examine art produced in Japan from prehistoric to modern times. Painting, prints, ceramics, sculpture, and architecture will be examined to some extent in a chronological sequence, but often by topics concerned with a dominant theme or type of art. Throughout the course, we will be taking into consideration the various social, religious, and cultural contexts under which the art was produced.

Asian Language – 3 credit hours (3 lecture) - choose one of the following:

JLC 2600 Japanese Language and Culture I

JLC 2601 Japanese Calligraphy

JLC 3600 Japanese Language and Culture II

JLC 4600 Japanese Language and Culture III

JLC 4601 Kanji I: Reading Japanese Characters (online course)

JLC 4602 Kanji II: Reading Japanese Characters (online course)

JLC 4603 Japanese Language & Culture Online (online course)

JLC 4604 Japanese Language & Culture IV

JLC 2600

Japanese Language and Culture I

[G/C; Sound minor] [There are no prerequisites for this course.] This is an intensive introduction to the Japanese language, designed to develop proficiency in speaking, listening, reading and writing. The Japanese writing scripts Hiragana and Katakana will be covered and Kanji will be introduced. Cultural awareness through the language will also be explored. A variety of resources will enhance the classroom immersion experience, including video, audio, and other source material.

JLC 2601

Japanese Calligraphy

[G/C; Sound minor] An iconic example of Japanese culture is learning to write with a brush. Japanese character writing skills will be explored with both the pen and calligraphy brush. Students will learn to recognize the different scripts using ancient and modern resources from scrolls to manga and advertising.

Students will also learn to write Hiragana, Katakana, and select Kanji in the three classic styles of Japanese calligraphy: Kaisho (regular), Gyosho (semi-cursive) and Sosho (cursive). Japanese language skills are not a requirement.

JLC 3600

Japanese Language and Culture II

[G/C; Sound minor] [Prerequisite: JLC 2600, or permission of the instructor] This is the second in a sequence of courses in the intensive study of the Japanese language, designed to develop proficiency in speaking, listening, reading and writing. The Japanese writing scripts Hiragana and Katakana will be covered and Kanji will be introduced. Cultural awareness through the language will also be explored. A variety of resources will enhance the classroom immersion experience, including video, audio, and other source material.

Japanese Language and Culture III

[G/C; Sound minor] [Prerequisites: JLC 2600 and JLC 3600, or permission of the instructor] This course is the third in a series of Japanese Language & Culture courses. Emphasis is on complex grammar patterns and intensive Kanji study that will allow the students to explore the culture using authentic source materials such as advertisements, magazines, and websites.

JLC 4601

Kanji I: Reading Japanese Characters

[G/C; Sound minor] [There are no Prerequisites for this course.] [This is an online course.] This is an online course, introducing the meaning and writing of Japanese characters using the first step in the Heisig Method for Kanji acquisition. Topics include the historical development of the characters, identification of Kanji in historical and modern settings, and brush calligraphy styles. Rigorous participation in online forums, written assignments, online research, and submission of the Kanji journal project at the end of semester are required.

NOTE: students do NOT need prior language experience to participate successfully in this course. Students interested in the written Chinese language are encouraged to enroll although there are some differences between the simplified Chinese and modern Japanese characters.

Kanji II: Reading Japanese Characters

[G/C; Sound minor] [Prerequisite: JLC 4601] [This is an online course.] Kanji II is a continuation of the Kanji I course. Students will explore the "ON" pronunciations of Kanji introduced in Kanji I, focusing on those characters and vocabulary found in levels 2-5 of the Japanese Language Proficiency Test.

JLC 4603

Japanese Language & Culture Online

[G/C; Sound minor] [This is an online course.] The Japanese Language & Culture Online course offers multi-level learning through an online platform. In addition to completing coursework online, students will participate in a minimum of five fact-to-face sessions to explore Japanese culture with hands-on activities, and practice their language skills.

JLC 4604

Japanese Language and Culture IV

[G/C; Sound minor] [Prerequisites: JLC 2600, JLC 3600, and JLC 4600, or permission of Instructor] This is the fourth in a sequence of courses in the intensive study of the Japanese language, designed to develop proficiency in speaking, listening, reading and writing. The writing system of Kanji will be further studied. Cultural awareness through the language will also be explored. Students at this stage are able to use a computer to write in Japanese and perform basic research in the Japanese language. A variety of resources will enhance the classroom immersion experience, including video, audio, and other source material.

Liberal Arts Electives with Asian Emphasis – 9 credit hours* (9 lecture) – choose three electives from the list below:

*Students may request approval to substitute 1 3-credit hour Liberal Arts Elective with Asian Emphasis with 1 3-credit hour Studio Elective with Asian Emphasis:

Studio Elective with Asian Emphasis – 3 credit hours (3 studio) Studio course or approved internship must incorporate a significant Asian component or a special project related to the art of China and/or Japan.

All Liberal Arts courses are 3 credit lecture courses.

AHS 3600

Topics in Asian Art: Asian Animation

[G/C] In this course we will examine, through viewing and discussing various animations, the development and relative popularity of animation in Asian countries, particularly in China and Japan. We will consider differences in political and social conditions that had an impact upon animation in these countries as well as influences from the west. The nature of animation before and after the Cultural Revolution in China will be addressed, noting the dominance of Japan's animation production in more recent times. We will discuss the place of animation within the culture of post-war Japan and the shifting societal perspectives that affect the content and style of animation. Issues of identity, sexuality and gender within the Japanese anime subculture will also be explored.

AHS 3601

Topics in Asian Art: Asian Ceramics

[G/C] In this course, we will examine the history of ceramics in China, Japan and Korea. We will study the simple to complex forms of Neolithic pottery produced by the Yangshao and Jomon cultures to refined examples of celadons from the Chinese Song and Korean Koryo Dynasties. Our concerns will range from an understanding of the elegantly defined Ming Dynasty porcelains and the market for them, to effects of sakui in the rustic Bizen tea ware of Momoyama period Japan. We will also consider how contemporary ceramists respond to tradition or experiment with technical innovations and new styles. Discussions will focus on examining historical contexts, materials and techniques, aesthetic concerns, and utilitarian to expressive, spiritual functions.

AHS 3605

Topics in Japanese Art: Art of the Edo Period

[G/C] When Tokugawa Ieyasu assumed the title of shogun and established Edo as his seat of power, a new era of stability emerged. Despite the closure of Japan to foreign contacts early in the seventeenth century, the Edo Period (1603-1868) became an artistically rich and diverse time period. This seminar course explores a range of art from schools and artists who enjoyed the patronage of the aristocracy and shoguns, to the emergence of art that appealed to the burgeoning urban culture of Edo itself. We will study the variety of art produced during the Edo Period including Kanō and Tosa school works, Rinpa, Ukiyo-e, Zen, Nanga (Bunjinga), and western-influenced art. We will examine paintings, prints, architecture, gardens, ceramics, calligraphy and textiles, taking into consideration the various social, religious, and cultural contexts under which the art was produced.

Topics in Japanese Art: Contemporary Japanese Art

[G/C] This course will examine the art of Japan from primarily the 1960s to today, with some consideration of artistic movements that arose after World War II such as the Gutai Bijutsu Kyokai (Gutai Art Association). We will study various groups and individual artists who respond to natural materials and spiritual sources that have long been a part of the traditional Japanese aesthetic, such as the Mono-ha group, to movements that reflect a dialogue with the global context of avant-garde art. We will explore the unique qualities of many contemporary Japanese artists' works that reference the legacy of Japanese art history while creating a dynamic interplay with such popular cultural phenomena as manga and anime. Discussions will focus on issues of nationalism, cultural memory, spatiality, temporality, Western influences, imaging violence and cuteness, gender, and popular culture.

Topics in Asian Art: Contemporary Chinese Art

[Contemporary; G/C] This course will examine the art of China from the latter part of the 20th century to today. We will study various groups and individual artists who redefined the content and aesthetics of art, diverging from the state sanctioned Social Realist style. We will discuss how complex and changing political, historical, and social contexts in China have influenced art since the end of the Cultural Revolution, with the development of avant-garde movements from The Stars Group and Xiamen Dada to the formulation of Political Pop and Cynical Realism. The works of Ai Weiwei, Cai Guo-Qiang, Xu Bing, Zhou Hongbin, Qiu Zhijie, Cao Fei, Zhang Huan, and many others will be discussed, illuminating the range of influences, approaches, and concerns to be found in contemporary Chinese art. We will examine a wide range of media and discover artists who confront the inheritance of the past as well as those who engage in a continuing dialogue with it.

Topics in Japanese Art: Japanese Prints

[G/C] In this course we will examine Japanese woodblock prints from their inception during the seventeenth century to the twentieth century. Particular emphasis, however, will be placed upon the study of ukiyo-e ("Pictures of the Floating World") produced during the Edo period (1615-1868). We will examine the history of prints, their subject matter, major artists, printmaking techniques, issues of print connoisseurship and collecting, as well as the connection of prints to kabuki and other cultural and political influences. Additionally, we will study the influence of woodblock prints on Western art during the end of the 19th century and discuss how modern Japanese prints reflect the growing internationalization of the 20th century art world.

Topics in Asian Art: Artistic Objects Made in Imperial China

[G/C] This course examines artistic objects made from different materials in Chinese imperial period, particularly during the Ming and Qing times. Focusing on things made with bronze, jade, lacquer, wood, bamboo, and silk, we will look into the subjects, material, technique, functions, symbolism, as well as aesthetics and taste to achieve an understanding of a broader visual and material culture of the time. Through the examination of these objects, we will look at how Chinese people lived in everyday life: what did they use and wear? How did they present gifts? What did they do in leisure time? How did the use of these objects mark social boundaries? We will interpret these objects within historical, cultural and religious contexts and consider cultural exchanges between regions and between regions and the imperial court. The topics will be examined both chronologically and thematically.

Topics in Asian Art: Buddhist Art in East Asia

[Medieval; G/C] This course will examine Buddhism through the visual arts of China, Japan, and Korea. We will explore temples, cave sites, painted scrolls, spiritual sculptures, and other artistic media traditions from these regions and consider these works using visual, historical, political, and social perspectives. Through museum visits and in-class discussions, students will analyze artworks by means of regional and historical contexts, but also consider how Buddhist-related material functions within museums and local collections today.

Art History Seminar: Life Beyond — Ghosts, Demons & Death

[Seminar; G/C] In this course we will examine Asian and Western art that concerns the end of life and the afterlife — or some alternative demonic realm. We will see art depicting witches who summon demonic forms, elaborate sarcophagi that honor the dead yet speak to the living, depictions of ghosts whom the living failed to appease and images of wronged spirits seeking retribution. We will discuss religious ideas, such as those found in Buddhism and Christianity, that often foster such representations, in addition to folk tales and legends that have contributed to the iconography. Since this is an art history seminar, there will be an emphasis upon class discussion and written work instead of exams. Along with some short papers in response to readings, a research paper will be required.

Art History Seminar: East Meets West

[Seminar; G/C] This course will examine the intersections between European-American and East Asian art. Focusing our study between c.1500-1950, we will explore how the cultures stimulated each other, and how artists responded to perceived conflicts and cultural differences. Some questions we will address include, how do we define imitation or inspiration in the historic context? How do tradition and modernity interact in a global world? Does artistic imitation lead to cultural understanding or stereotyping?

Art History Seminar: Art of Zen

[Seminar; G/C] This course will examine the various forms of artistic expression associated with Zen Buddhism. Zen practices were introduced from India to China in the 6th century and entered Japan in about the 13th century. We will study manifestations of Zen philosophy seen in paintings, calligraphy, the tea ceremony, and the architecture and gardens of Zen monasteries. We will explore topics such as the historical and cultural contexts of each country, themes, symbols, metaphors and koan, as well as aesthetic principles that inform Zen art.

Topics in Global/Comparative Studies: Modern Chinese History

[G/C] This course is a study of Chinese history from the fall of the Ming dynasty in 1644 to the present day. Although we will focus specifically on events in the history of what we recognize today as the People's Republic of China, attention will also be given to both Taiwan and Hong Kong. We will look closely at the dynamic between the often seemingly incongruous domestic and foreign policies of the PRC Communist regime. The class will attempt to discern common social and political pattern in Chinese history by examining various facets of Chinese society including philosophy, literature, science, and art. Our class will focus on the growing role of the PRC as a world power and will also give special consideration to the question of whether or not China's continued economic development and prosperity is indicative of a move towards more democratic freedoms for the Chinese people.

Topics in Global/Comparative Studies: The Asian American as Other in Film and Media

[G/C; Social Practice minor] This class will examine images of Asia and Asian Americans in American and transnational film and media, and how these reflect the national anxieties and fantasies precipitated by Asian immigration, labor policies, and US imperialist interests in Asia. We will address the shifting perceptions of Asian Americans as Other in film and media, with particular attention to the presence of Orientalist discourse in representations of Asian Americans as "the yellow peril" or "the model minority" and other stereotypes. The course will also explore the intersectionality of race, national identity, gender, sexuality, and socio-economic class in the depictions of Asian Americans in film and media.

LIT 3412 (cross-listed with SOC 3412)

Topics in Narrative: Asian American Literature

[G/C] This course will trace the development of Asian American Literature by exploring literary texts written from the beginning of the 20th century to the present. Readings for this class will include novels, short stories, essays and poetry written by Asian American writers from diverse backgrounds. The class will examine how different literary forms of representation inform the construction of Asian American identities. We will look closely at the historical, political and social contexts that have shaped the diverse Asian American literary tradition. Through the various literary works of Asian American authors, the class will explore issues such as immigration, racial intolerance, assimilation, the Asian diaspora, and the intersection of gender inequality and cultural hegemony.

Topics in Global/Comparative Studies: Japanese Cinema

[G/C] This course is a study of Japanese film from its early history to the modern era by examining different eras, focusing on specific genres, and exploring the works of select cinematic masters.

LIT 3706 (cross-listed with SOC 3706)

Topics in Gender Studies: Through the Lens—Gender and Nation in Contemporary Chinese Cinema

[G/C] This class will examine how film reflects traditional, socially-constructed gender roles, and conventional ideas on sexuality. Emphasis will be placed on how issues of national identity and historical context are conveyed through the lens of gender. Students will acquire knowledge of Chinese cinematic history and the movements that it encompasses, as well as an understanding of cinematic techniques and modern Chinese history, politics and culture. Films include Raise the Red Lantern, The Story of Qiu Jiu, and Farewell My Concubine.

LIT 3801

Topics in Translation: Modern Chinese Narrative in Translation

[G/C] This class will present a survey of the major authors and trends in Chinese narrative from the late 1910’s to the present. Students will read and study examples of Chinese narrative from various genres including short stories, novels, and reportage literature. The class will discuss how the fictional works reflect and offer critical commentary on social, political, and economic events and trends in contemporary Chinese history. In addition, we will look closely at how individual Chinese writers endeavor to develop their own artistic voice amidst the country’s struggle to establish and develop its national identity. Also, we will examine the impact that political ideologies and Chinese government policies such as political censorship have had on the development of Modern Chinese narrative. Viewing of Chinese films and readings of current literary criticism will also support study of the works. No prior knowledge of Chinese language or history is required.

LIT 3803

Topics in Translation: Traditional Chinese Literature

[G/C] This class will present a survey of traditional Chinese literature from early times (c. 1027 B.C.E.) through the beginning of the Qing Dynasty (c. 1644). The course will introduce students to three of the major genres in traditional Chinese literature: poetry, fiction and drama with an emphasis on vernacular fiction and examine the intertextuality between these genres. We will read translations of a number of “masterworks” of traditional Chinese literature including The Story of the Stone (also known as The Dream of the Red Chamber), Journey to the West, and Outlaws of the Marsh. Through our readings we will explore important features of traditional Chinese society: religious and philosophical beliefs, gender relations and sexuality, family and class structure, and attitudes towards the imperial system and dynastic change. In addition, we will trace the development of major literary practices, conventions and themes through our readings. All works are in translation, and no knowledge of Chinese language, history or culture is necessary.

Topics in Translation: Modern Japanese Narrative

[G/C] In this course, students will read and study major authors and literary trends in Japanese literature, including short stories, novels, and essays. Each text will be discussed in the context of historical and political events, social developments, and cultural movements. The class will examine themes related to the tensions between tradition and modernity, the impact of Westernization on concepts of the self, gender, and class, the effects of World War II and its aftermath, as well as postmodern sensibilities and aesthetics.

Special Topics in [Art History/Creative Writing/History/Literature/Philosophy/Science/Social Science – with Asian Studies emphasis] [G/C]

3 credit hours (3 lecture)

Special Topics courses in a variety of disciplines are offered each semester for academic credit.

Minor in Entrepreneurial Studies in Art and Design (16 total credits)

Three out of four graduates of arts programs in the US are self-employed at some point in their career and graduates of arts programs start businesses at four times the rate of the general population according to 2020 SNAAP data (<https://snaaparts.org/>). KCAI recognizes the need, and demand, for today's artists and designers to have an entrepreneurial spirit backed with business acumen and leadership skills to bolster the likelihood of professional success as a self-employed person or as a founder of a business or not-for-profit.

As such, KCAI has partnered with the Bloch School of Management at the University of Missouri-Kansas City (UMKC) to offer a minor in entrepreneurial studies in art and design. This 16-credit-hour minor includes entrepreneurship and business course offerings taught by Bloch School faculty on the KCAI campus. UMKC's Bloch School of Management and the Regnier Institute for Entrepreneurship and Innovation (RIEI) are dedicated to "inspiring, nurturing and transforming entrepreneurs and innovators across disciplines." Students in all majors may elect to complete the minor with careful course planning. These courses help students learn business fundamentals and engage in innovative artistic ventures. Some studio electives not listed here may be substituted for one of these courses with permission from the student's department chair and Andy Heise.

Program-Level Learning Outcomes:

- Communication: Demonstrate an ability to effectively communicate and express ideas visually, orally, and in writing, to cultivate effective listening skills, and constructively engage in conversation
- Criticality: Apply critical thinking and integrate ideas from multiple approaches and perspectives.
- Research Skills: Conduct independent inquiry and research through critical engagement with diverse, multicultural and multidisciplinary information sources.

- Risk Taking, Problem Solving, and Creativity: Cultivate a curiosity for pursuing opportunities to create and capture value that align with their talents and desires.
- Techniques and Skills: Design, test, and execute a business model using a variety of tools and methods.
- Diversity: Demonstrate an openness to learn about and cultivate an understanding and appreciation of different perspectives and diverse world views and how they contextualize ideas, beliefs, and events.
- Professional Practice: Understand key management, marketing, financial, and economic principles necessary in an entrepreneurial career and an organization

ENTP 250 - Introduction to Art and Design Entrepreneurship – 3 credit hours (3 lecture)

This is an introductory course to provide students with a foundational knowledge of what it means to work with an entrepreneurial spirit. Topics include creative problem solving, entrepreneurial methods and practices, idea and business modeling, leveraging resources, and legal issues. This course counts as a liberal arts elective or open elective credit.

ENTP 353 - Creative Enterprise Studio – 3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Prerequisite: ENTP 250] Topics covered in this course include opportunity recognition, venture modeling and design, and strategies for getting started. This course counts as an open elective. Please note CERME 308 can satisfy the ENTP 353 requirement:

CERME 308

Ceramics, Entrepreneurship and the Marketplace

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Artists and entrepreneurs share many similar attributes, they are adaptive, able to think creatively, solve problems and seek opportunities for their ideas. This course will focus on the role of artists as entrepreneurs and the potential to create, promote and sell work by designing, branding and launching a design for market. Students will work with a variety of forming processes such as rapid prototyping, mold making, slip casting, wheel throwing or hand building to produce a series of ceramic objects ready to be sold through multiple platforms. Through the class we will investigate potential settings to market and sell work including online venues, wholesale shows, retail shops and boutiques. We will research contemporary practitioners and conduct field trips to the studios of Kansas City artists, designers and makers who have successfully navigated a career in the production and trade of ceramic objects. Prior experience with ceramic materials is not required to enroll in the course. This course counts for ENTP 353 Creative Enterprise Studio in the Entrepreneurship minor.

ENTP 330 - Entrepreneurship Toolkit – 3 credit hours (3 studio)

This course provides an overview of key business fundamentals for creative entrepreneurs, including marketing, management, accounting, finance, economics, operations, and personal finance. This course counts as a social science, liberal arts elective or open elective credit. Please note DESNE 322 can satisfy the ENTP 330 requirement:

DESNE 322

Freelancing 101

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Freelancing 101 brings the real world into the classroom, sharing a piece so integral that's not usually taught to creatives: how to work for yourself and run a business. Whether you aspire to freelance full time or moonlight on the side, it's best to be prepared. Learn business basics such as how to put together estimates, invoices and contracts, as well as self-promotion tricks and how to get clients. This class is geared toward those vying to work in the advertising/marketing industry, such as graphic designers, illustrators, photographers and more. However, those in other tracks can also very much benefit. This course can substitute for the ENTP 330 Entrepreneurship minor requirement.

ENTP 350 - Entrepreneurship Experience – 3 credit hours (3 studio)

Students will complete an internship, directed study, or venture development project. This course allows students to apply their entrepreneurial skills in real-world settings, either through internships with professionals or by launching their own ventures with faculty guidance. Alternatively, students may fulfill this requirement by completing a course from an approved list published each semester. Students must submit a “Degree Requirement Substitution Request – ENTP 350” form. This course counts as a studio elective or an open elective. Students should meet with their advisor to discuss their plans for this requirement.

Professional Practice – 3 credit hours (3 studio)

The required professional practice course within each major focuses on discipline-specific professional practice knowledge and experiences and meets this requirement.

ENTP 430 - Art and Design Entrepreneurship Seminar (1 credit hour)

[Prerequisite: ENTP 250] This seminar requires students to engage in entrepreneurship events in the Kansas City community and come together to share their entrepreneurial experiences. Students will also help promote the art and design entrepreneurship minor and serve as “ambassadors” for the program. This course has a prerequisite of ENTP 250 - Introduction to Art and Design Entrepreneurship.

ENTP 2ST/3ST

Special Topics in Sound

3 credit hours (3 studio or lecture)

Special Topics courses in a variety of disciplines are offered each semester for academic credit.

Minor in Social Practice (15 total credits)

The social practice program is designed to immerse students in the field of socially engaged art while they are pursuing their major disciplinary focus. The minor exposes students to lines of inquiry that address their role as artists in society along with possible outcomes of an art practice that deeply considers the cultural, economic, environmental, political and social realities of today. Through exposure to diverse faculty practices and research areas in studio and liberal arts courses, this multidisciplinary program strengthens conceptual intersections and research practices. The program prepares and equips students with skills for effective collaboration, dialogue, debate, conflict resolution, and adaptability. It provides a foundation for cultural awareness, especially regarding the social and ethical aspects of working with others in diverse settings.

Course Titles and Descriptions

SOCPR 210 - Socially Engaged Art – 3 credit hours (3 studio)

The Introduction to Social Practice is a studio elective designed to give students a conceptual and historical foundation of socially-engaged art practice while guiding them through a series of parameter-based assignments. This class will consist of lectures, required readings, and discussions, to familiarize students with concepts and trajectories of topics such as relational aesthetics, sustainability and social justice/art activism.

Students will be required to begin their own research practice through class presentations. Topical areas and individual research will inform studio assignments that will address questions around the ethics of community engagement, effective methods of communication, and considerations of authority and power.

SOCPR 366 - Collaborative Art Practices – 3 credit hours (3 studio)

This lecture/discussion course will introduce students to a wide variety of collaborative artistic practices, and help students build relationships in the local community to further their own socially engaged artistic practice. The course will be built around a series of visits (in person and online) by local, regional, and national/international artists, curators, and cultural organizers who engage substantively with others as a major component of their creative practice. Alongside these visits, we will read and discuss critical theoretical texts that help to illuminate various aspects of collaboration in social practice. We will also take field trips to nonprofit organizations that partner with KCAI faculty or alumni, in order to better understand the local ecosystem for engagement. The course will culminate with students developing a written proposal for a joint project they could carry out in partnership with one of the artists or organizations they have encountered over the course of the semester. In line with the Social Practice student learning outcomes, this course is designed to help students develop an awareness of diverse cultural practices and viewpoints; conduct research by critically engaging with resources about socially engaged work; articulate ideas and methods of social practice in writing; and deepen their understanding of professional practice in the realm of social practice. Collaborative Art Practices is the second required course in the Social Practice core curriculum. Enrollment is open to anyone who is interested in learning more about social practice, whether or not they are currently enrolled in the Social Practice minor.

Social Practice Electives (9 credit hours or three courses)

Students may choose from a list of designated social practice courses or internships.

Social Practice Electives

Topics in Contemporary Art: Institutional Critique

[Contemporary] This course focuses on the artistic practice of institutional critique. We will study the development of institutional critique from the 1960s to the present. We will examine a range of strategies that artists have used to challenge aesthetic and cultural hierarchies and to comment on systems and structures of power.

AHS 3815

Topics in Art & Society: Art and Ecocriticism—Medieval to Modern

As issues of sustainability and environmental impact have become increasingly pressing concerns, scholars and artists alike have sought to interrogate humanity's complex relationship with nature. Ecocriticism emerged in response to this drive, exploring how different peoples throughout time have understood the role of nature and the value it held within their culture. This course will examine art and architecture from diverse cultures spanning from the Middle Ages to our modern era. The class will investigate the central role that nature has played in spiritual, political, and social concerns throughout history, as well as how artists today use ecocriticism to comment upon environmental problems and humanitarian issues across the globe. We will discuss works from a multitude of locations, including but not limited to, the Middle East, Western Europe, Africa, the Americas, and the Pacific Islands.

DESNE 230

Typography as Public Engagement / Intervention / Disruption

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Typography as Public Engagement / Intervention / Disruption: How do designers and artists leverage the written word for engaging meaningfully with communities in ways that disrupts normal patterns of thought and action? What does it look like to collaborate with others in telling stories, expressing viewpoints, or sharing facts? As visually creative people, what is our role as authors of messages or facilitators of messages alongside others? How might we design processes that allow everyday folks to express themselves through the written [and seen] word? To suss out these answers, we will practice putting our text-based ideas out into public spaces, examine co-design processes, meet with creators of public projects, activists, and non-profits, learn basics of typography and lettering as a means of emotional and rational communication, and look at a range of public projects from street art to exhibition design, from installations to protest design and art.

DESN 361

Social Innovation Inquiry

6 credit hours (6 studio)

[Junior Graphic Design majors only] As creative thinkers and makers, graphic designers have much to contribute to the complex societal issues we face with respect to justice, equity, sustainability, [dis]ability, and a range of other wicked problems worthy of our attention. We also have a responsibility to people and the planet to undertake our work within a thoughtful ethical framework. Through a student-initiated, question-led process, we will explore these interrelated topics in a holistic, strategic, and systematic way. We will respectfully center our audience and their relationships to the issue in a co-design process, with media, communication strategy, context, and visual form following suit, leading to innovative design propositions that seek to improve our communities within both social/civic and commercial contexts. Advanced students will focus more intently on independent, grassroots work and their role as designer-facilitator-community member in a real-world context. To support and shape our experiences within the studio, we will discuss insights and share ideas we glean from reading, watching, and listening to a range of relevant sources.

FIBR/FIBRE 353

Waste as Resource: Garment Construction and Material Reuse

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Waste as Resource is a studio course that will cover garment design and sewn construction within the context of material re-use. Students enrolled in the course will work with traditional and experimental garment forms, and they will develop basic sewing skills as well as a material awareness. This course is intended for students with all levels of sewing experience, and is directed towards students who are interested in thinking globally about fashion and garment design. It would be helpful that students have basic sewing machine experience. Students will be introduced to various mending techniques and develop material awareness. They will learn to read and employ commercially available patterns, and to construct and finish garments that are both functional as well as grounded in waste-led design.

FIBR 3532

Waste as Resource: Garment Construction and Material Reuse - Intermediate

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Prerequisite: FIBR/FIBRE 353] Waste as Resource is a studio course that will cover intermediate level garment design and sewn construction within the context of material re-use. Students enrolled in the course will work with traditional and experimental garment forms, and they will develop intermediate sewing skills as well as a material awareness. This course is intended for students with intermediate level sewing experience, and is directed towards students who are interested in thinking globally about fashion and garment design.

CAMAE 221

LIVE! - Audiovisual Concepts and Approaches for Creative Real Time Situations

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Prerequisite: CAMA/CAMAE 203; Sound minor] How can artists utilize audiovisual media's immediacy? Through experimentation and research, this studio course will concentrate on the use of visual and sonic media as a central component within live creative situations such as performance, installation, outdoor/architectural projection, and real time streaming. You will gain the foundational skills needed for projection mapping (technique for merging the projected image with physical space and or objects, moving away from traditional flat projection surfaces), audiovisual mixers for live manipulation, multi-channel projection, fundamental lighting programming, and streaming. In addition, there will be an examination of the historical predecessors who employed live audiovisual components as well as contemporary artists working in this field. Production assignments will be given throughout the semester, and towards the end of the semester, one large individually driven final production will be due.

CAMAE 251

Performance as Image, Interaction and Intervention

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Sound minor] In this seminar-style elective, students will delve into the conceptual, historical and technical underpinnings of performance art. We will consider creative methods to produce artworks that engage embodied experience, impermanence and physical movements for students to explore their personal engagement with these processes. The class will focus around three topical areas: performance as a live event and/or action for the camera, participatory performance and performance as intervention with an existing cultural or social sphere. This coursework will be structured through lectures, student research presentations, class discussions, work in progress and critiques. Drawing from the three areas, students will produce three studio projects over the course of the semester. Any media or cross disciplinary practice is welcome and encouraged to be employed through this experimental engagement with performance methodologies.

Topics in Art as History: Kansas City Jazz

[Sound minor] This course explores the cultural, social and political environment in Kansas City that fostered the development of a unique style of jazz from the 1920s through the 1940s. The development of Kansas City jazz is cast against historical events such as Prohibition, the Great Depression and World War II. The growth of Kansas City jazz style from ragtime to bebop is traced using sound recordings and videos.

Topics in American Studies: Entrance and Exclusion—American Migration History

This course will examine the history of immigration to the United States from the 17th century to the present. We will study the diverse experiences of immigrants to the U.S. from Africa, Asia, Central and Latin America, Europe and the Middle East. The conflict of whether to include or exclude various groups of people who wish to become part of American society is a drama that has been played out through the course of American history. With the objective of seeking to provide historical context to current debates on immigration reform, integration and citizenship, this course will address themes such as assimilation, gender differences, generational conflict, transnationalism, nativism and xenophobia, racialization and racism. This course will adopt a multi-disciplinary approach towards the history of U.S. immigration which will include the study of immigration law and legal cases, oral history, fiction and film, and both primary and secondary historical sources. Required text: Coming to America: A History of Immigration and Ethnicity in American Life by Roger Daniels (2nd Edition), 2002, Visual Education Corporation ISBN 0-06-050577-X

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] This course is an interdisciplinary, cross-cultural study of the various dimensions of Asian American experiences, including history, social organization, literature, arts, and politics. This course will focus on the diverse experiences of Chinese, Japanese, Filipino, Korean, South Asian and Southeast Asian ethnic groups in the United States. We will focus on significant issues such as immigration, racial prejudice, stereotypes, gender, labor, and identity. The class will use varied sources to explore “Asian American” experiences throughout American history. We will read seminal Asian American literary works such as Maxine Hong Kingston’s Woman Warrior and John Okada’s No Boy and watch films such as Lee Ang’s The Wedding Banquet. The class will also examine political topics such as affirmative action, the “model minority” stereotype, and racial tensions in the history of Asians in America as well as explore pop culture phenomenon such as Amy Chua’s The Battle Hymn of the Tiger Mother.

Topics in Gender Studies: Queer American History

[Social Practice minor] This course focuses on the history of same-sex sexuality, and to a lesser extent, gender identity, in the United States from the 19th century to the present day. We consider the changing meanings of same-sex desires, acts, identities, and relationships; the social definitions and regulations of same-sex love and sexuality; the emergence of sexual and gender subcultures and identities; and the growth of advocacy movements around gay and lesbian civil rights. While examining the overall American experience, we also utilize materials that reveal parallel activities in the Kansas City area. Though not as recognized as the gay communities in larger cities like San Francisco or New York, Kansas City has been home to some of the most active and pioneering gay and lesbian organizations, establishments, and individuals in the country, dating as far back as the 1930s. The archival sources for these local stories are drawn from the Gay and Lesbian Archive of Mid-America (GLAMA), a collecting initiative of LaBudde Special Collections at Miller Nichols Library on the campus of UMKC. As a collection of oral histories, physical artifacts, and manuscript papers, GLAMA affords a remarkable glimpse into the LGBTQ history of the American Midwest.

US: Collaboration, Teamwork and Flexibility

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Junior Illustration major only] This course will give students an opportunity to experience collaboration and flexibility within a team. Students will practice communication and creative skills by working in teams with fellow classmates. The group dynamic can produce very interesting creative solutions. Learning to work in a group, understanding the importance of good communication, the client partnership, the shedding of one’s ego, the collective brainstorming process, are all a part of this class.

Topics in Narrative: Western Attitudes Towards Death and Dying

[Social Practice minor] As artists, the subject of death will be found in our work at some point, whether it be in the form of an elegiac response, metaphysical inquiry, political outrage toward mass killing in warfare or meditation on our collective predicament. In this reading-intensive course, students will explore and discuss numerous critical and creative writings on death. Assigned readings will include, but are not limited to, Philippe Ariès' "Western Attitudes Towards Death from the Middle Ages to the Present", Leo Tolstoy's "The Death of Ivan Ilyich", Don DeLillo's White Noise, and various poems and short stories that have death as their subject. Students will write two close reading response essays, and produce a final creative project accompanied by a detailed artist statement.

Topics in Gender Studies: Constructing the Woman Warrior

[G/C] A multidisciplinary study of the scholarship on women, with an introduction to feminist theory and methodology. As Maxine Hong Kingston explains, a woman warrior must "make (her) mind large, as the universe is large, so that there is room for paradoxes." This course will explore the various paradoxes involved in constructing the concept of woman by looking at historical and contemporary experiences of women in both public and private spheres. The class will study feminist theory by reading the groundbreaking works of women such as Simone DeBeauvoir, Virginia Woolf, Julia Kristeva and Helene Cixous. We will examine representations of female identity in literary works such as Charlotte Perkins Gilman's "The Yellow Wallpaper" and Hong Kingston's The Woman Warrior. In addition, we will look at imposed standards of beauty (corsets, footbinding) and social codes of conduct that contribute to the formulation of the ideal female image. The class will study the significance of popular female icons throughout history and in the media. Specific attention will also be given to how the construction of the concept of woman intersects with nationality, race, class and sexuality.

Cultivation: Drawing Intentional Relationships with Plants

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Gardens are human interventions with nature for the cultivation of food, relaxation, and aesthetics. Gardens are places where city-dwellers can come to re-establish a connection to nature and where knowledge about plants can be passed down from one generation to the next. To explore what it means to cultivate a garden is to step into a layered discourse about history, health, power, and beauty, among many other topics. This class provides the student the opportunity to enter into this conversation and intentionally foster their own relationship to plants and gardens. Throughout the semester, especially in the warmer months, we will visit local parks and gardens, looking at them as places of healing, as well as ecosystems and metaphors. We will explore individual plants, and analyze gardens as interactive art installations and imagine new interventions with them. Through readings and presentations, the student will learn about many creative strategies, from the traditional to the subversive, in which artists have sought to cultivate deeper connections between the botanical and human worlds. Assignment prompts will encourage the development of individual research and methods of working in an environment of inclusion and experimentation. These ideas and experiments will be discussed in individual meetings with the instructor as well as in large group discussions. Our goal is to develop a studio practice that employs social, collaborative, and/or interventionist strategies to explore the relationships we create with plants.

Topics in Philosophy & Ethics: Environmental Ethics

As the globe warms, cities sprawl, traffic crawls (or flies through the telecom infrastructure), and humankind hangs satellites in near space, we find we've come to a crisis as we think about the impact of our outlook on, attitudes toward, and beliefs about the environment. Just how durable is our world? What assumptions have we made about its capacity to return to equilibrium? What actions do we take or what habits have we made that we've never even considered risky? In this course, we will read writing on the environment from the past century and rethink our own thinking about the environment in order to understand its problems more clearly and find what solutions we can while there's still time.

PRINE 240

Letterpress: Visual Rebels and Revolutions - Art of the Poster

3 credit hours (3 studio)

Letterpress is a sixteen week course, designed to introduce students to the fundamentals and technical principles of a variety of letterpress processes. Students will explore traditional and contemporary methods such as hand-set type, linocuts, pressure printing, digitally carved/cut matrices (using cnc routers and laser cutters) and possibly photopolymer. Students will create and discuss imagery/pattern-based works that are both conceptually engaging and well executed, thus developing their understanding and vocabulary of aesthetics and printmaking. This course includes constructive dialogue about social and activist issues in tandem with the Social Practice program. This critical discourse acquaints student artists with the dynamic possibilities available through the incorporation of print processes with the ongoing western concerns including, but not limited to, social, economic and equity issues. Additionally, the history of letterpress along with its contemporary aspects will be addressed throughout the semester in discussions, assignments, visiting artists and events.

Topics in Ecology: From Hubris to Humility—Humanity Through an Ecocentric Lens

This course will guide students to evaluate their role as citizens of the world through an ecocentric lens in an era where species across the world struggle with climate change and the Sixth Mass Extinction. After laying a foundation of ecology and species concepts, the course will build through exploring the human-caused ecological crises, both ancient and modern, the environmental movement of the 1960s, where we are heading with the modern sustainability and Rights of Nature movements, and exciting recent discoveries that make us question what we thought we knew about our fellow species and our own. Along the way, we will be introduced to naturalist writers and environmental philosophers, old and new, and examine artistic portrayals of the human-nature dynamic.

SOC 3000

Topics in Political Science: Contemporary Issues/Critical Perspectives

This is a reading/discussion course in which students will study various controversial issues facing today's society, enabling them to discover their values and responsibilities as informed and engaged citizens of the world. As our nation approaches the 2024 Presidential and Congressional Elections, Americans find themselves more deeply and bitterly divided on social, political, economic, and cultural issues than at any time since the 1960s. We will examine how a number of these volatile issues are depicted in American popular culture, for example, an analysis of racism in the recently award-winning film Get Out, Jordan Peele's provocative cinematic vision of the world through a black man's eyes and Do the Right Thing by director Spike Lee. Students will be responsible for seminar presentations, at least two research and analytical papers. Intellectual discourse, thoughtful reflection, and a healthy, rigorous civil debate on controversial issues will be encouraged and welcomed.

Topics in Sociology: Peace and Conflict Resolution

This course will explore the nature of conflict, peacemaking, and conflict resolution from various perspectives and prepare students with conflict resolution and change skills to participate actively and creatively in building a global society based on peace, justice, and the nonviolent resolution of conflicts. We will come to see that peace is not the absence of conflict; it is a way of responding to conflict. Conflict resolution, the technology of peace, is therefore an integral part of any peacemaking process. A variety of techniques will enable students to both understand and analyze peacemaking and conflict resolution skills including presentation of major concepts, readings, discussions, films, and skill demonstrations and practice.

Sound Art Collaboration

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Sound minor] This introductory class supports live ensemble improvisation by creating a temporary autonomous zone for collective art-making. With music/sound at the heart of the group, students are also invited to perform with visual, vocal and/or other art forms. Emphasis is on an open, flexible and inclusive social practice within our group, in public performance, the creation of open-resource media, and collaborations with other organizations and artists. Relational thinking, synesthetic experience, and a non-verbal critical process facilitate our work. Influences: Pauline Oliveros' Deep Listening, Annea Lockwood's Social Space, and Sun Ra's Dance of the Living Image.

SOUNE 208

African Drumming, African Thought

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Sound minor] Study the time honored drumming traditions of West Africa, Brazil and the Caribbean. Learn the proper posture, hand placement and approach to playing numerous drums from these regions: jembe, dun duns, congas, bongos, maracas, guiro, bells, shekere and more. Examine the concept of apart playing and intonation and how they are incorporated into the multiplicity of rhythmic patterns. Understand the components that define this art form such as polyrhythm, counter rhythms, offbeat and syncopation. Participate in interactive group sessions and explore how this drumming is not only connected to the folklore of these cultures but also how it is designed to bring and hold the village community together.

Sound Art Collaboration 2

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Sound minor] [Prerequisite: SOUNE 205] This advanced live ensemble improvisation class further develops composing for a social flow in events, AV performance design and organizational professional practice, where you are expected to take on a creative leadership role. With music/sound at the heart of our experience, you are invited to facilitate, produce and perform with visual, vocal and/or other art forms. Emphasis is on an open, flexible and inclusive social practice within our group, in public performance, the creation of open-resource media, and your guidance collaborating with other organizations and artists. Relational thinking, synesthetic experience, and a non-verbal critical process will guide your facilitation. ##### Sound-Text

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Sound minor] Your voice is the medium— immediate, personally expressive, socially engaging, our conduit to the world. This assignment-driven class is grounded in phonetics, phonology and voicing letterforms; the continuities between human language and music; the evolution of language cognition; and voice recording, vocal performance and radiophonic art. Techno-artistic presentations support assignments and the use of our production facility.

Intermodulations

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Sound minor] This class is an introduction to composing and performing by strategy, behavior, intelligence and subjectivity within sound and social systems. Develop individual tools in which you can compose and perform within a variety of contexts. Our work flows through three phases of development— non-linear composition, sensing/interacting/engagement (feedback) and intermodulating (communing). Our work is grounded in composing, performing, interacting and collaborating with systems, strategies and information ecologies that bring together individual creativity and group participation with technology. Gestural connections to the body are emphasized by applying the aesthetics of instrumental performance and collective behavior to technology. Ableton Live software is introduced for creating social environments with sound for performance. Our work is supported by research into the mechanization of art, artificial intelligence and cybernetics. Outcomes for the class are focused around your creating, performing, composing and generating sound as it relates to your artistic goals and needs.

Sound of Painting

3 credit hours (3 lecture)

[Sound minor] The rich history of aural-visual experimentation between painters and musicians is engaged in research and social-technical practice. The science of cross-modal perception and memory establishes our critical method while engaging the depth of your own perpetual experience. Lectures introduce topic areas—Spiritualist Correspondence, Rhythm and Abstraction in African Art and Music, Futurist and Afro-Futurist Impulses, Visual Music, Darwin Among the Machines, and the Synesthetic Presence. These presentations feature painters paired with synaesthetically-linked composers like Claude Debussy and James Abbott McNeill Whistler, Wassily Kandinsky and Arnold Schoenberg, Francisco Goya and Teresa Wong, and Sonia Delauney and Antonio D’Amato. Experimental music-animations by Walter Ruttmann, Oskar Fischinger and Mary Ellen Bute are also shown. For readings, select from primary source documents provided in our shared class folder, including texts by Annie Besant, Charles Baudelaire, Luigi Russolo, Sonia Delauney, Daphne Oram, Sun Ra and John Cage. Assignments include a research presentation critiquing your studio work through our class process.

Special Topics – Special Topics courses in a variety of disciplines are offered each semester for academic credit.

Faculty-Led Travel Program for Social Practice Credit: Mexico Summer Studio Intensive

This 3 credit studio intensive promotes the practice of engaging the world as a classroom. Students will be provided facilities and instruction at the historic Instituto Allende to make self directed studio work in the medium of their choice. While inevitably drawing from their immersion in the regional history and contemporary culture, students will also have the option to participate in either a ceramics or fiber workshop supported by local faculty.

Minor in Sound (15 Credit Hours)

Interdisciplinary in nature and drawing from the rich interactions between sound and the visual arts, our listening-directed courses are informed by acoustics, performance, music, language, the voice arts, phonetics, sonification, sound design, soundscapes, cymatics, time and memory, cross-modal cognition, historiophony and cultural studies. Through studio and lecture electives across campus, the minor supports students pursuing historical, conceptual and technical engagement with sound in your artistic major.

15 qualifying credit hours are required to graduate with a Sound Minor by taking four qualifying electives and one required class, SOUNE 301 Audio-Vision: Sound for Screen & Space (to establish life-long best-practice in sound production).

Sound Sculpture: Studies in Contemporary Art

3 credit hours (3 lecture)

This survey of contemporary art is grounded in listening to the world. Every sound heard is considered as an interaction of matter and energy connecting us to a sound’s source and soundscape. Our five areas for Sound Sculpture: Materials, Energies, Processes, Soundscapes and Social Spaces. Artists’ work auditioned and discussed include Annea Lockwood, Richard Lerman, Max Eastley, Alvin Lucier, Ellen Fullman, Steve Reich, Stuart Dempster, Pauline Oliveros, Toru Takemitsu and Marcus Brown. Assignments include a research presentation discussing your studio work through approaches from our survey.

Sound in Radio Art

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This is a radio production class in making sound art for broadcast. Your work is guided by the history of sound in radio art with assignments featuring a Prosody Study (supported by Cathy Berberian's "THEMA: Omaggio a Joyce" from RAI radio in Milan), an Audio Time-Capsule using public domain sources (after David Ossman's "Time Capsules" for the National Federation of Community Broadcasters in the US), and a Musique Concrète Composition (after the work of Pierre Henry for Radio France). We will learn the standards and best practices for radio production in order to create a program for broadcast on KKFI 90.1FM Kansas City Community Radio (and webcast at kkfi.org). We will also tour KKFI's studios as well as the Marr Sound Archives, the largest collection of sound recordings in North America. Radio programs produced through our Sound Minor program include "The World Breathes Through Us", "Earreach Project", "River Music", and "Time Capsules".

Audio-Vision: Sound for the Screen & Space

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Required for Sound minor students] Perceptual embodiment in aural and visual experience is applied to developing audio production for screen and space. Hands-on technical demonstrations, production crew work, artistic and technical presentations, and soundtrack analysis will serve in developing audio for the screen. Sound works by artists and sound designers support our recording and editing of sound effects, contact mic recording, ambience, and voice recording culminating in a sound sync mix.

The Soundscape

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This sound production class introduces the soundscape as a creative space between science, society and the arts. The soundscape puts us directly in touch with the our surrounding world. Each element within the soundscape is informed by its material source, acoustic resonance, human use, cultural history and special place in a vast pan-species ecology. Your work flows with time, memory, spatial imprint and the social life of sounds. Topics supporting your work include environmental acoustics, the timbral language of materials, multi-channel sound production, historiophony (history through sound), acoustic ecology, animal intelligence, and the creative soundscape. Supporting artists include R. Murray Schafer, Pauline Oliveros, David Dunn, Annea Lockwood, Bernie Krause, Annie Sprinkle and Brian Eno.

Audio-Vision 2: Sound Scoring for Animation, Film and Installation

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Prerequisite: SOUNE 301] An introduction to the software and techniques used by top sound designers working in film scoring, with an emphasis on animation sound and support for installation. We take an in-depth look into Adobe Audition as a Digital Audio Workstation for working with film, visual media and installation. Skills with Foley technique and recording/editing voice talent that were introduced in Audio Vision 1 are further developed. We fully explore the processing tools available in Audition. The course is very project-based, and you are encouraged to use the techniques we learn to develop your own sound designs, soundtracks and installations. Sound works by artists and sound designers will be introduced to support your work. This class continues exploring sound's role in the narrative of perception in animation, film and space. Students are required to purchase Ableton Live software. By using the following link, you can own the program for $49 by using their student discount. <https://www.ableton.com/en/shop/education/>

Weaving Sound, Weaving Light

3 credit hours (3 studio)

We begin using sound and light to reveal the micro-structures and resonances in fiber materials and processes, and then to further transform these in space and time. Weavings become music, paper becomes a textured breath, and tactility diffused light. Works by Ellen Fullman, Annea Lockwood, Pauline Oliveros, and Steve Reich introduce assignments in three areas: Reflection, Texture, Projective Dimensionality, and Matrices in Social Space. Technologies used include contact-mic recording, microscopy, video and sound projection, and software in the Adobe Suite.

Sound Sculpture

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This audio production class is focused in five areas— • materials • energies • processes • soundscapes • social spaces • Our work is grounded in perception—developing your ability to embody experience through sound and to create this opportunity for others. Hands-on technical demonstrations in our production facility and current artistic practice introduce each area and support assignments.

Recon

3 credit hours (3 studio)

This class will act as a bridge to connect students' major studio concerns with a variety of options in media, process and reference. Students will be encouraged to experiment with immediate processes, such as drawing, photography, Web-based processes or video, with an emphasis on agility and mobility. Primarily a drawing process environment, the classroom will act as a research and development lab for experimentation, drawing on group conversations, critiques and a variety of working processes that can act as reconnaissance for their major studio work. The goal is to establish a sense of "portability" within each student's practice, allowing for the continuation of discovery beyond the concentrated studio. By pinpointing issues that may prove relevant to the student's body of work, we will look for ways to gather information and reference, organize and edit the incoming data and start the process of translation.

LIVE! - Audiovisual Concepts and Approaches for Creative Real Time Situations

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Prerequisite: CAMA/CAMAE 203; Social Practice minor] How can artists utilize audiovisual media's immediacy? Through experimentation and research, this studio course will concentrate on the use of visual and sonic media as a central component within live creative situations such as performance, installation, outdoor/architectural projection, and real time streaming. You will gain the foundational skills needed for projection mapping (technique for merging the projected image with physical space and or objects, moving away from traditional flat projection surfaces), audiovisual mixers for live manipulation, multi-channel projection, fundamental lighting programming, and streaming. In addition, there will be an examination of the historical predecessors who employed live audiovisual components as well as contemporary artists working in this field. Production assignments will be given throughout the semester, and towards the end of the semester, one large individually driven final production will be due.

CAMAE 251

Performance as Image, Interaction and Intervention

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Social Practice minor] In this seminar-style elective, students will delve into the conceptual, historical and technical underpinnings of performance art. We will consider creative methods to produce artworks that engage embodied experience, impermanence and physical movements for students to explore their personal engagement with these processes. The class will focus around three topical areas: performance as a live event and/or action for the camera, participatory performance and performance as intervention with an existing cultural or social sphere. This coursework will be structured through lectures, student research presentations, class discussions, work in progress and critiques. Drawing from the three areas, students will produce three studio projects over the course of the semester. Any media or cross disciplinary practice is welcome and encouraged to be employed through this experimental engagement with performance methodologies.

SOUND-TEXT

SOUNE 305

Sound-Text

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Social Practice minor] Your voice is the medium— immediate, personally expressive, socially engaging, our conduit to the world. This assignment-driven class is grounded in phonetics, phonology and voicing letterforms; the continuities between human language and music; the evolution of language cognition; and voice recording, vocal performance and radiophonic art. Techno-artistic presentations support assignments and the use of our production facility.

CRW 2501

Poetic Technique

3 credit hours (3 lecture)

In this introductory course, we will read and write poetry, exploring various aspects of poetic technique, including imagery, metaphor, line, stanza, music, rhythm, diction, and tone. We will examine a number of poetic traditions, study poetry's place in culture and society, and through journaling, intensive writing experiments, revision work, and peer critique, develop a substantial body of original work.

CRW 3550

Poetry Studio

3 credit hours (3 lecture)

This reading-intensive writing course functions as a work group for reading, writing, researching, discussing, and critiquing poetry. Readings include both student and published work. Coursework includes presentations, peer reviews, and final portfolio of original writing. This course can be repeated one time for credit.

JLC 2600

Japanese Language and Culture I

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] [There are no prerequisites for this course.] This is an intensive introduction to the Japanese language, designed to develop proficiency in speaking, listening, reading and writing. The Japanese writing scripts Hiragana and Katakana will be covered and Kanji will be introduced. Cultural awareness through the language will also be explored. A variety of resources will enhance the classroom immersion experience, including video, audio, and other source material.

JLC 2601

Japanese Calligraphy

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] An iconic example of Japanese culture is learning to write with a brush. Japanese character writing skills will be explored with both the pen and calligraphy brush. Students will learn to recognize the different scripts using ancient and modern resources from scrolls to manga and advertising. Students will also learn to write Hiragana, Katakana, and select Kanji in the three classic styles of Japanese calligraphy: Kaisho (regular), Gyosho (semi-cursive) and Sosho (cursive). Japanese language skills are not a requirement.

JLC 3600

Japanese Language and Culture II

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] [Prerequisite: JLC 2600, or permission of the instructor] This is the second in a sequence of courses in the intensive study of the Japanese language, designed to develop proficiency in speaking, listening, reading and writing. The Japanese writing scripts Hiragana and Katakana will be covered and Kanji will be introduced. Cultural awareness through the language will also be explored. A variety of resources will enhance the classroom immersion experience, including video, audio, and other source material.

Japanese Language and Culture III

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] [Prerequisites: JLC 2600 and JLC 3600, or permission of the instructor] This course is the third in a series of Japanese Language & Culture courses. Emphasis is on complex grammar patterns and intensive Kanji study that will allow the students to explore the culture using authentic source materials such as advertisements, magazines, and websites.

JLC 4601

Kanji I: Reading Japanese Characters

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] [There are no prerequisites for this course.] [This is an online course.] This is an online course, introducing the meaning and writing of Japanese characters using the first step in the Heisig Method for Kanji acquisition. Topics include the historical development of the characters, identification of Kanji in historical and modern settings, and brush calligraphy styles. Rigorous participation in online forums, written assignments, online research, and submission of the Kanji journal project at the end of semester are required. NOTE: students do NOT need prior language experience to participate successfully in this course. Students interested in the written Chinese language are encouraged to enroll although there are some differences between the simplified Chinese and modern Japanese characters.

Kanji II: Reading Japanese Characters

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] [Prerequisite: JLC 4601] [This is an online course.] Kanji II is a continuation of the Kanji I course. Students will explore the "ON" pronunciations of Kanji introduced in Kanji I, focusing on those characters and vocabulary found in levels 2-5 of the Japanese Language Proficiency Test.

Japanese Language & Culture Online

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] [This is an online course.] The Japanese Language & Culture Online course offers multi-level learning through the Moodle platform. In addition to completing coursework online, students will participate in a minimum of five fact-to-face sessions to explore Japanese culture with hands-on activities, and practice their language skills.

Japanese Language and Culture IV

[G/C; Asian Studies minor] [Prerequisite: JLC 2600, JLC 3600, and JLC 4600, or permission of Instructor] This is the fourth in a sequence of courses in the intensive study of the Japanese language, designed to develop proficiency in speaking, listening, reading and writing. The writing system of Kanji will be further studied. Cultural awareness through the language will also be explored. Students at this stage are able to use a computer to write in Japanese and perform basic research in the Japanese language. A variety of resources will enhance the classroom immersion experience, including video, audio, and other source material.

HISTORIOPHONY *lecture and research

SOUNE 223

Flash of the Spirit

3 credit hours (3 lecture)

Explore the traditional art and artifacts from the West African diaspora, e.g. Mali, Nigeria, Haiti, Cuba and the Kongo, as presented in Flash of the Spirit, the seminal work by author Robert Farris Thompson. Examine the various art forms of these cultures through such mediums as, fabric, masks, sculptures, and the sacred ideographic writings of Nsibi, and how they are interconnected to ceremonial and ritual drumming. Learn how to recognize these expressions and analyze their meaning, purpose and functionality. Examine how these expressions are integral to the basic ethos and spirituality of these particular cultures. Eventually learn how to recognize these art forms, and their musical counterparts, which have resurfaced in the Americas, though modern and contemporary African American expressions.

SOUNE 303

The Soundscape: Studies in Contemporary Art

3 credit hours (3 lecture)

This class introduces the soundscape as a creative space between science, society and the arts. The soundscape puts us directly in touch with the our surrounding world. Each element within the soundscape is informed by its material source, acoustic resonance, human use, cultural history and special place in a vast pan-species ecology. Your listening-guided research flows with time, memory, spatial imprint and the social life of sounds. Topics supporting your class include environmental acoustics, the timbral language of materials, multi-channel sound production, historiophony (history through sound), acoustic ecology, animal intelligence, and the creative soundscape. Supporting artists include R. Murray Schafer, Pauline Oliveros, David Dunn, Annea Lockwood, Bernie Krause, Annie Sprinkle and Brian Eno.

SOUNE 313

Nature into Art

3 credit hours (3 lecture)

This class explores the role of art and music in the emergence of science. The history of science illustration is featured through primary source documents at the Linda Hall Science Library's Rare Book Room, the Clendening History of Medicine Library and the fossil collection at the Richard L. Sutton Jr. Geosciences Museum. Modern physics is also shown to have been guided by the ancient mathematics of musical harmony. From Pythagorus to Planck, and Heraclitus to Heisenberg, we consider connections between musical thought and the natural world. Other topics include Maria Sibylla Merian and the secrets of metamorphosis, landscape art and the discovery of the earth's antiquity, visual depictions of gender in the making of modern science, changes in the visual representation of nature after Darwin's Origin of Species in 1859, Ernst Haeckel's art forms in nature, the development of dinosaur illustration, performing science in experiment and demonstration, and eugenic design in Social Darwinism. Assignments include a research presentation critiquing or discussing your studio work through a selected topic from our class.

SOUNE 350

Sound of Painting: Studies in Contemporary Art

3 credit hours (3 lecture)

[Social Practice minor] The rich history of aural-visual experimentation between painters and musicians is engaged in research and social-technical practice. The science of cross-modal perception and memory establishes our critical method while engaging the depth of your own perpetual experience. Lectures introduce topic areas—Spiritualist Correspondence, Rhythm and Abstraction in African Art and Music, Futurist and Afro-Futurist Impulses, Visual Music, Darwin Among the Machines, and the Synesthetic Presence. These presentations feature painters paired with synaesthetically-linked composers like Claude Debussy and James Abbott McNeill Whistler, Wassily Kandinsky and Arnold Schoenberg, Francisco Goya and Teresa Wong, and Sonia Delauney and Antonio D’Amato. Experimental music-animations by Walter Ruttmann, Oskar Fischinger and Mary Ellen Bute are also shown. For readings, select from primary source documents provided in our shared class folder, including texts by Annie Besant, Charles Baudelaire, Luigi Russolo, Sonia Delauney, Daphne Oram, Sun Ra and John Cage. Assignments include a research presentation critiquing your studio work through our class process.

AHS 3517

Topics in Contemporary Art: Video Art

3 credit hours (3 lecture)

[Contemporary] This course focuses on video art. We will study the development of video art from the 1960s to the present. We will examine a diverse range of works, including early experimentations with television monitors and large projections with surrounding sound.

HST 3008

Topics in Art as History: Kansas City Jazz

3 credit hours (3 lecture)

[Social Practice minor] This course explores the cultural, social and political environment in Kansas City that fostered the development of a unique style of jazz from the 1920s through the 1940s. The development of Kansas City jazz is cast against historical events such as Prohibition, the Great Depression and World War II. The growth of Kansas City jazz style from ragtime to bebop is traced using sound recordings and videos.

HST 3011 (cross-listed with SOC 3011)

3 credit hours (3 lecture)

This course will examine the history of the United States from the late 1920s through the early 1940s (the “long 1930s”) using the medium of film. The Great Depression and its effects on the lives of Americans is the central historical backdrop of this era, but we will also discuss issues such as prohibition and organized crime, African-American culture, changing conceptions of women and gender roles, the effects of industrial capitalism on individuals, the New Deal and the arts, and the early years of WWII. This course will also examine Hollywood history during the 1930s, including the transition from silent films to talkies, the studio system, and classic Hollywood film genres (westerns, musicals, screwball comedies, gangster films, etc.). Finally, this course will pose questions about historical memory and how the past is represented in film. This includes how prior historical events (such as the Civil War and Westward expansion) were represented in Hollywood films of the 1930s as well as how Hollywood has represented the Great Depression era in more recent films.

HST 3105

Topics in American Studies: The Moving Image and American Culture, 1900-1930

3 credit hours (3 lecture)

This course explores American cultural history in the early 20th century through the history of the moving image. We will trace the development of moving image technologies, the changing content and form of motion pictures, and the far-reaching socio-cultural effects of movie-going in America from 1900-1930. From precursors to film in the 1800s (such as the camera obscura and magic lantern), through the heyday of the silent film era to the transition to sound with “talking pictures” in the late 1920s, this course will examine American culture of this era through the interrelationship between film technologies, movie content, and cinema audience reception. How did a variety of storytelling forms in the silent era give way to the standard classic Hollywood style? What was the experience of audiences viewing these moving images, from cheap nickelodeons to lavish movie palaces? And how did these spaces of cinema spectatorship help to both unite and divide Americans, along lines of class, gender, race, and geography? What can the content of films from this period tell us about the American experience in the early 20th century, including progressive reform movements, industrialization, immigration, urbanization, wealth and poverty, WWI, prohibition, and changing gender roles? And how did the rise of Hollywood and celebrity culture in the silent era help influence and change American society? We’ll explore all these historical issues and more through the lens of the moving image.

ADVANCED SOUND

SOUNE 215

Sound Art Collaboration 2

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Social Practice minor] [Prerequisite: SOUNE 205] This advanced live ensemble improvisation class further develops composing for a social flow in events, AV performance design and organizational professional practice, where you are expected to take on a creative leadership role. With music/sound at the heart of our experience, you are invited to facilitate, produce and perform with visual, vocal and/or other art forms. Emphasis is on an open, flexible and inclusive social practice within our group, in public performance, the creation of open-resource media, and your guidance collaborating with other organizations and artists. Relational thinking, synesthetic experience, and a non-verbal critical process will guide your facilitation. Influences: Pauline Oliveros’ Deep Listening, Annea Lockwood’s Social Space, and Sun Ra’s Dance of the Living Image.

SOUNE 320

Audio-Vision 2: Sound Scoring for Animation, Film and Installation

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Prerequisite: SOUNE 301] An introduction to the software and techniques used by top sound designers working in film scoring, with an emphasis on animation sound and support for installation. We take an in-depth look into Adobe Audition as a Digital Audio Workstation for working with film, visual media and installation. Skills with Foley technique and recording/editing voice talent that were introduced in Audio Vision 1 are further developed. We fully explore the processing tools available in Audition. The course is very project-based, and you are encouraged to use the techniques we learn to develop your own sound designs, soundtracks and installations. Sound works by artists and sound designers will be introduced to support your work. This class continues exploring sound's role in the narrative of perception in animation, film and space. Students are required to purchase Ableton Live software. By using the following link, you can own the program for $49 by using their student discount. <https://www.ableton.com/en/shop/education/>

Intermodulations 2

3 credit hours (3 studio)

[Social Practice minor] This is an advanced class for collective composition by strategy, behavior, intelligence and subjectivity within sound and social systems. Develop flexible tools to compose and perform within many contexts using non-linear workflow, sensing, feedback, and intermodulation (communing). Gestural connections to the body are emphasized by applying the aesthetics of instrumental performance and collective behavior to technology. Ableton Live software is used for creating social environments with sound for performance. Our work is supported by research into the mechanization of art, artificial intelligence and cybernetics. Requirements: Use and familiarity with Ableton Live.
